

New 7% fare hike? Commuters don't like it

by KAREN BLECHIA

They might not like it, but commuters who use the Chicago & North Western Ry. for daily trips to the Loop already are prepared for a possible 7 per cent rate increase being sought by the railroad.

And even though they complain, most of them say that daily service is more important than the cost because if the trains ever stop, thousands of suburbanites will not just be inconvenienced, they will be stranded without jobs in the empty suburbs.

"Yech" is the way Kathleen Peters of Arlington Heights feels about the 7 per cent fare increase proposed by the Chicago and North Western. But, like most commuters, she said she "would rather have the fare increase than a decrease in service."

After all, what can you do if you depend on the train to take you downtown five days a week? "You don't like the hike, but you have to accept it," said Daniel Mulcahy, who has been a C&NW passenger for the past 15 years.

The way Bud Daskel of Mount Prospect explains it, the C&NW "has sort of a captive audience with the commuters who don't have a choice because it's the only way for them to get downtown."

"I'd still ride the train. There's no way my nerves could take driving downtown," said Fred Booth of Wheeling, adding that he just started riding the train last August when the C&NW raised rates by 5 1/4 per cent.

A new fare increase won't stop Raymond Brodi of Des Plaines from riding the train, either. "I'm not in favor of the increase. I think the Chicago and North Western has had sufficient hikes in the past years and that those should be adequate," said the rider of 13 years. "But I think the North Western provides excellent service."

LARRY PROVO, president of the railway company, said the C&NW is finding it increasingly difficult to maintain present commuter service in the face of rising costs and increased competition. The C&NW first proposed the hike last November, with hopes it would go into effect by Jan. 1.

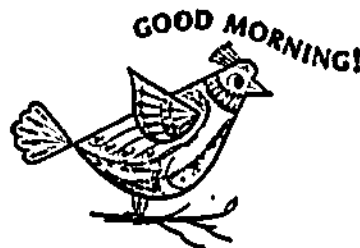

For commuters like Brodi, the hike would mean an increase of between $2.20 and $2.70 on the price of a monthly ticket. For those who ride the train only a few times a week, like Michael Sprattin of Palatine, the hike would mean 20 cents more for a round-trip ticket to the Loop.

"It's terrible. They just raised the rates last August," said Sprattin, who said he is a student and "always going broke." But Sprattin, who often stops in Arlington Heights to give music lessons, likes the C&NW service. "The people are very friendly and they help me board the train with my instruments."

Vicki Selman, from Prospect Heights, said she rides the train about once a month and feels "terrible" about the proposed increase. She said she'd probably take a car instead if the hike is approved.

FOUR DAYS of hearings by the Illinois Commerce Commission on the proposed hike ended last week. According to Tom Judge of C&NW, the ICC will make a decision on the increase in April. He said an increase, if approved, would probably go into effect May 1, although it's up to

by LYNN ASINOF

Public hearings on the rezoning of the W. Strong Street area from single-family to multi-family development will be held in early March if the Wheeling Village Board accepts the recommendation of the zoning board.

The zoning board Tuesday night recommended that hearings be held as part of the annual updating of the official village zoning map. The matter came before the zoning board at the request of Village Mgr. George Passolt.

Passolt told the board that there has been little development in the area under the present R-1 zoning. He said development might be stimulated if the property was rezoned R-4 for multi-family housing.

Passolt said he expected the village board to go along with the zoning board's recommendations and requested that hearings be held on the Strong Street property. He said the hearings would probably be in early March, after the necessary publication was made notifying the public.

THE POSSIBILITY of rezoning the Strong Street property was first mentioned last week by Atty. Jack Siegel. He is representing the village in a zoning case which contests the rezoning of 47 lots in the West Strong Street area for six-flat apartments.

The court has not yet decided whether to delay ruling in the case so that this evidence might be submitted. However, one Strong Street resident at the hearing indicated the rezoning was proposed to strengthen the village's position in the case.

Passolt, however, said the rezoning was to stimulate development in the area. He said developers would not build single-family homes in the Strong Street area because there are no water and sewer lines. He also said the expense of installing these utilities would price single-family homes out of the market.

DURING THE HEARING, Wheeling resident Harold Fagan asked whether the rezoning would include the single-family homes presently in the area. When told it would, Fagan asked if these homeowners would be notified of the proposed rezoning.

Zoning board members said the only notification would be the official publication of the date and time of the hearing. Fagan then stated that he thought the residents should receive special notice.

"I think it's an academic question," Passolt then told Fagan. "I think they're pretty well aware of it."

"That's the trouble with this village," Fagan replied. "A lot of people assume that everyone knows, but nobody really does."

Park board to vote on land for Cavaliers

The Wheeling Park District board is expected to vote tonight on whether the Cavaliers Drum and Bugle Corps will be allowed to use park land for their new headquarters.

Discussion of the project began last fall when the Cavaliers proposed leasing park land to construct their new headquarters and then turning ownership of the building over to the park district. The corps officers have agreed to let the park district use their building for park programs if the building is constructed on park land.

The park board members, however, have had doubts about allowing a special interest group to use park land. They questioned whether it was fair to use park land for the corps after having just passed a park improvements referendum to obtain more land.

Several local residents have expressed opposition to the project, saying they would like the Cavaliers in Wheeling but not on park land. The move to Wheeling, however, has been endorsed by several civic organizations.

Discussion on the Cavaliers proposed move is expected to begin at 9:15 p.m. tonight at the Heritage Park community building, 222 S. Wolf Rd.

NEED MORE BE SAID? The sign was donated to the fire department by the Night and Day Sign Co. for use in advertising the upcoming ball. It is located at the Dunhurst Shopping Center at Dundee and Elmhurst roads in Wheeling. Fire officials said several tickets are still available and can be purchased from any Wheeling fireman. Persons attending the ball will have an opportunity to win door prizes. Cost of dance tickets is $2 per person.

High-rise condo clears first hurdle

Developers of Wheeling's first high-rise condominium complex cleared the first hurdle in solving two zoning problems Tuesday night.

The Wheeling Zoning Board voted to recommend that density and sideyard variations for the project be granted. The highrise had been approved in December, but due to an oversight the developers had not requested needed variations in density and arrangement of the project.

As a result, developer George Manda requested that a second zoning hearing be held for the project to be built at 810 McHenry Rd. During the hearing, Manda explained that the project would not be economically feasible if the number of living units was limited to 18 per acre.

Manda said plans currently call for 264 units which would be sold for an average of $27,000. "If we had to go with the lesser number of units, then our units would have to cost in the area of $35,000, and that would be an economic hardship," he said.

THE DEVELOPER testified that the topography of the land, which slopes back from the road, made high-rise development the most practical form of building. He added, however, that high-rise projects are more expensive than other forms of development, making the increased number of living units necessary.

According to Manda, the project needs reduced sideyard variations because the rear of the property is a flood plain and cannot be developed. "The rear portion of the property we are not able to build on, so we have to push the buildings up," he said. "To do this property, we have to increase the width of the buildings so that they are in proportion."

The project will consist of two six-story buildings with a recreation center, swimming pool and tennis courts. Most of the condominiums will be two-bedroom units with balconies.

Manda said only 7.9 per cent of the total 11-acre parcel will be developed. He said parking lots will be used for water retention, and that the land will be terraced to prevent increased water run-off and soil erosion.

The widely followed Dow Jones Industrial average took its worst loss in 20 months as prices on the New York Stock Exchange plunged in an atmosphere of investor uncertainty surrounding devaluation of the dollar. Activity, however, was only moderate. The Dow closed at 979.91, off 16.85, worst loss for the average since June 18, 1971 when it fell 17.08. Unsightly billboards will begin coming down July 1 under new law.

New state law goes into effect July 1

'Signs of the times' must be legal

The blight adjacent to Illinois roadways will be cleaned up as soon as the enforcement stage of the state's new billboard law goes into effect.

On July 1, all illegally placed signs in the state will begin to be torn down. According to Gary Ludwig of the Illinois Division of Highways, the new law, which was passed last July 1, makes it illegal for any sign to be located within 660 feet of a state or interstate route.

Under the new law, no signs are permitted in residential or agricultural areas of the state and any sign not meeting the new requirements must be removed, either by the owner or by the state, itself, if the owner is unwilling to do so himself.

The new law says that owners of signs that do comply with state regulations must obtain a permit within 90 days. So far, 5,000 signs have been registered.

OWNERS WHOSE signs do not comply with the new regulations must remove their signs within 30 days, with part of the payment for the removal coming from the state. If the sign is not removed, the state notifies the owner that either he removes the sign or the state will.

If the state removes the billboard, it first appraises the sign, determining what it's made of, how tall it is and what kind of lighting it has and makes the owner an offer that would enable them to work together to tear it down.

Under this arrangement, compensation of two years rent would be made to the owner of the property on which the billboard has been standing.

The cost of the program is being underwritten by the federal government. Federal and state government would share costs on a 75-25 per cent basis, the 75 per cent coming from the federal government.

According to Ludwig, the new Illinois law and similar documents in other states, was initiated by the federal government, which, he said, threatened to cut road funds by 10 per cent if Illinois didn't enact the law.

Cancer survey provides researchers with data

The third phase of a survey started 14 years ago and involving persons living in 19 Northwest suburban communities, as well as nationwide, is continuing to provide cancer researchers with data they hope will eventually lead them to a cure of the dreaded disease.

Dozens of scientific studies on the relationship of environment and health have been supplemented by the information gathered during the ongoing survey, which originally included the questioning of 1,371 persons in this area and one million persons nationwide.

The project, conducted by the American Cancer Society, began in 1959 and the first phase was completed in 1965. Since then, of the 1,371 persons contacted by the society's Northwest Suburban Unit, at least 170 persons have died, most of them from cancer, the disease being examined. The second phase of the study was completed in 1971 and the third phase was finished last month.

According to Mrs. Ralph Clabaugh, general chairman of the area research project, she and the volunteer researchers had a "very receptive" response to their queries, especially since these persons were first contacted 14 years ago.

THE AREA PROJECT was a fact-finding mission, Mrs. Clabaugh said, and has provided information on environmental factors responsible for the occurrence of cancer.

The original study furnished the fact that cigarette smoking shortens life and causes a number of diseases, according to the Society. The study showed that in women, death rates increase with the number of cigarettes smoked; that women who smoke heavily have a lung cancer death rate nearly four times as great as those who have never smoked.

It provided data, the society said, to estimate life expectancy lost in relation to the number of cigarettes smoked. Men who smoke two or three packs a day live, on the average, 8.3 fewer years than their non-smoking contemporaries.

The second phase of the study was started in 1971, after a six-year lapse from the time the original one million persons were contacted. The follow-up was necessary, according to the society, to determine the long range effects on the health of those surveyed.

IN THE 19 communities surveyed in the Northwest suburbs, in the second phase, it was determined that of the 1,371 persons contacted in 1959, 135 persons had died, most of them from cancer. The area society unit was commissioned only to find out if these persons were alive or dead and the Surgeon General's office would then check the death certificates and the doctors involved to determine the causes.

Then in October, 1972, questionnaires were sent during the third phase of the survey. At least 35 more persons had died and another 300 were still unaccounted for. This survey period ended Jan. 31.

According to Mrs. Clabaugh, the study has had a tremendous bearing on cancer research and has changed the lives of some of its participants.

"Almost everyone is touched in some way by cancer," she said, "either directly through a family member, yourself or a relative."

"The study has changed people's lives. It has caused them to give up smoking. That's why the more we study the more benefit we get."

Mrs. Clabaugh also feels the society's educational and help programs are important in preventing cancer or catching it at an early stage and conferring with cancer patients to give them a will to live.

She said it is valuable to "spread the word" about cancer, which the society does through its lay and professional volunteers. She suggests persons get a yearly checkup. "If we can only get people to get it (detected) at an early stage, survival is optimistic," she said.

Prosecutor says Kerner lied to jurors

A government prosecutor told jurors that U.S. Appeals Court Judge Otto Kerner lied to them to conceal his part in a "sophisticated" racetrack stock bribery scheme.

"He lied to the grand jury and he lied to you during this trial," Assistant U.S. Atty. Samuel Skinner said during a final review of prosecution charges against the former Illinois governor.

The jury of seven women and five men, all of them from middle or lower income families, appeared to listen closely as Skinner explained a series of stock transactions in which Kerner and his codefendant, Theodore J. Isaacs, profited by almost $300,000.

"We're dealing with sophisticated defendants," he told the jury. "The scheme that is involved in this bribery plan is sophisticated."

KERNER AND Isaacs, former state revenue director and campaign manager for Kerner, are accused of conspiracy, bribery, mail fraud and income tax evasion. Kerner is also charged with perjury.

The prosecution contends that Kerner and Isaacs conspired to acquire racetrack stock at bargain prices in return for favors to track owners between 1961 and 1967, while Kerner was governor.

In 2½ hours, during which he displayed to the jury charts and photographic enlargements of letters and checks, Skinner ran through the stock purchases and the charges arising from them in chronological order.

He began with 1960 when Mrs. Marje Lindheimer Everett inherited the racing empire of her father and befriended William S. Miller, who was to become chairman of the Illinois Racing Board under Kerner. Together, Mrs. Everett and Miller contributed 15 per cent of Kerner's election campaign fund in that year, Skinner said.

HE RECOUNTED Miller's testimony about a 1962 meeting in which Kerner and Isaacs allegedly were offered racing stock which had sold for $2,500 per share for $1,000 a share.

In allegedly conveying the offer, Skinner said, Miller had used such phrases as "desire to be kind" and "in consideration of your financial position."

"There was no question in Kerner's mind, no question in Isaacs' mind, and no question in Miller's mind, why stock that had sold a few days before at $2,500 a share was being made available at $1,000 a share," Skinner said.

THE FINAL arguments of the defense and prosecution in the five-week-long trial are expected to last until Friday.

U.S. District Court Judge Robert L. Taylor was expected to give the case to the jury Saturday.

To prove bribery, Skinner told the jury, the government needs to show only that Kerner and Isaacs took the stock with the knowledge it was a bribe. There is no need to show that Kerner did favors in return, he said.

But Skinner listed a series of actions by Kerner that he said were favorable to the racing interests of Mrs. Everett.

Skinner said Kerner named Miller, "Mrs. Everett's closest friend," as chairman of the racing board. He signed legislation allowing Mrs. Everett to consolidate her racing corporations and stacked the racing board with members who once had financial holdings in her corporations, Skinner said.

THE FORMER governor made an initial cash outlay of $15,070 for racetrack stock and profited by about $144,721, a return of 401 per cent, "which is not bad," Skinner said.

Isaacs made similar profits on his stock investments. The case, Skinner said, boils down to "charges of bribery and mail fraud and charges of perjury and lies to cover up bribery and mail fraud."

"It's done in a way to make it appear legitimate, but it's still bribery," he said.

Devalued dollar holds steady in Europe

BRUSSELS (UPI)—The devalued dollar held steady yesterday as Europe's money markets reopened and speculators cashed in a 6.2 per cent profit on the currency crisis.

In West Germany, Belgium, and the Netherlands, the dollar rose 1 or 2 per cent above the new parities set after Washington announced the devaluation Monday. Officially the dollar was devalued by 10 per cent, but the figure on markets Wednesday was closer to 8 or 9 per cent.

On the Tokyo exchange the dollar dipped to a new low Wednesday shortly after the government floated the yen. The Bank of Japan intervened from the opening of the market to keep the dollar at 271.10 yen, a revaluation of 13.8 per cent.

For the European gamblers the reopened markets meant a quick 6.2 per cent profit — or $66,000 on a $1,000,000 speculation.

Here are some frequently-asked questions on the dollar devaluation and the answers, prepared by UPI economic writer Gene Carlson:

Q. What is a devaluation?

A. It's a reduction in the value of one currency relative to another. In this case, dollars will be worth about 10 per cent less than before, compared to the West German mark, French franc and most other currencies.

Q. Will I notice any effects of the devaluation?

A. If you like French wine, or plan to buy a Japanese camera or a German automobile, you'll find the prices will be going up. American travelers will find the dollar buys less than before in foreign countries.

Q. Sounds bad. Does this mean the U.S. economy is in trouble?

A. Not at all. One segment of the economy, the balance of payments with foreign nations, is in bad shape. But over all, the United States is growing faster with lower inflation than most of its trading partners.

Q. Why devalue, then?

A. It's a tactic to force an end to the monetary crisis overseas by making the dollar more nearly reflect its true value in world markets. But the long-run strategy is to improve the balance of payments.

Q. How would this occur?

A. By effectively reducing the price of U.S. exports, the government hopes foreigners will buy more American goods. Forcing up the price of imports, on the other hand, is a not too subtle way of encouraging domestic consumer to "Buy American." The result should be a cut-back in the flow of dollars overseas and a reduction in last year's record $8.4 billion balance of trade deficit.

Q. This was supposed to occur after the United States devalued the dollar about 8 per cent in December, 1971. What happened?

A. The trade deficit got worse instead of better. The experts disagree why.

Q. Will it work this time?

A. In theory, yes. But the administration has its fingers crossed.

Q. Can we expect another devaluation a year from now?

A. Until the major powers build a new monetary system, that can absorb the actions of speculators, there always will be the threat of a monetary crisis with the subsequent revaluation of currencies.

Q. How is this reform coming?

A. "Too slow" in the opinion of Treasury Secretary George F. Shultz. A tentative plan may be offered in September at the annual meeting of the International Monetary Fund in Nairobi, Kenya.

A. Shultz said the devaluation would mean "a better deal for American workmen and businessmen." What did he mean?

A. Making U.S. goods less expensive, and thus more competitive, overseas should boost the profits of export industries. A bigger demand would also create more jobs.

Q. What about the consumer?

A. To the extent that imports are a factor in the economy, higher priced foreign products will add to the cost of living.

Stevenson High reviewing goals

Several residents, teachers and administrators from Stevenson High School Dist. 125 met earlier this week to begin work on a long-range educational program for the high school.

Six committees of five local citizens, two teachers, an administrator and a board member will examine Dist. 125, basic educational philosophy, instructional program, support services, board policies, physical facilities and administrative practices.

Supt. Harold Baner outlined techniques for examining the present philosophy and structure of Stevenson High School. He also discussed developing broad, new goals and objectives to meet the present and future student needs of the district.

HE POINTED out that this will fulfill a new requirement by the Office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction which must be completed by Sept. 1, 1973.

Board Pres. Robert Anderson reviewed Stevenson's long history of working with local citizens in developing programs and noted that he was glad that the OSPI (finally) had caught up with Stevenson High School. Dist. 125 developed its first statement of educational philosophy in 1968. Among the listeners was Mrs. Dorothy Woods, a staff member of OSPI, who will be working with Dist. 125 on the program.

Following the general meeting, committees met to examine in detail a 25-page document prepared by the OSPI and designed to help the groups in preparing goals and specific objectives. "Your work is very important," Baner told the committee members, "because the goals you set for Stevenson High School will be used by the OSPI for the district evaluation and recognition."

7% hike? Commuters don't like it the commission to decide.

Until then commuters will have time to prepare for an increase. If they're thinking like R. Roch of Mount Prospect, they'll start looking for alternatives to riding the train.

"A group of friends and I are talking about forming a car pool if there's a hike," said Mrs. Roch who rides the train downtown six days a week. "I think an increase is ridiculous. If you consider driving downtown and even parking, the train almost costs as much now. It's terribly expensive."

One Mount Prospect commuter, who wouldn't give his name, doesn't think the C&NW deserves the hike. "Raising rates — it's all they've been doing in the past couple of years. I think they could get by with what they have now. They're like the CTA, they only lose more customers with every rate increase," he said.

"I'd just like to look at their books," was all one Arlington Heights commuter would say.

NOTHING STANDS IN THE WAY of progress, not even houses. Construction crews working on the expansion of Buffalo Grove Road have nearly demolished this one. Village officials report the house may accidentally have been damaged with the permission of the owners. The house is located at the corner of Buffalo Grove and Dundee roads, and is the proposed site of a Marathon Oil Co. service station.

New racing date session slated Tuesday

The Illinois Racing Board is scheduled to convene Tuesday to reconsider the 1973 racing schedule, specifically the dates awarded to racing associations controlled by William S. Miller.

Anthony Scarlano, board chairman, said he will ask Miller to show cause why dates assigned to Balmoral Jockey Club Inc. should not be revoked or reassigned to other associations.

Scarlano and Gov. Daniel Walker's racing board are seeking to revoke dates awarded last December by a lame duck racing board because of Miller's testimony before the state Legislative Investigating Commission and in the trial of former Gov. Otto Kerner.

During the trial, Miller admitted misrepresenting his interest in Balmoral to the old racing board.

ARLINGTON PARK Race Track could pick up all or some of the 27 racing days now assigned to the Balmoral association if the board is successful in its bid to overturn the existing schedule.

Arlington operators are hoping that the board will set an entirely new racing schedule and assign the more lucrative summer dates to the track here.

Right now, Arlington Park is scheduled to open April 19 and close July 24.

On a separate front, the Illinois Supreme Court has agreed to hear an emergency appeal on the racing schedule from Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott.

Scott too is seeking to revoke dates awarded to Miller's associations but last month a Circuit Court ruling upheld the 1973 dates schedule, including the 27 days for the Balmoral Jockey Club.

SUPREME COURT Justice Thomas E. Kluczynski set March 15 for a hearing in the attorney general's case. Scott said he is fighting the present schedule because it involves at least $48 million in state revenue.

The racing board also has assigned six charity racing dates to the Metropolitan Crusade of Mercy. The dates Feb. 22-23, will be run at Sportsman's Park and are expected to bring $150,000 to $200,000 to the charity.

Six other charity dates remain unassigned.

The charity dates became available when Chicago Tribune and Chicago Today charities relinquished their dates because of alleged impropriety in the old board's announcement of the 1973 dates.

Fund lack sidelines creek projects

Work on two local creek projects will be postponed for at least a year because of lack of state funds, the chief engineer for the Illinois Division of Waterways said yesterday.

John Guillou, chief engineer, said there is not enough state money available during the 1973-74 state fiscal year to widen portions of McDonald Creek in Mount Prospect and the Wheeling Drainage Ditch as planned. The two projects are among 11 waterway programs throughout the state that will be delayed because there is no money available.

Guillou said the Illinois Bureau of the Budget has approved $4,945,000 of the Illinois Division of Waterways nearly $9 million budget request. As a result, he said, only 10 of the state's 21 projects will get money this fiscal year. "The waterways division chose its priorities on the basis of need," Guillou said.

The second phase of the McDonald Creek Improvement Project could be finished by 1975 if the state provides money for the program in the 1974-75 fiscal year, Guillou said. The second phase, estimated to cost $110,000, would provide for widening and other improvements from the Des Plaines River to Foundry Road.

GUILLLOU estimated that the entire McDonald Improvement Project, which should help alleviate flooding in Mount Prospect and Prospect Heights, will be completed in 10 years. Most of the work left to be done is upstream of the creek, north of the Wolf Road and Euclid Avenue intersection in Prospect Heights.

The McDonald Creek project was deferred, Guillou said, "because the greatest benefit will be the work which is going on now." Currently the Soo Line RR bridge near Euclid Avenue and Wolf Road is being enlarged. An official of the Herlihy-Mid Continent Co., which is doing the work, said yesterday he expects it will be finished in several months.

As soon as the bridge work is completed, it will be better able to carry flood flow downstream to the Des Plaines River. Guillou said this will not create any more flooding than there is now in the area downstream from the bridge.

The Wheeling drainage project being delayed provides for channel improvements along the ditch from Wolf Road to Des Plaines River southeast of Wheeling. Last year, the state granted $80,000 for widening of the ditch upstream near the Meadow Brook West subdivision in Wheeling. The money was never used, however, because residents complained they would lose all trees along the creek if it was widened. The site for the improvements was then moved downstream.

Counterfeit money being passed in area

by STEVE BROWN

Businessmen throughout the Northwest suburbs have been warned to be on the lookout for a new batch of counterfeit currency that may be passed in this area.

Schaumburg police reported that more than $100 in bogus $10 bills were passed at Woodfield Mall last weekend.

They have speculated that more counterfeit notes may have been passed at the shopping center.

John Hanley, chief of the Chicago office of the Secret Service, said that while some reports have been received from this area, it does not appear the Northwest suburbs are the focal point of the counterfeit currency passers' efforts.

"We have seen these bills turn up in all sections of the city, around large shopping centers and other highly commercial areas," he said.

He said businessmen have been warned by local police to examine all currency used in business transactions.

Hanley said the notes apparently came from a counterfeiting operation in Chicago that was broken up in January.

REPORTEDLY, THE agents seized the counterfeiters, but the plates used in the operation were not confiscated.

Hanley said the incident was not connected to another counterfeiting ring in which a Schaumburg man was arrested last November.

There may be as much as $50,000 in counterfeit currency involved in this incident, according to police, but Hanley said it is impossible to determine how many of the $10 notes may be circulating in the area.

"We thought we had it all when we made the arrests, but the possibility exists there may be more in the area that has not been passed."

Hanley said Secret Service agents are investigating the incident to determine how widespread the situation may be and

"ANASTASIA," a drama about the daughter of the last Russian Czar, will be presented Friday and Saturday by students at Wheeling High School. Here, Marianne Schell, left, and Elena Kozelits rehearse a scene with Pamela Menas and Robert Kozelits in the background. Curtain time both days is 8 p.m. Tickets for both performances are $1 in advance or $1.50 at the door.

The making of a maverick Republican Don Riegle came to Congress idealistic—then he tried to dump Nixon, and now he sits and wonders...

by TOM TIEDE

WASHINGTON — When Michigan's Don Riegle was first elected to Congress as, in his own words, "an upward-bound hotshot," he was filled with zeal of naïveté.

Merely 22, a boy wonder, a protégé of the humanists, he came to the capital with visions of sugar plums. He'd take the place and shake some sense into it.

He'd storm the dusty corridors of power and let the sunshine in. O, man. O, Congress. He'd take his seat and cast his vote for a bigger and better and happier U.S.A.

NO MORE. Six years after his legislative start, now beginning his third term as a liberal Republican from Flint, Rep. Riegle is not so much concerned with a bigger U.S.A. as he is an enduring U.S.A. "I sit in my office here," he says, sitting in his office, "and really wonder if we still have a chance to make democracy work."

His sobering reevaluation of his institution is not by itself so startling these days. Worry for the Republic is widespread and bipartisan at all levels of government.

But Riegle, still with a bit of the boyish bravado, distinguishes himself by lamenting specifics rather than generalities. To tell with diplomacy. The trouble with the United States in 1973, the congressman says, is purely and simply Richard Nixon.

The President is just too powerful, says Riegle. "After nearly 200 years of self determination, we now have a President who is much like a king." Thus it is, in the lawmaker's view, the nation is marching lockstep toward disaster.

LIKE MUCH of his sentiment, Riegle's opinion of Richard Nixon has undergone a metamorphosis in the last half-dozen years. At one time the two men were allies. Riegle supported the Nixon presidential campaign in 1960; the President appeared at a fund-raiser on Riegle's behalf in 1968.

Then, as Riegle puts it, "I began to look at him more closely," taking objection to "his tactics and his associates," finally deciding the President's administration is "without a discernible moral purpose." Last year he joined an inept Dump Nixon movement.

Now, a maverick in his own party, despised openly by White House surrogates, Riegle speaks of the President with a sigh and sneer:

"What bothers me most about the man is that he has spent all these years talking about strict constructionism in the interpretation of the U.S. Constitution. And yet he has spent so much of his time tearing that same Constitution apart."

THE PRESIDENT'S accumulation of authority says Riegle, is a flagrant violation of the concept of separation of powers. His repeated contempt for congressional opinion, in Riegle's opinion, adds to the injustice.

Riegle now believes the President is in a position to "do just about anything he wants." Shut down the New York Times? Bomb Moscow? Obliterate North Vietnam?

"Who can stop him?" Riegle once asked before the U.S. disengagement from the Vietnam War. "If he goes over Hanoi again tonight we — the Congress and the American people — probably wouldn't know it until it was all over. Eric Sevareid on CBS might give a three-minute editorial denouncing it — but what else could anyone do? The truth is, no one in the nation is powerful enough to touch him."

In saying this, of course, Riegle is admitting his own inadequacies and those of Congress. Constitutionally, Congress acts as the elected representatives of the people. In fact, Riegle says, most members of Congress act mostly for themselves, to preserve their niches. "We are geared to avoid issues such as wrestling with presidential power or obeying the public will."

RIEGLER definitely is not impressed with his colleagues. In his recent book, "O Congress," he sums up the legislative mentality by remembering the House old-timer who told him: "You'll never be defeated by a speech you never gave." In short, be smart, don't make waves, relax and just string along.

Like others, Riegle says Congress suffers from every illness except lockjaw.

The quality of the membership is not so high as he would have it. The internal functioning is outdated and self-protecting. And the seniority system, whereby power is held mostly on the basis of proximity to senility, is, says Riegle, absurd and contemptible.

"If you come into Congress at age 35, you have to wait at least 20 years before you're given a job with meat. This year, we have seven committee chairmen in their 70s and four in their 80s. Almost all the rest are in their 60s. The question is, what sort of men wait around for this reward? What kind of people are willing to play the game for so long? No wonder we can't get anything done up here."

AND YET, sighs Riegle, the problems of Congress, deadly as they be, comprise merely his No. 2 frustration after six years in office. No. 1 remains Richard Nixon. For even if Congress were to reassert itself in the authority of its nation, there is no guarantee how it could prove effective. Riegle says the President might still go it alone.

"How can you believe otherwise about a man who has already said that if Congress appropriates money he doesn't like, he won't spend it."

Last year all but three members of both Houses voted for the Older American Act; Mr. Nixon killed it with a pocket veto. Last year Congress voted funds for water pollution control, health, education and welfare; Mr. Nixon says he is cutting back in all areas.

Says Rep. Riegle: "What can anyone do?"

Riegle, for one, hopes that question can be answered by an aroused population, by an indignant Congress, by a working press. If not, he doesn't know if he wants to be an official witness to the consequence.

When he first came to Washington, he says, he wanted to be president; now he's not even sure about remaining as congressman. It's damned hard, he adds, to be sent here to do something and then find out it's not allowed.

(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

REP. DONALD RIEGLE, R-Mich.: "I don't like to use the word 'dictator,' but that's what the President is: one-man rule... What bothers me most about the man is that he has spent all these years talking about strict constructionism in the interpretation of the U.S. Constitution. And yet he has spent so much of his time tearing that same Constitution apart..."

Just Politics

by Bob Lahey

John Edward Porter

Democrats in the Illinois House of Representatives have claimed credit for a number of concessions made by Republican Speaker W. Robert Blair of Park Forest for changes in operating procedures of the House that reduced the speaker's power and gave added prerogatives to individual members in the handling of legislation.

Their claim appears justified. Most of the reforms in House rules that have been adopted were originally proposed by Rep. Harold A. Katz, D-Glenview, and supported by other Independent Democrats in Chicago and the suburbs during the battle to elect a speaker.

Now comes John Edward Porter, newly elected Republican representative from Evanston, to point out that pressures brought to bear by him and other Republicans were equally responsible for bringing about reforms in the House.

Porter's claim also appears justified. While Katz and his supporters were withholding their support for a Democratic speaker until demands for reform were met, Porter and other Republicans were holding their votes from Blair until he agreed to go along with similar demands.

As has been amply reported, the catalyst in bringing Blair to heel on giving up some of his prerogatives as speaker was Rep. Eugene F. Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, who with the aid of a fellow Republican from Champaign succeeded in blocking Blair's reelection on the first ballot.

After that, a number of legislators joined Schlickman and his Champaign colleague in support of Rep. Henry J. Hyde of Chicago for the speakership. They included Porter, John Friedland of South Elgin, Richard Walsh of Oak Park and Robert S. Juckett of Park Ridge.

Only when Blair became convinced, after seven ballots, that he could not win the speakership without acceding to Schlickman's demands did he capitulate, securing the votes of Schlickman, Porter and the other holdouts.

OOPS! In discussing those Democrats who backed Katz in his campaign for House reforms recently, we omitted the name of Rep. Richard A. Mugallan of Palatine, newly elected representative from the 2nd District.

Mugallan, along with Rep. Aaron Jaffe of Skokie and Rep. Eugenia S. Chapman of Arlington Heights, was among suburban and Chicago Democrats who helped bring pressure to bear for the more liberal House rules.

AMONG THE FIRST legislative proposals by Porter is a bill that would reduce the size of juries in non-criminal cases from 12 to 6, unless all parties to the case desired a greater number.

Porter said reducing the size of juries in civil cases would help alleviate the backlog of court dockets, reduce costs and reduce the demands on time of private citizens.

He pointed out that the Supreme Court has held that the concept of trial by jury does not necessarily require 12 jurors, and said that federal courts and lower courts in other states have used 6-member juries "without any untoward effect and with substantial savings in time and money."

EPA hedging on guidelines: citizens

by LEA TONKIN

It's all in your point of view: the Federal Water Pollution Control Act of 1972 called for publication of guidelines covering public participation in the development and enforcement of standards under the act.

Now the Lake Michigan Federation, a coalition of citizens groups, charges that the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) is yielding to pressure and illegally evading the public participation requirements in the new water bill.

Mrs. Lee Botts, federation executive secretary, says the EPA is still hedging on its promise to publish the guidelines last December.

"Meanwhile, EPA is violating the law by going ahead with action on permits to discharge industrial wastes without the citizen participation the law requires," she said. "The pattern of EPA's failures to act under the new water bill suggests that the agency is not yet ready to confront the water pollution problems of the nation."

The federation is contacting Congressional representatives from Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana and Michigan to seek their support. Hearings on the first permits to be processed under the national pollution discharge elimination system in this region will be held in Lansing today. The federation and the Businessmen for the Public Interest will assist Lake Michigan conservation groups to take part in the hearing, even though the federation says it's probably illegal.

THEN THERE is the EPA's contention that it is Congress' intent to delegate water pollution control authority to lower levels. EPA wants each state to develop its own standards and enforcement program in lieu of a federally managed program, said Francis T. Mayo, EPA's regional administrator.

"Now a new era of prospective partnership emerges with the passage of the federal Water Pollution Control Act Amendments of 1972," Mayo said. An additional $165,000 has been reserved for Illinois for the balance of the 1973 fiscal year to assist in the implementation of the new federal legislation.

Mayo urged an "early commitment to a state-oriented program of environmental enhancement." At the same time, he announced a $660,900 grant to Illinois by the EPA to support water pollution control programs during fiscal 1973.

NOW YOU SEE IT, NOW YOU DON'T: massive federal outlays authorized last year for construction of waste treatment facilities were slashed in President Nixon's recent budget proposals. Spending may increase in 1973 compared to the previous year. But the $727 million planned for this year and $1.6 billion in fiscal 1974 are far short of amounts authorized by Congress.

Total environment and resource budget may climb to $8.9 billion. Getting the axe are Corps of Engineers flood control plans; Forest Service road construction; and Soil conservation service flood programs.

FATE OF MANY endangered species of birds and mammals may be greatly affected by the current International Wildlife Conference under way at the Department of State in Washington, D.C. Running through March 3, the conference brings together delegates from some 60 nations.

The next generation may have to visit the museum instead of the zoo to see such wildlife as the vicuna, the orangutan, and the Aleutian Canada goose if efforts to curb uncontrolled commercial trade are not effected. Demand for animal skins, feathers of exotic birds and the use of exotic pets for display or medical research is increasing.

The U.S. delegation is headed by Russell Train, chairman of the President's Council on Environmental Quality. As a working paper for the conference, the U.S. is submitting a draft along the lines of one proposed in 1963 by the International Union for Conservation of Nature and Natural Resources, an organization representing more than 70 nations at the government and private level. The conference members seek to conclude a treaty to control international trade in imperiled species of wild animals and plants.

GOOD NEWS AND BAD NEWS. The Illinois Pollution Control Board claims a number of achievements over the past year and reports a few thorny problems.

Highlights of the year: adoption of state water quality standards, hailed by the federal Environmental Protection Agency as among the "finest and most comprehensive in the country"; adoption of air pollution standards designed to meet federal cleanup requirements; and approval of effluent standards for many water pollutants.

Here's where the action will be for the coming year: beverage container mandatory deposit plan, noise pollution standards, landfill and solid waste disposal regulations; septic tank and deep well disposal; sewer connection bans. Also, air pollution standards for hazardous pollutants such as lead, cadmium, mercury, chlorine gas, hydrogen sulfide, hydrogen chloride and others.

PROBLEMS CROPPING UP in past year included a severe financial crunch which forced delays in hearings until an emergency appropriation gained from the state legislature. Then there was refusal of Illinois Senate to confirm two appointments and the resignation of chairman David Currie, temporarily leaving board without a quorum; an injunction entered by Cook County Appellate court barring the board from adopting a ban on residential and commercial use of coal in the Chicago region by mid-1973; an Appellate court decision that the board could not impose monetary penalties for as a condition of variance; and a U.S. Supreme Court decision which stated that the field of radiation emission control is preempted by the federal Atomic Energy Commission, voiding Title 6-A of the Illinois Environmental Protection Act.

The Almanac

Today is Thursday, Feb. 15, the 46th day of 1973 with 319 to follow.

The moon is approaching its full phase. Susan Anthony, American pioneer fighter for women's rights, was born Feb. 15, 1820.

On this day in history: In 1898, the U.S. battleship Maine exploded in Havana harbor, killing 260 crewmen and leading to a U.S. declaration of war against Spain.

In 1933, President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt narrowly escaped assassination in Miami. Chicago Mayor Anton Cermak was fatally wounded.

In 1965, popular singer Nat King Cole died of cancer at the age of 45.

In 1970, a Dominican jet airliner crashed into the Caribbean Sea, killing 102 persons.

A thought for the day: Irish poet Thomas Moore said, "Ask a woman's advice, what'er she advise, do the very reverse and you're sure to be right."

Let's ratify equal rights

ERA is in trouble.

Momentum which appeared to be favoring passage of the Equal Rights Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, spelling out the rights of women, has apparently shifted to the adverse side.

As of Jan. 1, a total of 22 states — 38 are needed — had ratified the proposed amendment. Since that time, however, ERA has been voted down in three states, North Dakota, Oklahoma and Utah. Proposals for ratification have been tabled or otherwise bottled up in five other states, Montana, Arkansas, Missouri, Mississippi and Virginia.

While four more states, Minnesota, Oregon, Wyoming and South Dakota, have ratified it since the first of the year, two of those previously ratifying, Kansas and Nebraska, are reconsidering their action and there is a chance that their ratification may be withdrawn.

But at the present, the amendment has been accepted by 26 states. Approval by only 12 more states is needed to make it a part of the Constitution.

In Illinois, last spring, the state Senate approved ratification of the amendment, but it failed in the House of Representatives by only seven votes.

The toll of wars

"During 1972, IRC helped more refugees than in any other year since 1933, when the Committee was established."

This statement stands out starkly in the just-released year-end report of the 1972 activities of the International Rescue Committee, an organization dedicated to aiding the victims of wars and political strife throughout the world.

A further tragic fact, says IRC Chairman Leo Cherne, is that it appears likely that this distressing record will be broken in 1973.

Despite the coming of peace to Vietnam, the number of uprooted civilians, war casualties and orphaned and wounded children in South Vietnam alone remains in the millions.

Since its approval by the U.S. Congress, arguments for and against the Equal Rights Amendment have received wide debate in every conceivable public forum.

We find it unnecessary to reiterate that debate here, except to reemphasize that inequalities suffered by women in job opportunities, pay and financial credit persist and must be obliterated. Despite arguments by opponents of ERA that those inequities can be remedied under the Constitution as it now stands, the historic fact is that they have not been remedied in nearly 200 years, and the chances that they will be without the impetus of a specific constitutional provision appear slight.

We again urge the Illinois legislature — especially the approximately one-third new members who have not voted on the issue before — to give their support to this needed measure.

By acting swiftly and decisively to demand justice for women, we hope that Illinois can provide an example for her sister states still debating the issue, and restore the momentum to a just cause.

"It is sad," says Cherne, "to anticipate an intensification of refugee problems just 40 years after Hitler seized control of Germany — a tragedy that led to the founding of IRC in March 1933.

"But as long as political, religious and racial terror exist, people will seek asylum in other lands, and as long as wars are fought, people will be violently uprooted."

And for that long, the work of the International Rescue Committee will be uncompleted.

World's children

In the years immediately following World War II, there were great expectations for international exchange programs in the building of a lasting peace. The idea was that if the world's peoples, particularly the young, got to know each other, and understand each other's cultures, there would be less likelihood that they would have to shed each other's blood.

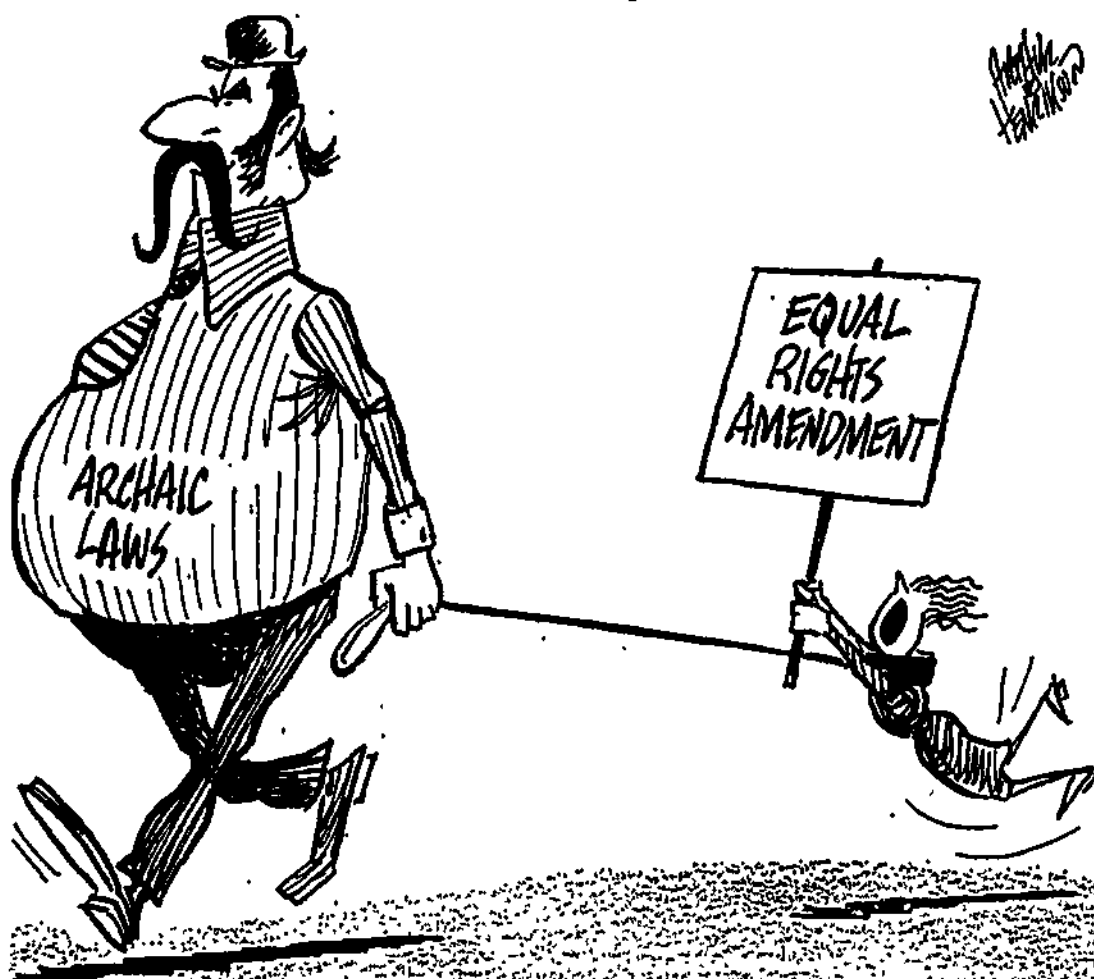

There have been a lot of young world travelers in the years since — and not a little bloodshed — but there's still life in the old idea. The Fulbright and many other government-connected programs are alive and thriving and one U.S.

firm is pioneering its own in-house program.

Clark Equipment Company, which does business in 156 countries, is sponsoring an exchange program for teenage children of its employees throughout the world. For the initial year of the program, the firm is providing 10 exchange scholarships for teenagers from North America, Argentina, Belgium, Brazil, France and Germany.

By Fulbright and other institutional standards, the Clark program is, admittedly, modest. But every little bit helps.

Scolds Johnson cartoon

Your editorial ("Lyndon Johnson: A Remembrance") was a fine tribute to the late President. However, the accompanying cartoon by Arthur Henrickson was nothing but a tribute to bad taste.

Jan E. Faust
DeKalb

I have just read the letter from Doris Rooker Perry of Barrington concerning her criticism of your recent cartoon of President Johnson. I did not see the cartoon in question, but I nevertheless have to agree completely with what she says. It is quite possible that never in the history of the United States has a President been so cruelly ridiculed by the press as Mr. Johnson, and while I would not have voted for him had he run for reelection in 1968, I do believe he was basically a good and sincere man, and I think the constant bantering by the press may indeed have speeded up his "aging" process and early death.

Here, I would like to insert a comment of my own. Since Mr. Johnson died on January 22, just two days before the cartoon was apparently printed, how come the Herald had the shocking bad manners to caricature him just two days after his death? How do you justify such indecency, — on January 24 he wasn't even yet resting in his grave. Shame on you all at the Herald. Regardless of your politics, don't you have any sense of what is right and in good taste? I strongly protest your lack of feeling and your apparent indiscretion in this instance.

I think you owe Mr. Johnson an apology.

EDITOR'S NOTE: For persons such as

That 'kind' waitress draws public praise

Honest people are still with us in our changing times. That was proven to me.

Some friends and I went for a late pizza at Jake's, 302 Northwest Hwy., Mount Prospect, and in the confusion of leaving, I accidentally left my wallet with checks, charge cards and money. Early the next morning I received a call that it was turned in and everything was intact.

I don't even know the waitress' name, but I wanted to thank her publicly. I'll never forget her act of kindness. That was my first time at Jake's, but it certainly won't be my last.

Vietnam veterans 'all heroes' to reader

After reading today's article, "Vietnam legacy: disillusionment," I'd like to say that I'm glad I haven't been led to believe that vets of the Vietnam War are any less heroes than those of previous Wars.

It's a sad day when any American could be led to think otherwise because of negative attitudes, so widely spread about during our involvement in Vietnam, by a small majority of dissidents, groups of students and others who stick their heads in the sand to try to hide from reality.

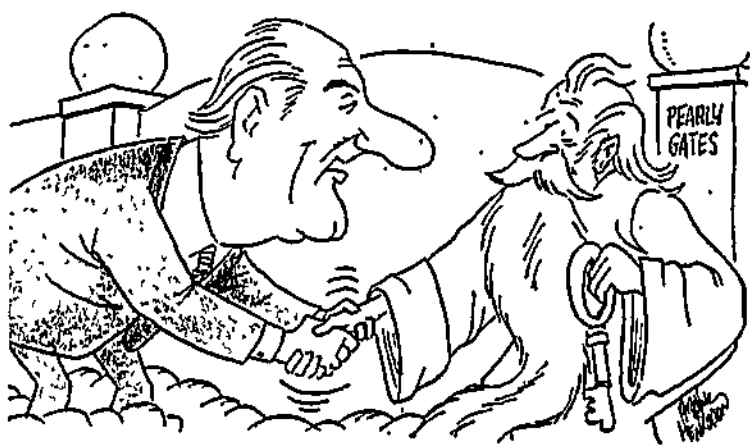

As usual, most grateful citizens are busy struggling to make ends meet and haven't time to write to let their views be known. However, this is one time I am taking the time to let every Vietnam vet know that they're all heroes to me.

Tomorrow ...

EDITORIAL: How to revamp the rules of the Illinois High School Association (IHSA).

Mrs. Skinner, we are reprinting the cartoon which ran with the Jan. 24 editorial — an editorial which generously appraised Mr. Johnson's long career in the service of his country. An evaluation of Mr. Johnson's many-faceted career — both through the editorial and cartoon — was the purpose.

District library 'makes sense'

There has been a lot of "front page" about the proposed new Palatine Library and not much "Fence Post" so I thought I'd voice a few feelings to stimulate thinking among my neighbors.

The idea of a district library makes a lot of economic sense to me. The present 3.1 per cent of my total tax bill isn't very much, but when I think about a new $24 million library, the more taxpayers the better, I'd say. Especially when we must add the interest costs of borrowing most of that money — likely to be at least another $2.25 million over the 20 years that it will take to spread the cost. And, of course, there's the maintenance requirements and the additional staffing. I'd sure like to help to keep that 3.1 per cent somewhere near 7.1 per cent in the future.

But if more people will use the new library, maybe it would be well worth it. Frankly, I haven't been in the library for about five, maybe six years. None of my family ever goes either, now that I think about it. There's the newspapers and the magazines, the book clubs and pocket books, the movies and the television, meetings and clubs, camping and travel — we just kind of have forgotten about the library only three blocks away from our home.

I think I'll try to find my old library card and pay them a visit. There are some answers I'd like to find out, like:

How many township residents pay the $30 to use my library?

How many users come into the library each day?

How many times is the average book withdrawn from the library?

How many books are sold or discarded every year?

How many additional users does the 20-year plan expect?

We need some kind of a new library, neighbors. Let's all help do the planning.

Dick Day,
Palatine

Avoiding a tragedy

Maybe your printing of this letter could avert another tragedy.

On January 2, my son Philip and a friend, Jeff Peters, were walking in a golf course near our Rolling Meadows home. On a pond they saw two skaters. One of them started across the pond in the direction of Phil and Jeff. Suddenly, maybe 20 feet out, the ice gave way and the boy fell into deep water.

Phil knew immediately what to do. He had read only days before about a boy saving a girl from a skating pond.

Lying prone on the ice, he crawled out to reach the boy and "somehow" pulled him out. Luckily Phil's friend Jeff was there and hanging onto Phil's ankles.

The skater was bigger than our boy and as he later told me, "Mom, he almost pulled me in too!"

We're naturally proud of what Philip did. I'm also happy that he had a Boy's Life magazine (of November, 1972) where he read about the Boy Scout that had saved a skater in a similar situation.

Your paper never printed this story, I suppose, because our boy never found out the skater's name. The skater and his friend, after hurriedly getting into their shoes, left to call home and "get warmed up someplace."

It must have been a terrifying and shivery experience. Hopefully, he suffered no other ill effects.

I think he would like to know how Philip knew what to do when he saw him fall through the ice.

I also hope that parents reading this will remind their kids that playing and skating on ponds even after very cold weather can fool even the careful. Flowing water and ice can weaken the ice in some spots where other places look very solid. Park District skating areas should be the places to skate.

Concern lacking

by BOB LAHEY
Political Editor

It is heartening to find support for press "shield" laws coming from such diverse and knowledgeable sources as U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, and Democratic Illinois Secretary of State Michael J. Howlett.

Crane has taken up sponsorship of a bill which would grant newsmen the right to protect their sources of information unless a court hearing demonstrated the revelation of the sources was necessary to avert a threat to human life, espionage or foreign aggression.

Rep. Philip
Crane

Howlett, in a recent speech to the West Suburban Bar Association, urged strengthening of an Illinois law which now gives newsmen limited rights to protect sources. He pointed out that a California law similar to the existing Illinois statute was recently struck down by a lower court, which then sent a reporter to jail for failing to reveal his sources.

But the disheartening side is that despite the arguments by such people as Crane and Howlett and others experienced in government and familiar with the ways in which newsmen discover facts, the public remains unconcerned.

On a recent radio talk show, a caller demonstrated the apprehension of many members of the public that "shield" laws would bestow a sort of supercitizenship on people who happen to make their livings as gatherers of news.

If such people, argued the caller, have the right to refuse testimony in court, why should not any other citizen have the same right?

The point that is missed here is that no responsible newsmen have ever contended that they are exempt from testifying in court. There can be no reasonable argument established for a reporter withholding from a court or a grand jury whatever knowledge he may have concerning a criminal act or a civic injustice.

The example is simple. If Joe Smith, public employee, learns of bribery, embezzlement or other wrongdoing by a public official and passes the information to John Doe, reporter, it is Doe's duty to report the information to the public.

It is also his responsibility to furnish the court with any knowledge he possesses about the details of the crime.

Newsman argue simply that the reporter has an equal responsibility to protect the identity of the person who made it possible to halt the wrongdoing. It is not a personal thing between John Doe and Joe Smith. Doe, the reporter, is simply carrying out a responsibility shared by the public to protect Smith, the informant, from political or physical reprisal for the service he performed for the public.

As Howlett put it, "Major scandals in public office have been exposed by news media on information supplied by unidentified sources. Many stories published about crime and drug abuse would never have been printed if the informant had been afraid of being identified."

Howlett knows whereof he speaks. It was he who supplied newspapers nearly 20 years ago with the initial facts which led to the uncovering of multimillion-dollar embezzlements by State Auditor Orville Hodge.

One would suspect that somewhere along the way there was one or more unidentified sources who helped lead Howlett to his discoveries.

Business Today

by RON SCHERER

NEW YORK (UPI) — The men who buy large amounts of commodities and material for their production needs could make a bundle with a reliable crystal ball or a copy of tomorrow's newspaper.

They would know about coming crop failures, bad weather, natural disasters — factors that cause prices to jump up and down.

But there is no such thing as a crystal ball. You can't read tomorrow's newspaper today. There is, however, a company which functions like a crystal ball.

It's the Industrial Commodity Corp. of New York, a private research firm that advises buyers and sellers when to swing into action. Its experts call the shots on when to stockpile against rising prices or let the inventory slip down in anticipation of falling prices.

ICC, FOR INSTANCE, made it possible for one customer, a large shoe manufacturing company, to keep prices from rising $1.50 to $2 a pair in recent months. ICC advised it to stockpile hides because Argentina might limit exports and the number of cattle in the United States was getting smaller. The company did and saved a lot of money in the process.

ICC is headed by J. Carvel Lange who considers it almost as a service corporation.

"We try to stabilize markets," said Lange. "By preventing overproduction, we can keep firms from laying off employees."

The fees charged by the company keep it out of the public range, and out of speculative pockets where Lange says he does not want his reports.

ICC's success stems from long experience over 30 years as a commodity consultant. The company has correspondents all over the world watching crops. Their reports, combined with analysis of consumer demand and supply, are designed to keep ICC one step ahead of the market. Their accuracy is important because, as John Mittel, vice president, says, "One wrong step and a company courts bankruptcy."

EVEN SUCH A volatile market as cocoa does not bother ICC. One major chocolate manufacturer said ICC helped it buy, "in a manner less vulnerable to fluctuations of the market." In 1969 — when some manufacturers misjudged the market. This company said it came out "smelling like a rose" and did not need to raise prices.

ICC says wheat and flour users bought wheat on its recommendation before the giant Russian wheat purchases. ICC did not know of the large Russian needs, but felt wheat prices had to rise.

"They can't predict Russian crop failures, but they help you evaluate them," said one manufacturer.

According to Mittel, one important reason for ICC's success is that it can look at markets impartially. It has no interest in price fluctuations other than to help a client trade with them. ICC officials do not maintain their own commodity accounts.

Otherwise, ICC relies on many variables to forecast prices. "The rules change all the time," says Mittel.

Devaluation for long term

Revaluation of the German mark and Japanese yen or devaluation of the dollar is just an expedient that hopefully will be a catalyst for more action toward the permanent resolution of our international monetary problems, a Department of Commerce official said this week.

In a luncheon speech before the Chicago Perfumery, Soap and Extract Association held in Oak Brook, Gerald Marks, regional director of the U.S. Department of Commerce said, "The monetary crisis should serve as a shocking reminder to American businessmen that they have lost their leadership as Yankee traders and at the same time to world leaders that we need meaningful reform of our monetary structure and trade agreements."

"Secretary Shultz proposed a program last fall to the IMF aimed at bringing about permanent reform of the world monetary structure to handle situations as we have now," Marks said. "However, little action has taken place to date and this current crisis hopefully will be a catalyst for action on the Shultz proposals."

"IT WAS generally recognized that the Smithsonian agreement in 1971 was just a crude reflection of competitive conditions as they existed at that time and that there was a need for fundamental reform of the monetary and trading structures to cope with the problems we now have," he said.

"However," Marks continued, "until American businessmen regain the Yankee Trader spirit that developed our nation, even continual adjustment of monetary values will not resolve our long-range problems. In the tradition of the Yankee trader, understanding the market, sales aggressiveness, service, reliability, technology make price just an additional factor."

"The Japanese have learned those traditions as is witnessed by their response to the 17 per cent price advantage the Smithsonian agreement gave the American seller in comparison to the Japanese," Marks said. "If price were the only factor then our exports to Japan should have materially increased and our imports from Japan should have materially decreased. Actually the reverse occurred as the Japanese worked hard at Yankee trading."

Marks concluded, "It is government's responsibility to bring about monetary reform, to remove trade barriers, and to provide an environment for aggressive world traders, but if we are to achieve equilibrium in our trade balance, performance must come from an aggressive internationally minded private enterprise profit system."

Mortgage loan delinquencies at low level

Mortgage loan delinquencies at the nation's savings and loan associations continued to run at a low level during the final quarter of 1972, the U.S. Savings and Loan League reported.

The league, principal trade organization for the savings and loan business, said that fourth quarter delinquency ratios were: October, 74; November, 72 and December, 79. The average ratio during the final months of 1972 was 75, matching exactly the second quarter figure, but up slightly from the 746 registered in the third quarter.

The league bases its monthly report of mortgage loan delinquencies on a survey of more than 900 savings and loan associations. Loans considered delinquent for the survey purpose are those on which payments have not been made within 60 days of the date stipulated on the mortgage. The survey includes all types of mortgage loans — conventional FHA and VA.

The trade group said that the delinquencies continue at a rate of less than 1 per cent of all mortgages in savings and loan portfolios. This situation has prevailed for almost six years.

Dividend News

Sears, Roebuck

The board of directors of Sears, Roebuck and Co. declared a regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents a share on the outstanding common stock of the company. It is payable on April 2 to shareholders of record Feb. 16.

Technical Publishing

The board of directors of Technical Publishing Co., Barrington, voted to pay an annual dividend of 5 cents a share from earnings for the fiscal year ending Dec. 31. The dividend will be paid on March 5 to shareholders of record on Feb. 15.

IT&T Corp.

The board of directors of International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. declared the quarterly dividend on the corporation's common stock of 31 cents a share, payable on April 1 to shareholders of record at the close of business on Feb. 9. The corporation said that the dividend is being paid April 1, instead of April 15 as was done last year, and the Feb. 9, 1973 record date is the same as that established for payment of dividends on the corporation's cumulative preferred stock.

Consumer education campaign under way

A massive consumer-education campaign was begun recently by the Advertising Council and the Council of Better Business Bureaus. The intent of the campaign is to acquaint consumers with the services offered by the Better Business Bureau.

Public service ads have been prepared by two volunteering advertising agencies, Leo Burnett and Tatham-Laird & Kuder, for newspapers, magazines, TV and radio. Coordinators of the campaign are N. A. Levy, manager of copy services for Procter & Gamble and R. P. Campbell, director of creative services for the General Foods Corp.

The "Speak Up" campaign will urge consumers to call their Better Business Bureau before making purchases to obtain information on "what to look for and look out for," as well as for information on the reliability of a particular merchant. Consumers are also encouraged to call the BBB if they have a complaint after making a purchase.

TO HANDLE the expected increase in calls, the BBB nationally has added 215 telephone lines and 140 employees. In the Chicago office, two additional people are now helping handle the 700 calls received daily, according to James F. Baumhart, director of operations.

The BBB has published a series of pamphlets with tips for consumers on home improvement, appliances, credit, warranties, mail order, home study and other topics. The 135 bureaus also keep files on businesses, which form the basis for recommending or advising against particular merchants.

There has been criticism of the effectiveness of the BBB from consumerists who point out that the BBB is supported by member businesses and has no legal authority.

But the BBB counters in its ads with the statement, "The businessmen who support your Better Business Bureau know that when you have problems with one business, it can be bad for all businesses."

ALTHOUGH THE BBB's files are originally "pretty much written by the companies," Baumhart said, the BBB conducts a field investigation of each company to ascertain the truthfulness of the information submitted, and "from then on, the file is based on complaints received and on the company's demonstrated customer relations."

Baumhart added that membership in the BBB is "very selective" and said that a company can be thrown out if it fails to live up to good business standards.

In Chicago the BBB has a record of achieving satisfactory adjustment of consumer problems, upon receipt of the initial complaint, in 67 per cent of all cases, according to Baumhart. The BBB also regularly refers complaints indicating illegal practices, such as fraud, to the proper legal agencies. The Chicago office made 597 such referrals last month, Baumhart said.

While noting that some complaints made by consumers are not valid, Baumhart denied that businessmen are hurt by this.

"Of 18,595 complaints last year, only 400 to 500 were invalid or void," he said. "Most people who contact us are not just letting off steam."

Employment survey planned in area

A sample of households in this area will take part in a nationwide survey on employment and unemployment to be conducted the week of Feb. 19-23 by the Bureau of the Census.

The survey is taken monthly by the Bureau for the U.S. Department of Labor. The households interviewed are selected to represent a cross section of all households.

Statistics on conditions in the labor force from month to month provide a continuing measure of the economic health of the nation. In December, for example, total employment increased by 280,000 to 82.8 million (seasonally adjusted), continuing the strong upward trend in evidence since mid-1971. The revised unemployment rate for December was 5.1 per cent, down from 5.2 per cent in November and from 6 per cent a year ago.

GENERAL INFORMATION:

Mount Prospect grew rather slowly until after World War II, but as a result of the mass move to the suburbs by Chicagoans, its population increased 371.6% during the 1950's. Its current population of 45,200 people represents another rise of 139.1% in just the 12 years from 1980, largely due to the annexation last fall of a large area of Prospect Heights, northeast of the village.

Many large trees line the village streets and the Chamber of Commerce annually sponsors such events as a 3-day July 4th Fair, Welcome Lady service to new residents, and in recent years an annual Oktoberfest.

Mount Prospect celebrated its 50th Anniversary in 1967, highlighted by a 3-day fair, parade, and village historical exhibition. The village is developed with numerous winding streets and features home styles of all sizes and designs with the downtown area paralleling the Chicago and North Western Railroad tracks.

CHURCHES:

Included in the village are 4 Lutheran, 2 Catholic, and 8 Protestant churches.

VILLAGE HISTORY:

The recorded history begins about 1871 when a Chicago real estate man, E. C. Eggleston, purchased a tract of land from the Burke and Rooney families, who were among the early farmers to settle in this area. He named the town "Mount Prospect" probably to express his optimism as to its future. The settlement grew slowly, even after erection of the Chicago and North Western Railroad station about 1875. According to the "Illinois State Gazetteer" in 1893 the village had a population of 35 with mail delivery once a day. One of the earliest business establishments in the village was a creamery and cheese factory operated by William Will at Busse and Wille Streets.

RECREATION:

The village is served by the Mount Prospect Park District and the River Trails Park District. The Mount Prospect Park District has 3 outdoor pools, 1 indoor pool, and several parks scattered throughout the village. Also, it has the Lions Park Recreation Center, and the Mount Prospect Community Center, the latter having an 18-hole golf course. The River Trails Park District has an outdoor pool. Both have sled hills. Mount Prospect also has tennis courts.

Also in Mount Prospect is a private indoor-outdoor tennis club, as well as numerous movies and theatres. Planned is an indoor ice skating rink, privately owned, for the Randhurst Shopping Center.

HOUSING:

Established areas of older homes meet newly constructed areas with the average age of homes estimated at 10 years. Prices range from $33,000 to $125,000. New homes start at $40,000. Over 700 rental units are in the village, including some new 12-flat buildings and several "close-to-downtown" 2 unit apartment areas. There are many new major apartment complexes on the perimeter of the village, and rents range from $245 to $350 per month.

The MALL at Randhurst Shopping Center.

MEDICAL:

Northwest Community Hospital and Holy Family Hospital are adjacent to the village. In addition, there are 35 doctors and 30 dentists operating within the village.

TOWN SHOPPING:

The central downtown district features a full variety of retail shops with several "Park-and-Shop" centers. Randhurst Shopping Center is located at the north end of the village and there are various secondary shopping districts on the perimeter of the village.

TRANSPORTATION:

C&NW trains reach the Loop in 42 minutes (29 minutes for express trains). The United Motor Coach buses take 70 minutes to reach the Loop. A recent special bus system has been developed to commute shoppers from Chicago directly to Randhurst.

VILLAGE GOVERNMENT:

Mount Prospect has a village form of government. The head of the village is the Village President, also called the Mayor. He and a Board of 6 trustees, all elected at large, pass legislation for the village. The Village Manager is the chief administrator. He carries out the policy of the Village Board. Under the Village Manager are the department heads such as the Fire Chief and the Police Chief.

SCHOOLS:

The village includes 7 public elementary, 2 junior high, and 5 high schools serve the community, with Prospect High School and Forest View High School located within the village. There are also 1 Lutheran and 2 Catholic elementary schools in the village. The pupil:teacher ratio is 22:1, with $690 spent per pupil annually.

ORGANIZATIONS:

There are 34 civic and service clubs available to men and women.

Banner year seen for mobile homes

Innovations in construction and design in mobile homes indicate the industry will have its greatest year ever in 1973.

One of the newest concepts in construction revealed at the 1973 National Mobile Home Show sponsored by the Mobile Homes Manufacturers Association was laminated walls and floors. This design technique, which compresses fireproofed styrofoam with 30 pounds of pressure per square inch between the exterior and interior walls, results in a more sturdy floor and wall.

Lamination also eliminates the need for studs and outside screws and improves insulation so the exterior of new homes can have a larger variety of colors.

Sprayed cellulose is another new type of insulation being used. It serves an acoustical function and gives the home greater durability.

Greater sturdiness has been added to homes in 1973 with the introduction of four-inch interior and exterior walls. "Homes are becoming more residential in appearance and similar to house-like construction," one manufacturer noted.

The interiors of homes have a new look. Homes are becoming more sturdy and more aesthetic. White walls, which can be painted or wall papered, add the personal touch to a dwelling.

CLERE-STORY windows and a new flexible type of ceiling, which has the appearance of plaster and eliminates the necessity of rosettes is now available. Other interior innovations include foyers, which offer owners a transition between the outdoors and the interior of their home, eight foot ceilings, roll-out windows with solid-wood siding and solid-wood doors.

There is a trend toward double wide mobile homes. One manufacturer said 40 per cent of his plant's production is now devoted to larger homes.

Industry representatives predict the growth of double wide will continue because single wide homes have begun to saturate the market. "This same phenomenon was seen between the eight-foot and 10-foot mobile home and then the 10 wide and 12 wide," an industry official explained.

Quality and value make the difference between success and failure. Therefore, many manufacturers have gone to a third party inspection system to insure their homes remain "blue chip" quality.

Manufacturers are also improving relationships with dealers to help enhance sales. In some cases, dealers are requested to complete an application form before they are permitted to carry a line of products.

"This approach allows a manufacturer to be satisfied with a dealer's reputation before shipping homes to the lot for retail sales," a manufacturer said.

"On the other hand, manufacturers must be more cooperative with dealers' requests so they can work hand-in-hand to give a customer the best possible service," he added.

Work begins on third building at Walden

Pepper Construction Co., Chicago-based general contractors, recently announced that work has been completed on two major structures and that construction has begun on a third major building, all in the $200 million planned community of Walden in Schaumburg.

One of the completed buildings, a 203-room Sheraton Motor Inn, is located on the west side of Algonquin Road, one-half mile west of Ill. Rte. 53. It is the first of two motels planned for the Walden complex.

Costing in excess of $2 million, the four-story brick and concrete Sheraton Inn contains a 15,000-square-foot commercial exhibit hall, according to John B. Johannesen, vice president.

Also completed is an 81,700-square-foot five-story office building which occupies an 81,700-square-foot site on the west side of Algonquin Road, one-quarter mile west of Ill. Rte. 53. Parking for 350 cars has been provided as part of the site.

BARANICK & CONTE and Associates are the architects for the office building, built at a cost of $2 million.

A second office building, identical to the first, is now under construction and is located south of the first building and will be ready for occupancy later this year.

Another phase of the Walden community already completed includes 204 units in two three-story elevator buildings and 50 deluxe townhouses.

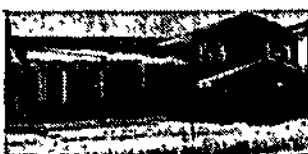

Included in Walden's total plan are 2,252 low-rise elevator apartment units, 400 high-rise units, 348 townhouses, the two motor inns containing 500 rooms, 330,000 square feet of commercial and office space, five lakes and complete supporting facilities. These include pools, ponds, putting greens, tot-lots, a club house, tennis courts, and miles of bicycle paths and walking trails.

A public school is scheduled to be built and operated on the premises by the local school district.

Walden is located on 155 acres bordered by Algonquin and Meacham roads, Arbor Drive, and the Northwest Tollway. The developers are William J. Walsh and Walden Investment Corp. Karl Treffinger & Associates, San Francisco, is the architect, and Sasaki-Walker Associates, Sausalito, Calif., is the landscape architect.

MAP TIPS TO HOME BUYERS AND HOME SELLERS FROM MAP MULTIPLE LISTING REAL ESTATE SERVICE

Make Sure Price Is Right

This is a fundamental that real estate agents stress. The value of your house is not what you think it is, or the buyer thinks. It is determined chiefly by location, neighborhood and current market. So, first, you must get in line with the market.

That means realistic appraisal. A capable real estate company can bring in his own "team" of four or five salesmen who will individually price your home, and then reach a few consensus. Or you can hire an independent appraiser by a qualified appraiser. If, after a few weeks, your home remains unsold, you should consider reappraisal. After an over-priced house has remained on the market for months, it becomes almost impossible to sell. Salesmen lose their enthusiasm, and prospects wonder what's wrong with it.

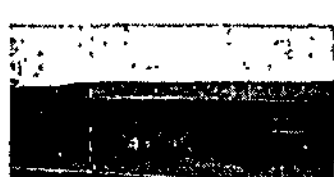

"Don't count on misplaced improvements to raise the price," expert real estate agents warn. There was the La Grange, Ill., resident who bought an $18,000 house in an $18,000 block, then spent $12,000 on improvements. He was transferred and forced to sacrifice his $30,000 investment for $24,000. Pricing a house right means pricing it on the neighborhood scale. If possible your price should also include curtains, draperies, refrigerator, dishwasher, built-ins. It's a better "package" deal and may hasten the sale.

An important part of merchandising is establishing the proper selling price for your property. Using established and accurate appraisal techniques we prepare a Value Analysis on your property. This results in a fast sale at top market price for you.

We offer three exclusive extras that greatly assist us in selling your property:

1. Inter-City Relocation Service Inc. 650 nationwide Realtors constantly are referring their transferred clients to us. In 1972 this has resulted in over $2,000,000 in additional sales.
2. Palace Guard, Inc. In this age of consumerism buyers expect to purchase things and know that they will work properly or will be fixed so that they do. Palace Guard Service is only offered through us.
3. The Starck Home Guarantee Purchase Plan and Potere PET Equity Program permits us to sell a buyer your property and "take his home in trade" anywhere in the country.

Since 1960 Robert W. Starck & Co., Realtors have sold thousands of homes in the great Northwest Suburbs. We have grown to five offices with over fifty associates.

We'd love to spotlight your home with our SOLD sign!

A sneak preview of Hinswood Park near Naperville

Realty Co. of America (REALCOA) announces that Chicagoland homebuyers can now get an advance look at the Hinswood Park Condominiums, although landscaping and all facilities are not yet complete.

These one, two and three-bedroom homes are also on sale at pre-development prices that are up to $3,500 under what the selling prices will be after grand opening later this year.

All homeowners are members of the community association, which includes a 19-acre private park with clubhouse that offers facilities for practically every type of indoor and outdoor recreation.

The condominiums are situated in 16-unit, two-story buildings, a lobby entrance for each group of eight homes. In back of each lobby and staircase area are storage areas for bikes, carriages, etc., and separate locker space for each home. Security and privacy are maintained through an intercom from the lobby, remote control door opening, and a closed-circuit TV system to each of the homes.

A master TV antenna system with conveniently located jacks is included. Pre-wired telephone jacks are located throughout the homes. Maintenance and cleaning is handled by a professional crew.

AMONG THE features of each home is an appliance package including eye-level double oven/range, disposal, under-counter dishwasher and a large double-door refrigerator. Central air conditioning and heating is individually controlled. Complete carpeting is also included in every home. An individual laundry room is provided with optional washer and dryer. All homes come complete with storms and screens.

Four different floor plans are offered, and furnished models of each are not open.

The three-bedroom, two-bath unit No. 3, priced at $33,490, is entered through a foyer leading to a 12 foot by 19 foot living room with formal dining room. Sliding glass doors open onto either a patio or large wood-deck balcony. The kitchen has color-coordinated wood cabinetry and space for informal family meals.

Off a central hallway are the three spacious bedrooms. The master bedroom has a double-door entrance and features a dressing area with sink and marble-topped vanity, plus a full bath with tub and shower. A second full bath serves the other members of the family and guests.

The two-bedroom, two-bath unit No. 4, priced at $32,490, contains the same kitchen, bedroom and laundry area features as the unit three — even the two full baths. The difference is the living room. Together with the formal dining room, it forms a T-shaped area measuring 19 feet by 30 feet eight inches with sliding glass doors opening to patio or balcony. There's an optional wet bar.

THE SECOND two-bedroom, two-bath model is the unit No. 2, priced at $30,490. Its living, dining and kitchen areas are essentially the same as the Unit No. 3. The master bedroom, however, differs in that it features a walk-in closet, as well as a dressing room with vanity and a full bath. Also included are a second full bath and an extra-large laundry area.

Lowest priced of the four models is the one-bedroom, 1½-bath, unit No. 1, available at a cost of $28,490. Its 19 feet by 30 feet 8 inch living room and dining area opens onto a patio or wood-deck balcony. An optional wet bar is included. The spacious bedroom is entered through double doors from the central hall, and it includes its own private full bath. An individual laundry room is also provided.

Residents of Hinswood Park Condominiums will enjoy the use of the 19-acre private park, which includes a clubhouse and swimming pool, plus facilities for tennis, basketball, baseball, football, bike riding and ice skating. A supervised recreation area for youngsters is also provided, with three "tot lots" and play-grounds.

Location, too, adds many conveniences. A grade school is within walking distance. Shopping is nearby. A few minutes away are Hinsdale High School, churches, country clubs, Yorktown and Oak Brook shopping and train service to the Loop. The Stevenson Expressway entrance is one block away.

Regarding the pre-development prices and the $3,500 savings possible to early-bird buyers, Jerry Gutkin, REALCOA's marketing vice president explains, "There are three reasons why we can offer buyers these savings at the present time. 1) We purchased the land quite a while ago when prices were lower. 2) We're still operating under last year's lower labor contracts. 3) Interest rates — the ones we pay and home mortgage rates — are the lowest they've been in a long time. However, prices will rise by mid-year. Labor costs are going up. These costs will have to reflect in the prices we ultimately will charge for our homes."

Hinswood Park Condominiums may be reached by taking the Stevenson Expressway (I-55) to the Casa Avenue exit, then north one block. Nearby is also another REALCOA development, Steeple Run. This community of three, four and five-bedroom homes is on Maple Avenue. Models in both developments are open seven days a week from 10 a.m. till dusk.

HINSWOOD PARK Condominiums, located east of Naperville, include luxury items for the inside plus recreational facilities. A 19-acre private park and clubhouse offers indoor and outdoor recreation.

CREB offers course in basic real estate

Two night-school courses in basic real estate will be available to the public at Mayfair College, according to Ernest C. Knecht, president of the Chicago Real Estate Board.

"Real Estate Salesmanship," to be taught by Roy S. Rother, president of Rother & Co. Realtors will examine the primary functions and operations of a modern, professional real estate salesman.

The "Salesmanship" course this year will include the presentation of four color sound-track films produced by the National Institute of Real Estate Brokers. The four films, entitled "How to List Real Estate in a Competitive Market," "Qualifying the Buyer," "Presenting the Offer" and "Showing the Property and Obtaining the Offer" show the many steps involved in the transaction of residential property from the standpoint of the salesman.

"Real Estate Fundamentals" will provide a working knowledge of real estate practices. Taught by Harold D. Rider, president of Realty & Mortgage Co., the course includes investment, taxation, legislative framework and financing.

The courses are presented in cooperation with Mayfair College and co-sponsored by the C.R.E.B. Both courses will be held on consecutive Friday evenings beginning February 23 and continuing through April 13, for a total of eight class sessions.

All classes for both courses will be held in Room 301 at Mayfair College, 4626 North Knox Avenue. The "Salesmanship" course will begin at 6:30 p.m. with the "fundamentals" course following at 8:15 p.m.

To register in either or both courses, or for more information about them, contact Rodger Wunderlich at the C.R.E.B. office, 236-4688.

Million-dollar sales associates honored

At their recent annual sales dinner held at Lancer's Steak House in Schaumburg, Annen & Busse Realtors honored their million-dollar sales associates. These members of the staff all reached and surpassed the coveted goal of $1,000,000 in residential sales in the year 1972.

Fifteen associates on the Annen & Busse team received congratulatory messages, along with decorative plaques defining their achievement, as follows: Nancy Shannon, Manette Christensen, Mary Anne Flynn, Eileen Rodgers (who reached $2,000,000), Muriel Hogarty, Rosalie Voras, and Paul Dombrowski, Donald G. Heldorn, Don Jeschke, Del Sears, Al Streich, Jane Jackson, Bob Magnus, Dan Rutigliano and Alan Macdonald.

Construction outlook better for this year

Construction equipment distributors in the Midwest can look forward to modest sales increases of up to 10 per cent during 1973, according to a leading financing and leasing executive.

W. H. Hemker, assistant vice president of C.I.T. Corporation and head of the firm's Chicago division, reports that a survey of construction men in the area indicates that the strongest single factor affecting their outlook for 1973 is the nation's economic growth.

Hemker acknowledged that 1972 was a poor year because of adverse weather conditions, adding that this has contributed to a heavy carry-over of work. "Total construction will probably be up this year over last, with the biggest construction gains expected to be in commercial building and sewer work," he said.

Class offered in condo management

Robert A. Cagann, president of Robert A. Cagann and Associates, Inc., Arlington Heights, has been selected by the Institute of Real Estate Management to serve as a faculty member for its "Course 7," to be presented in Boston Feb. 21-24.

"Course 7" is part of an ongoing series of educational programs sponsored by IREM. It will deal with condominium and cooperative development and management.

Cagann, who holds the designation of certified property manager, is vice-director of the course, and helped to draft the scheduled program. He also serves on the faculty of "Course 1," Practical Methods for Real Estate Management.

Robert A. Cagann and Associates is the only firm in metropolitan Chicago that specializes in the management of cluster townhouses and condominium developments. Cagann is a recognized expert in the field, with experience dating back to shortly after the adoption of the Illinois Condominium Property Act, when he assumed management of Regent Park in Arlington Heights, the first cluster and explain the intricacies and importance of the differences between the management of the tenant-owned building and that of the rental unit, and to provide basic information on which to build success in this comparatively new field.

Cagann, whose firm also provides real estate appraisal and consulting services, has served as an instructor in both management and valuation.

Environment award for Mrs. Rosenthal

An "Environmental Improvement" award for excellence in landscape work was presented to Mrs. Phyllis Rosenthal of Lawrence & Ahlman, Inc., for the Illinois Visually Handicapped Institute project in Chicago.

Ceremonies took place at a luncheon during the Mid-Am Trade Show at the Arlington Park Convention in Exposition Center, Arlington Heights.

The awards program was sponsored by the Illinois Landscape Contractors Association for landscape contractors, landscape architects, maintenance contractors, and owners of the projects where the work was done.

Projects submitted for honors included huge industrial and commercial complexes covering hundreds of acres and homesites of less than one hundred frontage feet, as well as many middle-sized jobs.

Judging was done by William Rose of William Rose & Assoc., landscape architect from Hinsdale; Richard DeLano head of the Dept. of Ornamental Horticulture, Kishwaukee College, Rockford, Ill., and James Fitzell, chief horticulturist of Cook County Extension Service, Des Plaines.

The program is intended to demonstrate a common horticultural industry concern for quality as well as quantity in landscape work.

townhouse and condominium development in the area. His firm currently manages 2,000 condominium units in the metropolitan area.

"Course 7" is the newest educational vehicle offered by IREM. It is designed to reach not only managers but developers, lenders, investors, brokers, counselors, and anyone needing to know about the business end of co-ops and condominiums.

The purpose of the course is to define

Realty board backs subsidy moratorium

Support for the Nixon Administration's moratorium on two major government housing subsidy programs was expressed recently by the directors of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

In a resolution approved at NAREB's mid-winter meetings here, the 108,000-member association offered its assistance to minimize the effects on construction of the freeze, and appropriated funds to undertake a study of possible alternatives to the Section 235 and 236 programs that have been discontinued.

"These programs have not achieved the purpose of providing economic inducement for low-income families to raise the level of their housing," said NAREB president J. D. Sawyer of Midland, Ohio. "They have proven extremely difficult to administer, and have had the effect of nurturing a permanent class of middle-income Americans who look to the taxpayer for assistance."

As an immediate substitute for the 235 and 236 programs, the Realtors recommended an expansion of leasing and rehabilitation programs that make fuller use of the existing housing stock, and expanded testing of the direct subsidy housing allowance program.

The Oakwood featured at REALCOA's Steeple Run

Realty Co. of America (REALCOA) has found the key to a combination of home value and luxurious living in Steeple Run in Naperville.

More than 100 homes have been sold before the grand opening.

The Oakwood is a prime example of REALCOA-style value. Priced at $38,500, items like the optional fireplace afford the buyer the opportunity to put as much of his own personality as he wants, into the home.

Following a tour of the community, you notice attractive gas lamp lights the entrance to each home's driveway. Through a double front door entry, the elegance of the split-level 3-bedroom Oakwood becomes apparent. Greeted by a large, tiled foyer, we go through to a living room, 18 feet 5 inches by 12 feet, and notice the dramatic layout of the home. Behind the living room is the carpeted formal dining room and next to the dining room, a 13 foot nine inch by 11 foot 6 inch decorator-appointed kitchen. FEATURES INCLUDE choice of colors, under-counter dishwasher, garbage disposal, eye-level double oven and range with swingout hood, mica counter tops, compartmented sink. A separate pantry is part of the kitchen area. The finished lower-level includes the following options: paneled family room, 21 feet 9 inches by 12 feet 5 inches, a brick fireplace, full bathroom, and a laundry and utility room fill the lower level.

Up the carpeted stairway, the upper level contains the three bedrooms. The family bath features ceramic wall and floor tile and cultured marble vanity.

The master bedroom is carpeted. All bedroom closets are also fully carpeted.

MUCH OF the value of owning a home at Steeple Run comes from the community. Steeple Run features over 40 acres of parks. Residents will have a fully landscaped park in their "back yard." Lakes are being developed.

Recreational conveniences, including a clubhouse, swimming pool, tennis courts, cycle paths, and "lot lots," are part of Steeple Run. The basic concept, as expressed by Harold Palmer, president of REALCOA, for Steeple Run is "... rather than fit the area to the homes.

In addition to the beauty, the area abounds with shopping convenience, with Yorktown and Oak Brook Shopping Centers nearby. The conveniences of downtown Chicago are available via Burlington-Northern commuter service and any of the expressways adjacent to Steeple Run.

Steeple Run furnished models are open from 10 a.m. to dusk, seven days a week and can be reached by taking the East-West Tollway to Ill. Rte. 53 (South Exit). Go south on Rte. 53 to Maple Avenue, and west for approximately one mile. From the western suburbs, take Ill. Rte. 53 to Maple Avenue, then west on Maple to Steeple Run.

ARTIST RENDERING of the split-level three-bedroom Oakwood model at Steeple Run. This model comes with many extras. Steeple Run is located near the Yorktown and Oak Brook shopping centers.

MGM sales show big increases

Robert B. Green, president of MGM Realtors, announced recently a 33 per cent increase in the firm's sales for 1972 over 1971.

He told MGM's sales staff at their weekly meeting that the firm's sales volume for 1972 was more than $30 million compared with $22 million in 1971. MGM also expanded in 1972, opening a fourth office in Northbrook. The firm's other three offices are in Skokie, Chicago and Niles.

In 1972, the firm also began a new profit sharing bonus plan, and nine of its salespersons received this bonus during the year. Green thinks this profit incentive plan has had a "very positive" effect on the year's sales.

Sales activity was so outstanding, Green said, that two salespersons tied for the "salesman of the year award." He awarded two trophies instead of one. Mrs. Millie Lessack received her trophy for saleswoman of the year and Norman Hersh received his trophy for salesman of the year. They tied with sales totaling $1 million and $750,000 each.

How zoning regulations got started

Real estate zoning is so common today that it is often surprising to learn that the practice has had a history of controversy. While most cities and towns in the United States have wide patterns of zoning ordinances, there are still a few cities that have not yet adopted the practice.

The right to use real estate according to the personal whims and dictates of the owner is deeply imbedded in the common law heritage of our nation. Zoning ordinances — limitations or restrictions of land usage for the common good, regardless of the owner's wishes — represent a compromise of this tradition that has caused disagreement.

Erecting a drive-in restaurant in the center of a residential district may be desirable and profitable land usage for the restaurant owner under special circumstances, but it is obviously not desirable or profitable from the standpoint of the homeowners in the immediate neighborhood. Neither is it reasonable to expect a restaurant owner to abandon his existing business because a home developer has just begun building in the immediate area and claims that the drive-in is affecting the saleability of his homes.

RIATER THAN attempting to settle such disputes on a personal basis or taking each case to court, it has become the normal procedure in most cities and villages to delegate zoning decisions to a commissioner board. At best, the practice still remains an uneasy truce. The zoning authority can have power only over the proposed use of land. If an objection arises, provision is reserved for a hearing to present each side of the question. If no agreement is reached, the dispute may be settled by vote of the community residents.

While this may seem elemental to the intended use of the property in question. Indeed, it may be a decided advantage to seek a zoning change.

WHILE CHANGES in zoning normally represent community growth and are usually healthy for an area, it should be pointed out that any property owner in the area affected is entitled to protest the change. If he is able to gain sufficient support from other property owners in his area, proposed zoning changes can be defeated.

The diversity of zoning laws and varying zoning terminology from city to city and from state to state often leads to considerable confusion on the part of property owners in our highly mobile population. A new resident in a different state often has to become familiar with a whole new terminology concerning zoning definitions. The growth of planning boards makes uniform designations more desirable, for planning boards often work on a larger area and must reconcile the meaning of the terms used by the various communities in their jurisdiction.

If you are in doubt about zoning in your area, a phone call to the zoning authority can resolve your question, or a Realtor serving the area has the information you are seeking. He can also tell you about trends, what property is being rezoned, and what property might be subject to change in the near future. He can also tell you what procedure is involved in requesting a zoning change.

Old houses becoming new homes

Old houses are fast becoming new homes for thousands of American families — especially young marrieds with definite ideas about remodeling, according to Jackson W. Goss, president and chief executive officer of Investors Mortgage Insurance Company (IMIC), Boston.

"About 25 per cent of the mortgage loans which IMIC insures are for homes at least 25 years old, including some over 100 years old," he said.

Investors Mortgage Insurance works with lenders, such as savings and loan associations, mutual savings banks and commercial banks, by insuring the top 20-25 per cent of high-ratio conventional mortgage loans.

"Interestingly, most of the older homes are being bought and remodeled by young families in the 21-to-26 age bracket. The lower prices on most older dwellings usually leave the buyers with enough money — or borrowing power — to pay remodeling costs.

"THE AVERAGE price of a newly built home today is $32,400, compared to a national average price of $27,800 for older residences — a $4,600 difference. In most instances, additions or improvements add value, making the home even more of an investment," Goss emphasizes.

The costs of home remodeling vary across the country, with labor rates generally the highest in the Northeast and Mid-Atlantic states and on the West Coast, he said.

"A recent study, for example, shows that the costs of completely remodeling a kitchen with all new appliances can range from about $4,000 to $7,000. Rebuilding a bathroom, with all new fixtures, can run from approximately $2,000 to $4,000. The conversion of a two-car attached garage to a family room ranges in cost from $2,500 to about $5,000.

"According to the study, the costs of adding a room at ground level range from about $18 to $30 a square foot. However, any of these alterations not only add to a family's living pleasure, they can mean possible higher resale values in the future," Goss points out.

THERE ARE OTHER changes which may not increase the resale value but will make the home more attractive and possibly easier to sell at a later date, he notes.

"Such amenities as a finished basement recreation room, a patio or even a swimming pool can certainly enhance the livability of a home.

"The real excitement of remodeling, whether you have it done or do it yourself, is the joy of seeing an old home come alive with a new personality. The charm and comfort of an older dwelling is hard to match, especially when you have a hand in creating that charm and comfort," Goss said.

Colony Country features rec, exercise area

An Olympic Village type of exercise and recreation center is a feature of Colony Country Condominium on Old Orchard Country Club in Mount Prospect.

The recreation center is located centrally with golf facilities, saunas, game rooms, billiards, and tennis courts. A bus service will carry any resident to the center from any part of the acreage.

The community built around the Old Orchard Country Club will have a 50-year guarantee by covenant that the commons, the golf club and every tree and pond will be protected.

Foundations and the first building phase has been completed for the first cluster of the 2,100-unit three-bedroom country condominium (townhouse) homes. They will be in clusters of four, six, and eight-unit structures.

Prices currently start at $51,900 for the country condominium homes, (townhouses), and from $33,900 for the country condominium apartments.

Randhurst Shopping Center, Mount Prospect Shopping Center, Northgate Shopping Plaza and Korvette Shopping Center are only five minutes away.

Colony Country on Old Orchard at Euclid-Lake and Rand Road in Mount Prospect is near the Northwest tollway and the Tri-state tollway. The North Western depot is within a 10-minute drive.

Colony Country models can be reached by taking Rand Road (U.S. Rte. 12) north to Euclid-Lake street and watching for directional signs.

are now major participants in mobile home financing compared to only 200 in the late 1960s. Banks now account for about 54 per cent of mobile home financing.

Savings and Loan Associations recently entered the field of mobile home financing. About 10 per cent of Savings and Loan assets are presently invested in mobile home loans.

The report also stated, "Mobile home output in 1972 is expected to approach 600,000. It appears reasonable that further substantial growth will occur in years to come."

Mobiles ease low-cost housing woes

The mobile home industry continues to solve low-income housing problems.

That's the opinion of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago, which recently issued a strong report on the industry. "Mobile homes stand out as the most successful innovation in low-income housing in the past 20 years," the report stated.

A recent freeze on governmental housing subsidies should not impede the progress made by the industry because mobile homes developed through the efforts of private businessmen, not government gifts. The bank pointed out, through information provided by MIMA, that the average mobile home produced is 12 by 62 feet and has approximately 750 square feet of living space. It sells for under $7,000, which averages between $8.50 and $10 per square foot.

The costs of mobile homes have remained almost constant while on-site construction has increased sharply. Site-built construction averages $15 to $18 per square foot, almost twice the cost of mobile home construction.

Industry shipments are skyrocketing. Home deliveries in 1972, MIMA told the Federal Reserve Bank, approached the 600,000 mark, shattering all previous delivery records.

FORECASTS FOR 1973 are promising. Housing experts predict site-built starts will decrease approximately 10 per cent while mobile home shipments are expected to increase from 10 to 15 per cent. Projecting these trends, annual mobile home shipments should equal or surpass the one million level by 1976.

Since the 1970 census, more than 1 million mobile homes have been shipped to retailers. Approximately 33 million mobile dwellings are occupied by some 7 million persons.

Almost three-fourths of all mobile homes now produced are regulated under the American National Standards Institute's A119.1 Code. This Standard, which covers body and frame design, construction requirements and plumbing, heating and electrical systems, is a requirement of all members of the Mobile Homes Manufacturers Association. According to the Federal Reserve Report, a number of public and private agencies help maintain quality construction standards through periodic inspection of factories.

THE FEDERAL RESERVE noted an expansion of the mobile home industry can also be attributed to the increasing availability of financing to home buyers. Approximately 1,200 commercial banks

Preparing for a career in real estate field

Real estate as a career presents many opportunities, but the hazards and unknowns also are present, as in any other occupation.

The emergence of the specialist in most occupations also has affected the real estate industry. There are real estate brokers who specialize in commercial property, industrial property, appraising, property management, exchanging, investment, farm lands, and of course, single family homes. Each requires its own specialized knowledge and abilities. Each offers opportunity for a successful career.

The first hazard young people face on embarking on a real estate career is that earnings are most often directly based on commissions from sales. This means that the young person should possess a certain amount of sales ability and be ready to face the possibility of low earnings at first.

Very few real estate firms will put a young trainee on salary. The opportunity for success is so great for those who master a certain degree of competence that a salary is unnecessary. This is why men and women who have been in other occupations are found in real estate. They felt they could weather the first training period financially, knowing the rewards for success were related directly to their ability to serve the public.

TO HELP young people to qualify for a license and get through the initial training period, many high schools and colleges now offer courses in real estate, and some universities offer undergraduate and graduate degrees in real estate.

The future for young people, because of the increasing stress on education, competence and specialization, is good in real estate. Progress does not depend on seniority or the approval of others in the industry, except to a limited extent. Success in real estate depends on ability and imagination.

A young person, for instance, can guide an investor through the complications of creating a new shopping center as well as an older person, depending on his knowledge and judgment. He can equip himself as a specialist to be a competent appraiser, an industrial broker, or a property manager, for example.

Fortunately, courses at the various public and private educational institutions are available to anyone and can be taken while the person is actively involved in real estate, or even while working in another field.

Real estate salesmen top $1 million sales for 1972

Bunny Kaywood

Mary Fraser

Robert Evans

Robert Griffith

Fifty Q&T sales representatives — or 40 per cent of the staff that worked for the firm all of last year — qualified for membership in the million-dollar club.

All received citations at the company's annual awards and recognition breakfast last month in the Holiday Inn of Highland Park.

Richard G. Rutledge, executive vice president, said, "The outstanding achievement represented by these sales representatives is unprecedented in the history of real estate sales in the North Shore and Northwest suburban area."

"Many of the award winners topped $1.5 million in sales and some came close to the $2 million mark."

"This is a remarkable record which demonstrates their high degree of professionalism and service to the buying and selling public."

The awards were presented by William B. Martin, general manager-residential sales division — himself a Million Dollar Club member for the last six years.

Many of the Million Dollar Club winners have earned membership in the club in previous years. A list of the 1972 members follows, listed by area sales offices and Q&T divisions:

• Arlington Heights - Mount Prospect: Bunny Polanzl, Robert Griffith, Robert

Evans, Bunny Kaywood, Helen Currie.
• Palatine: Mary Ann Falkenberg, Mary Fraser, Beverly Ann Berry.
• Schaumburg-Hoffman Estates: Jeanne Moore, Robert Wylie.

Before moving, toss 'elephants'

If you're planning to move, take the opportunity to inventory all items accumulated over the years. If you don't, your move may become extremely costly.

That's the advice of William P. Bradley, vice president of the Fernstrom Moving System an international moving and storage company headquartered in Chicago.

"Excess items — things you may never have a use for — should be disposed of prior to moving," cautions Bradley. He points out that companies like Fernstrom charge customers for both the time it takes to move and weight of household goods. "Too many useless items can result in the customer paying extra dollars."

Bradley, relying on more than three decades in the moving and storage field, offers a few examples of what can be considered as "throw-aways."

• Old linens that have aged to a golden brown in the back of your closet. Using them as cleaning cloths or children's Halloween costumes is practical until you move. It is cheaper to dispose of them and buy commercial cleaning cloths and inexpensive muslin when required.

• Broken items that haven't been repaired. If they aren't fixed by the time you're ready to move, you obviously don't need them. This applies especially to electrical items and gardening tools.

• Baby furnishings. Unless you plan on having more children, donate them to a charitable cause. When your children start families of their own, chances are they'll want contemporary furnishings for their youngsters.

• Clothing that may be too large or too small, or out of style and still in good condition. The cost of moving an abundance of clothing could far exceed the price of a few new items. Charities are always glad to receive clothing in good condition.

According to Bradley, donating your white elephants to charities not only saves you moving dollars, but can also serve as an income tax deduction.

Your home may reveal a great deal about you

NEW YORK (UPI)—Have you ever noticed how much you can tell about a person from his surroundings — the way in which he decorates his home?

Have you ever wondered what your home says about you?

The furnishings expert at B.F. Goodrich, taking a tip from psychologists who say the "environment" you create for yourself tells a lot about you, have come up with a fun quiz to determine if you are happy, sexy or lonely.

GRAB A PENCIL and check off your answers to the follows:

1. Do you prefer (a) bright, (b) pale neutral colors, or (c) busy patterns for walls and furnishings?
2. Do you choose colors that (a) provide a neutral background for paintings, (b) are in vogue, or (c) flatter your hair?
3. Do you (a) have a flair for decorating, (b) act like a copycat and duplicate the ideas of a best friend, or (c) do you hire a decorator?
4. Which is more important in your decorating scheme? (a) kitchen, (b) living room, or (c) bedroom and bath?
5. Are you (a) the fresh-air type who flings windows open wide, (b) the realist who prefers an electronic air cleaner, or (c) the dramatic type who burns incense?

6. Is your taste (a) modern, (b) traditional, or (c) a combination of both?

7. Do you like walls covered with (a) art, (b) books, or (c) mirrors?

8. Do you prefer (a) soft lights, (b) spotlights you can play up or down, or (c) candlelight?

9. What size mattress do you prefer (a) large, full size, (b) twin, or (c) queen to king?

10. Do you use (a) an old-fashioned hair mattress, (b) coil-spring, or (c) latex foam?

11. Do you like (a) sophisticated touches in accessories such as fur pillows, coverlets or rugs, (b) earthy cotton accents, old-fashioned quilts and embroidered pillows, or (c) very fussy ruffles and lace-trimmed bedspreads, curtains and scented pillows?

12. Do you favor (a) "Mobilelike" home furnishings such as stackable chairs and tables, foam mattresses that roll up and move easily, (b) built-in furnishings, beds, seating arrangements and bookcases, or (c) heirloom pieces, big round tables, pianos and large cupboards?

13. Can you say your books (a) all have been read, (b) are for a decorative note, or (c) are few and borrowed?

14. Do you like (a) carpet that you "sink into," (b) bare floors, or (c) area and scatter rugs?

15. Do you have a system for house cleaning (a) regular day, (b) occasionally, or (c) only when guests are expected?

16. Do you favor (a) a formal dining room arrangement, (b) informal dinette, or (c) buffet serving when you entertain?

17. Do you prefer (a) plain, (b) ethnic, or (c) exotic foods?

18. Do you prefer to (a) cook for him, (b) let him cook for you, or (c) dine out?

19. Do you (a) prefer to fix things around the house yourself, (b) ask friends and family to help, or (c) seek professional help?

20. Do you like your music (a) soft, (b) chamber type, or (c) loud and rock?

How To Score

Give yourself for each (a) 4 points; (b) 2 points; (c) 5 points.

If your total falls between 81 and 100, the Goodrich folks say, you're sexy. A score from 65 to 80 indicates a happy person. From 40 to 64 you're likely to be lonely.

And, if you score under 40, they suggest, it's time to create a new environment for yourself.

House-hunting tips for buyers

Ernest C. Knecht, president, Chicago Real Estate Board suggests that if you ask any real estate broker what the most important factor is in house-hunting by his clients, his response will always be: "location."

People who have bought real estate, especially more than once, are usually well aware of the value of location. Young people looking for their first house should be careful to select for location, or at least recognize that the bargain they find in a poor location might provide good living quarters, but it will have less resale value.

Actually, location consists of a number of considerations, each having its separate influence on buyers. For example, the proximity to schools in the area is heavily weighted as a consideration by most buyers, while with the advent of more two-car families in today's economy, nearness to shopping, churches and public transportation are given more moderate weighting, and the availability of close-by recreational facilities may be considered even less important by most home buyers.

Among other important location factors are closeness to work, quality and appearance of the neighborhood, and the value of its "address."

THE VALUE of a particular location for a house can change as its surroundings change, but generally speaking, such changes are gradual. They take place over a period of years as the houses become older, as services in the neighborhood improve or deteriorate, and as the growth of the community affects value. The older the neighborhood, however, the more gradual the change.

A home site is a part of a neighborhood. It is a standard of living and often a whole pattern of life. It reflects interests, incomes, ages, and family size. Families who live immediately surrounding an elementary school, for instance, are most likely to be young families with young children with the interests, income and ambitions of young people.

In today's mobile population, with homeowners moving on the average of every three to five years in the larger urban areas, there is usually sufficient turnover in such neighborhoods to offer new young families an opportunity to buy. Families whose children are grown find that particular fact of location no longer an advantage and are apt to sell because of the changing neighborhood pattern.

Houses in such a location are usually a good investment because their worth is related, at least in part, to an institution that should outlast the house, in this case a school.

POOR LOCATION can be an asset for a family seeking the best possible value. For example, the young family with children who prefers to live half a block from an elementary school might be willing to sacrifice that convenience if a larger house farther away is cheaper because there is less demand for it.

The whole subject of location is such a matter of personal choice and circumstances that every family's ideal requirement will be different in some respects. This is why the Realtor or other real estate broker will usually ask questions of a house seeker to bring out their interests, their circumstances, their economic position, as well as their desires.

He can then select listings that offer a choice within general categories of housing. He can point out the advantages and disadvantages of a particular house to that particular buyer.

THE WIMBLEDON Condominium complex is celebrating its grand opening. The complex is located in River Forest with sales offices open daily from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Wimbledon celebrates grand opening

Wimbledon, the newest condominium building being developed by Charles G. Matthies, Inc., celebrated its grand opening last weekend with a three-bedroom furnished model displayed at its west suburban River Forest location.

The five-story elevator building has 28 condominium apartments, 12 two-bedroom units, priced from $41,900, and 16 three-bedroom units, priced from $45,000. Four floorplans are available.

The spaciousness of the condominiums is expected to be a strong selling factor, according to Charles Matthies, president of the firm bearing his name. The room sizes are as large as those of single-family homes, which he thinks is one of the most important considerations for his prospective buyers. They want the convenience of single-family homes without the maintenance responsibilities.

THE FURNISHED model has three bedrooms with 1,820 square feet of living space. The large entry foyer, with a wall of closets, leads into a living/dining room, 30 feet 9 inches by 15 feet. At the end of the room are triple sliding glass doors leading to a large balcony. A hallway off of the living room leads to two of the bedrooms, each with a wall-length of closets, and to the family/guest bathroom. There also is a hallway linen closet.

The master bedroom (17 feet 10 inches by 12 feet) is reached from the opposite side of the entry foyer and is in its own private wing of the condominium. The master suite includes a dressing room, with single-bowl vanity and a private full bathroom with a second sink. Both the bedroom and dressing room have spacious closets.

The kitchen, with a countertop pass-through to the dining room, adjoins a cozy breakfast room (8 feet by 10 feet) with a large picture window. The kitchen, like all those at Wimbledon, is equipped with a refrigerator/freezer, electric range with self-cleaning oven, dishwasher, disposer, formica countertops, and custom wood cabinets.

OTHER DELUXE features of all Wimbledon residences include wall-to-wall carpeting throughout (in a choice of colors), central air-conditioning and electric heating, and ceramic-tiled bathrooms with dressing table vanities. Indoor heated garages with electrically-operated doors are available to residents as an option.

The other available floorplans vary from the model but include similar luxury features. The second three-bedroom model has a large entry foyer leading directly to a big L-shaped kitchen with a breakfast area, next to the dining room. The living room (24 feet by 15 feet) has sliding glass doors leading to the 23 feet 6 inches long balcony. A hallway leads to the bedroom wing. The master bedroom (17 feet 8 inches by 12 feet) has "his" and "hers" walk-in closets and a private bathroom. The other two bedrooms have ample closets and easy access to the second full bathroom with twin-bowl vanity. This residence has 1,880 square feet of space. All of the three-bedroom condominiums are corner apartments.

Each of the floor plans for the two-bedroom condominiums has a living room with balcony, dining room, L-shaped kitchen with breakfast area, two large bedrooms, each with a private bathroom and walk-in closet. In one plan with 1,510 square feet of living space) the bedrooms are side-by-side, and in the other plan 1,577 square feet) they are split, on opposite sides of the living room.

WIMBLEDON is at 410 Ashland Ave. in River Forest, right across the street from Chatterton, another Matthies condominium building now completed. It is a half block south of Lake Street, and six blocks west of Harlem Avenue. It is also a half block from St. Luke's Catholic Church. Shopping facilities are nearby, as well as recreational and educational facilities.

Two colleges are located within the community. The architect for Wimbledon is Robert Jensen, Park Ridge.

The furnished model and sales office is open daily, including weekends, from 11 a.m. until 5 p.m. Occupancy is scheduled for March 1.

Yeats joins Village Square full-time 'Leverage' provides excitement—and risk Village Square Realtors has announced that David W. Yeats, former village president of Palatine, has now joined on a full-time basis the firm that he helped to found a year ago.

Dave Yeats served as village president from 1963 to 1967, having been appointed to that position after serving four years as a trustee on the village board. Upon leaving the board in 1967, he was appointed village treasurer by his successor, Jack Moodie, which position he continues to fill today.

Village Square Realtors was incorporated in January of 1972 by Dave Yeats, his wife Marge and Bob Lotka. In May, they purchased the property just east of the new Palatine Transportation Center and remodelled it completely. Village Square opened for business the first of June. An expansion of the office is now underway.

Dave Yeats was employed by the S.K. Smith Company in Chicago for 26 years prior to his recent resignation. He held the position of general manager and controller.

Mobile home living topic of short film

Burgess Meredith, a co-star with Hugh O'Brien in NBC-TV's "Search" and whose theatrical career has spanned nearly four decades, will narrate a consumer film about mobile home living for the Mobile Homes Manufacturers Association and the Trailer Coach Association.

Donald W. Techenien, Conchemco Homes Group, chairman of MHMA's marketing committee, announced recently that Meredith will narrate the film which will depict the desirability of mobile homes as a way of life. The movie will be available for purchase or rental in April, he said.

Production of the film is being coordinated by MHMA public relations director Dick Brulse who has been working with representatives of Corporate Productions, Inc., a North Hollywood, Calif. film studio. Brulse said the 13-minute film will have its premiere showing at MHMA's Annual Meeting at the Washington, D. C. Hilton March 20-22.

Brulse said Meredith (Cameron), head of Probe Control on "Search," has been an actor, director, producer and writer in motion pictures, the legitimate theatre, radio and television for 36 years. He has conducted symphony orchestras and also television commercials.

WALL IN YOUR CASTLE...IT'S THE NEIGHBORLY THING TO DO!

Your home is your castle...so wall it in...with dead air and insulation. It's the neighborly thing to do because escaping heat means wasted natural gas...a vital natural resource that we must all share with our neighbors.

Your investment in storm windows and insulation will also form a barrier against escaping heating budget dollars that will net you a handsome return in the long run.

Please be a knight in shining armor and help protect all of America's vital natural resources...including natural gas. The treasure you pile up will be your own...besides, no one likes to live in a drafty castle.

Book outlines housing needs

How to obtain housing for a wide range of income groups for your community is the topic of a book just published by the Illinois Housing Development Authority and the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission.

Such a book would have been premature a few years ago, when the phrase "low-and-moderate-income-housing" evoked in most people's minds only the image of the high rise public housing project in the heart of the city. Today, many communities have used federal and state funds to help provide housing for their elderly citizens. Some have also provided housing within the reach of local workers who previously had to reverse commute.

NIPCC Comr. Jack Pahl and acting director David Midgley of IHDA, say the various housing programs have been explained for the housing expert in previous publications, but not to the non-technical reader until now. The book is expected to be valuable even outside Illinois for its clear explanation of all federal programs.

The title of the book is "Housing: A Community Handbook." In 142 pages, the book covers the history of subsidized housing, the programs available, the development process, analyzing community needs, local sponsors, community support, and the planning context of housing.

The book is intended to be the first in a series of how-to-do-it housing guides for local communities, to be written and published by IHDA and NIPCC jointly. IHDA is a public benefit corporation established by the Illinois General Assembly to finance the development of moderate and middle-income housing throughout the state. NIPCC is the comprehensive general planning agency for the six-counties which include Chicago and suburbs.

Copies are available from IHDA, 201 North Wells Street, Chicago 60606, or from NIPCC, 400 W. Madison St., Chicago 60606.

Normandy Hill features lifestyle

Visitors and home-seekers touring Normandy Hill — located at 4000 Dundee Rd. in Northbrook — continue to express enthusiastic surprise at the many "plus" features of design and lifestyle offered by these distinctive townhomes and apartment home condominiums.

Prices range from $40,700 to $76,900, with each unit — apartment home or townhome — having a minimum of two baths and two bedrooms. All units include heated garages with personalized electronic door-openers, and each townhome (whether of one-level or two-level design) boasts a full basement.

"Perhaps the most popular feature with visitors," reports Cy Fine, sales manager at Normandy Hill, "is the liberal use of lots of space in our designs."

A fair example of the "space-plus" approach to condominium layout can be seen in "The Marseille" — an impressive two-bedroom, two-bath apartment home priced at $54,500.

THE FOYER of this model measures six feet wide by nearly nine feet in length, and is floored in a choice of ceramic tile. Immediately to one side, past a decorative semi-open divider, is the unusually large living room. This room is almost 24' long and 16½' wide, opening up to the dining room. The latter is approximately 12' wide and over 18' in length. The impression of roominess is heightened by the views through the wide, sliding glass doors — from both the living and the dining rooms — of the patio or terrace.

The kitchen is uncrowded yet convenient in layout, with eye-comfort over-all ceiling lighting and a wide service counter overlooking the breakfast and informal eating area. This measures about 10' by 8½' — and features a large floor-to-ceiling window. The color-matched appliances include refrigerator-freezer, dishwasher, disposal and self-cleaning double ovens, the upper one with full glass door.

In the sleeping area of the apartment home, reached via a short distributing corridor, are the guest bath, the second bedroom (this can also be used as a den or guest room), and the master suite. The bed-sitting room, here, measures approximately 18' by 14'. It opens into its own private dressing area and compartmented bath — and features an exceptionally spacious and useful walk-in closet measuring approximately 8' by 9'.

Bathrooms in this model apartment home feature buyer's choice of ceramic tile for floors and walls, together with shower and bath enclosures, and triple-mirrored medicine cabinets.

ALL NORMANDY Hill condominiums feature sound-engineered construction; luxurious carpeting; facilities such as closed circuit TV security system, heated and sprinklered garage, year-round landscaping maintenance, use of the exclusive Normandy Hill Clubhouse and indoor pool, special fire alarm system, ample storage lockers, etc.

Entrance to Normandy Hill is at 4000 Dundee Rd., five miles west of Edens Expressway. Models are open daily from 10 to 6 — Sundays, 11 to 6.

EYE-CATCHING DESIGN is a major attraction at Normandy Hill, the distinctive community of townhome and apartment home condominiums at 4000 Dundee Rd. in Northbrook. Exterior concepts utilize fully private and wholly usable balconies and patios.

Enclosed patios popular at Fremont Junction homes

Redwood-fenced private garden patios add outdoor living space to the two-story, two-bedroom Huntington and Hopkins models at McKeon Construction's Fremont Junction, each patio is directly off the kitchen.

In warm weather, it's the scene for barbecues and indoor/outdoor entertaining, but in all seasons of the year, it can serve as a protected play area for toddlers. Pet owners, too, find the enclosed patio the perfect place for a frisky dog or cat.

The Huntington and Hopkins, priced at $22,990, are similar in floor plan. On the first floor are the living room with adjoining dining area, a step-saver kitchen, laundry facilities and a powder room. Lighting the dining area is a large chandelier with dimmer switch. Through cafe doors is the kitchen with its tile floors, custom wood cabinets and stainless steel double-bowl sink. From the living room, a carpeted staircase with metal railing leads to the second floor.

Upstairs are two bedrooms and a ceramic-tiled bath with cultured marble vanity and over-size bathroom cabinet. Closet space abounds. The master bedroom has two — one a walk-in closet.

BOTH THE Huntington and Hopkins, like all Fremont Junction homes, feature wall-to-wall carpeting throughout, central air conditioning, private entrances, sound and fire-resistant walls between the units, thermal-break sliding aluminum windows with storms and screens, and weather-stripped doors. Both homes have individual garages that can be locked, storage space in the garage and a parking apron outside for a second car.

Homeowners have their choice of Huntington and Hopkins units in Quad-Plus buildings in a variety of exterior treatments and color combinations. McKeon Construction is the originator of the quad concept, and all quads built in the Chicago area or across the nation stem from McKeon's innovation.

Included in the Fremont Junction community, McKeon has built heated swimming pools with bathhouse, enclosed playgrounds and game slabs for shuffleboard and bocce. Grass, trees, shrubs and winding walkways landscape the homes, and the entire community is surrounded by decorative wood fencing.

Fremont Junction is reached by taking the Northwest Tollway to Barrington Road, then south to Lake Street and left one-half mile to the site. Or, via the Eisenhower Expressway to Lake Street Extension (U.S. Rte. 20). Continue five miles past Ill. Rte. 53 and watch for the model area on the right. Model phone number: 837-8900.

Mobile homes may solve low-income housing ills

Mobile homes could be the taxpayers savior from government subsidized low-income housing.

George Romney, former secretary of the Department of Housing and Urban Development, announced an 18-month freeze on government subsidized housing before he left office recently.

"The private conventional housing market has demonstrated its capacity to meet the nation's housing needs particularly when you add approximately 600,000 mobile homes to total housing starts," Romney said.

"It's about time builders realized mobile homes have been the one prime source of meeting the housing needs of our low-income families."

"No one else has come up with any better ideas for providing low-income housing except out of taxpayers' pockets," he said.

THE MOBILE HOMES Manufacturers Association has never advocated having homes produced by the industry used as part of a housing subsidy program. The private sector, association said, is happy to handle all low-cost housing needs without government subsidies.

Romney also was the pilot for a new program, Operation Breakthrough, which emphasizes a need for better housing, technology, marketing, land use and management.

The program has resulted in approximately 2,900 housing units now under construction on nine experimental sites. Some 27 states have adopted new standards on industrialized housing codes.

Housing starts for 1972 will be more than 2,400,000, 25 per cent of which will be mobile homes.

The average retail price of a mobile home is $8,640, or approximately $9.07 per square foot, including furnishings and appliances. The average site-built home averages $17 per square foot and does not include furnishings or land.

Buried Treasure

As America's consumption of energy continues to go up — some of those looking for more energy reserves have had to dig down deeper. And digging recently set a new depth record when a natural gas well in Oklahoma reached the 30,050 foot mark. And, drilling that deep cost over 100 drill bits and five million dollars. Although those exploring for gas did not find the amount they were looking for — they learned enough to justify their faith that natural gas exists six miles underground.

Apartment residents seeking a better deal . . .

The sound and the fury of unhappy apartment dwellers protesting alleged injustices has become a crescendo loud enough to be heard by property owners and managers as well as by legislators who value the votes of the more numerous apartment residents.

"As a result, laws are being changed so that the resident gets a fair shake," says William D. Sally, vice president of Baird & Warner Inc., and general manager of the firm's property management division.

Writing in the magazine, "The National Real Estate Investor," Sally comments:

"Apartment residents are getting more sophisticated. They no longer meekly sign an apartment lease. Instead, if they see things in fine print that they don't like, they demand that changes be made. And if the owner or agent won't oblige, they go to a different rental development or to their representative or state legislator to even things out — such as demanding that interest be paid on security deposits and that the owner guarantees the basic promise of the habitability of the unit."

WHAT HAS BROUGHT about this resident activism? What are some of the causes that have turned formerly docile residents into militants?

Sally charges that "inept management" is one factor that is "fueling the tenant movement," pointing to "the poor practice of some owners and property managers" and to "the unwillingness of some property owners to accept the recommendations of their managers to do what has to be done to keep a property operating properly."

He also believes that residents who fail to acquaint themselves with their rights and obligations may be equally to blame for fanning the flame.

Sally believes, however, that apartment residents "will be accommodated and that resident-owner disputes are far from being insurmountable," and he predicts that resident complaints will be sharply reduced or completely eliminated.

As an important step in the minimization of some of the problems, Sally notes that his firm "was one of the first in our city to come out in favor of non-discriminatory housing practices, even though our president, John Baird, was criticized by many of his colleagues for the stand he took in the early 1960s favoring equal housing."

"Perhaps," he chides, "if there had been more of this type of action and support by real estate leaders throughout the country in years gone by, there would be less militance among apartment residents today."

HOWEVER, SALLY stresses, "militance is not confined to the poor or to the blacks. You're finding resident activism among middle- and upper-class renters, too, among whom the big issues are security and maintenance."

Lending support to resident activism, he observes, "is the overall consumer movement itself, in which consumers are seeking greater protection for their rights in everything from safety in automobiles to fair interest figures on credit purchases and purity in the foods they eat."

It is this kind of satisfaction that Sally envisions for residents, declaring that he favors "many of the reforms the apartment residents are demanding," and he believes that "even further revision of the standard Chicago lease will be needed to give proper balance to the unequal relationship that started centuries ago when the lord of the manor ruled the roost, and his serfs did his bidding or else."

Sally also believes that many residents' problems can be avoided if prospective renters exercise good judgement before signing their leases. He cautions apartment residents: "It's your obligation to know what you're getting; don't leap before you look."

HE OFFERS this counsel:

- Examine the property carefully before renting the apartment. Does the general appearance of the building indicate that it is being well-maintained?
- Get complete information about garbage and refuse disposal and other building services. The condition of the washers and dryers and the cleanliness of a laundry room will generally demonstrate whether a building manager is concerned about the welfare of the residents; by the same token, much can be learned about the general attitudes and housekeeping of the existing residents.

• Be sure the security precautions in the building will give you a sense of well-being.

• Get complete information about the rules and regulations of the building; you will have to live with them.

• Investigate the utility companies that will be serving you; again, you may want assurance that you will be getting accustomed service.

• Check out the locations of the nearest supermarkets, places of worship, schools, libraries, playgrounds and other community services. Their lack of proximity can spell unhappiness.

Unraveling the mystery of financing a home

Some families who otherwise might own their own homes are stopped from taking that satisfying step because they do not understand what sources of financing are available to them.

A real estate broker can take some of the mystery out of the process by explaining various forms of financing. So can a banker or savings and loan officer.

Basically, there are three sources of loans on houses and other types of residential property: 1) financial institutions such as savings and loan associations and banks, 2) mortgage bankers and loan correspondents, and 3) the private lender.

By law, savings and loan associations must invest a high percentage of their depositors' savings in home mortgages. That was the reason for their creation. Banks also invest in home mortgages, though the percentage of their deposits used for this purpose is considerably smaller than the percentage applying to savings and loan associations. Together, these two are the principal sources for what is known as conventional financing.

Conventional financing is characterized by being the most readily available. Interest rates and length of time for repayment, as a result, reflect how large a money supply is available. In times of "tight money" when demand is greater than supply, interest rates rise and short term loans are favored. When money is plentiful, interest rates decline and loans are usual.

FEDERAL Housing Administration loans are made by conventional sources but with repayment guaranteed. Among rather strict conditions of the guarantee are certain standards of construction, space, inspection, and other requirements designed to be sure the property is not below a certain quality. The borrower pays an insurance fee, 1/2 of one percent of the amount of the loan, which goes into a general FHA fund. Any defaults are charged against the fund.

While this form of loan is usually referred to as "publicly assisted," in fact, the insurance fees of borrowers pay the entire cost of operating the program. No taxpayers' money is required. It is one of the few federal programs that has paid its own way, and has even made a profit.

Veterans Administration loans operate on the same principle as FHA, except that the borrower does not pay insurance.

Interest rates for both FHA and VA loans are set by the Congress. During times of "tight money" FHA loans are available only when sellers are willing to pay "points" as a bonus for agreeing to FHA financing. A "point" is 1 per cent of the amount of the loan. There are no "points" involved in VA financing.

FHA and VA financing have several advantages to the borrower, among them, up to 30 years to repay, no money down on VA loans, and modest down payments — up to about 10 per cent — on FHA loans.

MONEY from mortgage bankers or loan correspondents (usually, a Realtor or other real estate broker) is available directly from those sources. The money they channel into mortgages comes from insurance companies, pension funds, and individual investors. Down payment requirements are usually a little higher than for conventional financing, but interest rates are a fraction lower. Length of loans depend on the market and usually do not exceed 20 years.

The last source of financing, through private lenders, is Aunt Maude or some other individual who has a limited amount of money to loan. Often this is the source of funds for second mortgages. A second mortgage is in addition to the first mortgage and if there is a foreclosure, can only be satisfied after the first mortgage is paid off.

Second mortgages are usually for from three to five years and at a higher interest rate than first mortgages. Realtors often know of private lenders who will make second mortgage loans.

These are the sources of financing for home mortgages. Each has its advantages and disadvantages, partly depending on the condition of the real estate market and the availability of funds. All of them are designed to help families own their own homes, and the people who arrange them are anxious to see them used.

Executive seminar slated on property management

The first executive seminar on property management will be held Thursday, March 8, 1973 at the Holiday Inn in suburban Hillside.

Sponsored by the Renting & Management Division of the Chicago Real Estate Board, the all-day program is specifically tailored for directors of property management, vice-presidents and other top-level executives who are charged with policy decisions and implementation for property management. Leases, legal documents, human relations, subsidized housing and contracts will be examined in detail by speakers Albert H. Johnson, William D. Lyman, William D. Sally and Ernest D. Worsak.

Johnson, president of Albert H. Johnson Realty Co., will lead the discussion of management's role in subsidized housing. The National President of the Real Estate Management Brokers' Institute, Johnson conducts seminars nationwide on the management of low- and middle-income housing. He is chairman of the executive seminar on property management.

LYMAN is a loan officer of Percy Wilson Mortgage & Finance Corp. Lyman will lead the presentation of leases and legal documents. An attorney, Lyman is the major contributor to, and co-author of, the Landlord-Tenant Code prepared by the National Association of Real Estate Boards. His response to the model Uniform Landlord-Tenant Relations Act was printed in the Journal of Property Management Division of Baird & Warner, Inc., a member of the Advisory Council of the National Corporation of Housing Partnerships in Washington, D.C.

Worsak, president of Milton Worsak & Son, is vice-president of the Chicago Chapter of the Institute of Real Estate Management. He will direct the discussion on human relations. Worsak is a certified instructor of real estate management on the national level by I.R.E.M., and has published several articles on property management.

Worsak is chairman of the Board of Governors of the Renting & Management Division of C.R.E.B., of which the other three speakers are members.

The registration fee of $75.00 includes lunch, a special portfolio of materials, refreshments and all items incidental to the seminar. The seminar will begin at 8:30 a.m. and adjourn at 4:30 p.m. The number of registrations is limited and reservations will be acknowledged on a first come, first served basis. Interested persons should contact the C.R.E.B. office at 18 South Michigan Avenue, 60603.

Annen & Busse holds annual sales dinner

Annen & Busse Realtors celebrated their $35,000,000 sales year at their Annual Sales Dinner at Lancer's Steak House in Schaumburg, by honoring the members of their staff.

Plaques and bonus check awards were presented to more than half of the sales staff, including Million Dollar Sales Awards to fifteen members of the firm. Top Salesman of the Year Awards to the leading salesperson in each of the firm's four offices, Annen & Busse President's Award to those members of the firm with outstanding sales production, and humorous cartoon paintings to the two members of each office who led the individual offices in residential listings.

Special tribute was given Eileen Rodgers, who in 1972, joined an elite group in the real estate field by reaching a $2,000,000 sales mark.

The secretaries all received rose corsages and a standing ovation for their contribution to the firm's record sales year.

Cardinals heavily favored to take MSL championship by PAUL LOGAN Don Anderson is a confident man. His teams reflect this optimism whenever they swim. But Arlington's head coach doesn't tempt fate. It's no secret that — barring a major miracle — his Cardinals will be the Mid-Suburban League conference champs by around 10 p.m. Friday.

Undeclared and truly untested through the six-meet dual season, Arlington is expected to leave all the dramatics to such teams as Elk Grove and Prospect as they battle for the second-place position. The action gets under way at 7 p.m. with Hersey hosting the six schools at Olympic Pool. Preliminary diving will take place at 4 p.m. "It looks like physically we're in pretty good shape," said Anderson, always concerned that the unexpected — especially flu — might pop up. "We didn't swim exceptionally good Friday (against Hersey), but about where we should have. Most of the way we'll probably get two people in an event. That's what we've been doing all year."

This was how Arlington sank its six foes over the season: 67-28 over Prospect, 65-30 over Rolling Meadows, 73-22 over Forest View, 57-23 over Wheeling, 70-25 over Elk Grove and 73-20 over Hersey. One coach put it this way in describing the league showdown: "They (Cards) might not have as many winners as Forest View did last year. They also might not win big by as convincing a score. One thing's for certain — they'll win and do it impressively. Anderson's boys are plenty deep and very talented." The excitement for non-Arlington fans will come in watching the Grenadiers and Knights fighting for second. The Grenadiers of Coach Jim Harrington edged the Knights of Coach Jerry Lovejoy, 48-47, in the first meeting. But that dual meet didn't have Prospect's best diver — Paul Bollt — competing. "I'd say it's a tossup right now," said Lovejoy. "I have my best diver whom I didn't have before. That could be the difference. He's (Harrington) a little weak in diving. We're hoping to pull an upset and get by them."

Harrington, who holds the dual meet edge, one more victory than Prospect, heading into the conference meet, would only add that he thought his team was "going to do real well." Just ask champ 'Fitz'

A cement mattress helps by PAUL LOGAN Swimming Editor You've heard of firm mattresses, but a concrete one? That was the choice of Ed Fitzsimmons as he curled up several times near the steps of the Marmion Military Academy's pool balcony. Nobody in sight was catnapping on cement during the Suburban Catholic Conference showdown Saturday, but there was also a lack of two-time winners. "I'd just lay down and think how I was going to swim the 400 or 200," said the St. Viator distance swimmer. "I was really tired after the 200... I was glad there were a couple of heats in each event." Ed's brief rests enabled him to be the only individual double winner at the Aurora hosted meet. His victories in the 200 and 400 freestyles and a dramatic anchoring job in the 400 free relay paced the Lions of Coach John Fleck to a solid SCC championship. "Fantastic!" exclaimed Fleck in describing Fitzsimmons' performance. "He worked out hard this past summer. Last year his 1:58.0 was his best time in the district. He's dropped real fast." "Fitz" turned in a 1:53.2 in the 200-yard freestyle, just a heartbeat ahead of his Marmion competitor (1:54.3). He termed it his toughest event. "I told Ed to work that third 50 and that's where he started pulling away," said Fleck. "He swam a smart race." "The guy from Marmion had gotten ahead of me," recalled Fitzsimmons, who added that "mostly my conditioning" won the event. Five events and a nice rest later, "Fitz" was back on the block for the 400. Due to the lack of good distance men in the event, Fleck instructed him to "get out really fast and really psych them out." He did just that and continued to widen the lead for a winning time of 4:07.5. This is the first year "Fitz" has completely concentrated on the distance events after being a 100-yard backstroke and 100 freestyle. "His 200 is good but his 400 isn't right yet," pointed out Fleck. "His endurance just isn't there. He's got a lot more work as far as yardage goes." Since he's only a junior, "Fitz" plans to work on his specialties pretty hard to prepare for next year. Ed's been in the water since he was six. His parents taught him how just as they have done for his eight other brothers and sisters, two of whom swam for St. Viator — Jim and Dick. "We started out in swimming because mom wanted to keep us clean," revealed Ed. "Since we had to take a shower every day before swimming, it would keep us clean and also healthy." Probably still a growing young man at 5-foot-2, 150-pounds, "Fitz" used his longer arms to capture the most exciting event of the meet — the final relay. Trailing in the event as he entered the water, St. Viator's anchor man was thinking, "I didn't come here to lose." A fine final turn and his powerful arm pull allowed him to touch out Marmion by 2/10ths of a second. This was sweet revenge for the same team ripped St. Viator the year before in that event and took the title. "We were kind of up for the conference this year," added Ed, who was up when he had to be and on his stone mattress in between.

JETTING JEFF Iversen of St. Viator competes in the 100-yard freestyle event at the Suburban Catholic Conference championships Saturday. Iversen was the top finisher for the Lions in that event with a third-place time of 52.8. He also was a member of the winning 400 free relay team as St. Viator captured both the varsity and freshman meets going away.

MSL roundup

Prospect wins showdown

Three romps highlighted action last weekend in the final afternoon of dual meet action in the Mid-Suburban League.

Arlington easily kept its record perfect in conference swim meets with a crushing 75-20 victory over Hersey.

Elk Grove, only a loser to the powerful Cardinals, kept ahead of the rest of the league with an easy 69-25 win over Forest View. This left the Grenadiers with a 5-1 mark.

Finally, Prospect broke its tie with Wheeling with a 62-33 victory. This left the Knights with a 4-2 mark and the Wildcats with a 3-3 total.

Rolling Meadows was idle after winding up its season the previous week with a 2-4 record.

ARLINGTON MARCHES ON

Joe Nitch led the way for Coach Don Anderson's Cardinals with victories in the 200-yard freestyle (1:56.0) and the 400 freestyle (4:10.9). Arlington captured 10 of 11 events in the conference meet warmup.

Among the other winners was a fine clocking by Charlie Dunn in the 100 butterfly—57.2.

Hersey's only first came in the 100 freestyle (54.2).

GROVE HANDLES OLD FOE

The Bolln brothers combined for four individual wins in helping take care of Forest View. Brent took the 200 (1:59.4) and 400 (4:13.6) freestyles and Scott came through in the individual medley (2:13.7) and the breaststroke (1:06.7). They also participated in the medley relay victory.

Doug Schiack accounted for two of his team's four wins. He mastered the 50 (24.5) and 100 (54.7) freestyle events.

KNIGHTS WIN SHOWDOWN

Following a lopsided loss to Arlington and a one-point upset at the hands of Elk Grove earlier in the year, Prospect came on strong to defeat Wheeling after the two teams came into the meet tied for third.

Rick Fox, the area's premier sprinter, burned the rest of the field with a sparkling 22.0 in the 50 freestyle, one of the best times in the state. He also captured the 400 freestyle in a very fine 4:06.8 which demonstrated his versatility.

Tom Bennett also had double wins for the Knights of Coach Jerry Lovejoy—the 100 (53.4) and 200 (1:56.8) freestyles.

St. Viator has bad news for SCC; wins title easily

The Suburban Catholic Conference received some good news and some bad news at Saturday's swim meet hosted by Marmion Military Academy.

First, the good news — St. Viator's Mike Salerno, possibly the next state champion in the 100-yard backstroke, is graduating. He'll no longer terrorize SCC pools.

And now the bad news — the Lion sophomore team, paced by seven decisive event victories, crushed the frosh-soph competition at the same time the varsity was doing the same. These hungry young Lions will be filling in very nicely for their departing senior teammates.

Sophomore coach Bob Regan's youngsters rolled up 93 points to outdistance Marmion (70). They were followed by Marist (43), St. Patrick (33) and Notre Dame (21).

Mark Nelles and Sean Kenny were the big winners with two individual first-place performances apiece and partnerships on the two winning relays.

Kenny — joined by Bill Karavas, Jim Martin and Jim Currier — romped to an opening win in the 200 medley relay with a 1:53.8, almost five seconds ahead of St. Patrick's.

Nelles followed with a victory in the 200 freestyle with 2:01.5. Again it was a breeze for Marmion's swimmer could do no better than 2:06.0.

Kenny came back to take the 200 individual medley with a 2:17.8. His competition was teammate Tom Jacobsen with 2:22.1.

Following a second by Martin when he was just touched out, 24.7 to 24.9, in the 50 freestyle and a fourth by Tim McCarthy in diving (177.25), Martin rebounded to win the 100 butterfly. His 1:02.8 demolished his Marmion man's showing of 1:08.

Nelles put this team back in the winner's circle with a 4:21.6 in the 400 freestyle, almost 11 seconds ahead of his closest foe!

Kenny kept the 100 backstroke a St. Viator exclusive with a 1:06.0. His Marmion opponent went 1:08.

The 100 breaststroke proved to be a controversial event. A St. Patrick swimmer appeared to have a false start, but it wasn't called, according to St. Viator head coach John Fleck. Karavas, in the adjoining lane, noticed the movement and shifted his weight to his heels, expecting a restart. It didn't come and the gun fired.

Karavas went off a little late and never could completely catch up. The St. Pat swimmer touched him out, 1:11.0 to 1:11.2.

The St. Viator 400 freestyle relay team — possibly fired up by the bad luck of Karavas — won an exciting race with a 3:52.1 with Marmion a splash behind at 3:52.4. Making up the team were Dave Scanlon, King, Jacobsen and Nelles.

Roundup

Prospect splits frosh-soph tests

Prospect's frosh-soph team saw the most action over the weekend, winning and losing in the process.

Wheeling, helped by victories in the 200 (2:04.9) and 400 (4:25.3) freestyles by Dan Woodruff, defeated the Knights 53-42.

Top scorers of the losers were Brad Bussio in the individual medley (2:27.9) and the breaststroke (1:13.0) and Gary Elchhorst in the 50 (25.8) and 100 (56.5) freestyles.

This same twosome led the Knights to victory the next day against Lake Forest for a 57-37 victory. Elchhorst won the 200 (2:08.3) and 400 (4:35.5) and Bussio the individual medley (2:13.7) and breaststroke (1:13.2).

Rob Carstens paced Arlington over Hersey, 67-38, with his efforts in the butterfly (1:02.9) and backstroke (1:03.2).

The Huskies had two double winners — Craig Bruce in the 50 (24.7) and 100 (56.1) and Chris Tague in the 200 (2:06.9) and 400 (4:31.1).

Forest View handled Elk Grove, 59-36, as two Falcons came through with doubles — Kevin Redig in the individual medley (2:26.0) and the 400 (4:20.3) and Jim Rohn in the 50 (26.0) and butterfly (1:07.1).

Hawks bag big one! slam Skyway power

by ART MUGALIAN

Roger Bechtold shook hands all around. People just wanted to congratulate him.

His Harper Hawks had turned in a dazzling performance on the Wheeling High School court by scalping the Chiefs of Waubesa, 96-83, Tuesday night.

Waubesa, coached by Ray Lump, came into the contest with a Skyway Conference record of 10-2. Harper, now 8-5 in league play, handed the Chiefs their third loss by constantly applying the offensive pressure and maintaining a stiff zone defense.

"We had control of the ball game most of the way," Bechtold beamed. "We ran the offense very well. They really worked it in well to Felipe."

Scott Felipe was the big mover for the Hawks, as he has been so often this season. He drilled 12 field goals from every conceivable spot on the court, but the 6-0 guard was most impressive on his driving layup.

Harper started slowly as the teams traded baskets in the early going.

"We started kind of sluggish," Bechtold agreed. "It concerned me tonight, because we've been sluggish before at the start. I tried to stay on them and get them to hustle, get them going."

The Hawks weren't hitting the boards in the opening minutes, but once Bechtold got on them, they began to play. Dave Schmitt, the 6-foot-8 center, started rebounding aggressively. Up to that point, the Chiefs' Gus Harvell and Greg Janus had dominated the backboards.

A hucklet by Janus at 1:42 of the 1st half gave Waubesa a 41-38 lead, but only for a moment. Baskets by Felipe, Don Lewan, and Greg Reynolds and a free throw by Felipe gave Harper a 45-41 half time margin, a lead they were to increase in the second half of the game.

Steve Heldt, another of the Hawks' big men this season, had a fine 1st half with 15 points, but he missed the rest of the game with a sprained ankle.

"He could have played," Bechtold said of Heldt, "but we didn't want to risk it. I didn't want to chance a re-injury."

"Heldt kept us going in the 1st half when we were down," Bechtold continued.

When the second half began, the Hawks were ready. Schmitt came on strong with a dozen of his 16 points and Felipe tallied 18 of his 29.

And 6-6 Chuck Neary did his share. The big freshman scored nine second half points and made some big plays.

Bechtold was full of praise for all his players.

"Chuck Neary did a job of clutch re-bouncing and shooting right when we needed it."

"Don Lewan picked us up early with his clutch shooting."

And when Scott Felipe's name is mentioned, the Hawks' coach can only shake his head in amazement.

"It was just beautiful. It was a well-played game."

The Chiefs' top scorer was Janus with 20 points, though three others hit double figures — Harvell (17), Charlie Koch (15) and Randy Loring (14).

For Harper, behind Felipe's 29 points, were Lewan and Schmitt with 16 each, Heldt with 15, and Neary with a dozen.

Bechtold tried to explain his team's ups and downs this year.

"Maybe it's mental readiness," he ventured. "That may be my fault — I haven't gotten them prepared. But you lose a few close games and it hurts your mental attitude. You win a few and it gets you up."

Bechtold hopes his team stays up for the rest of the year. He likes to shake lots of hands.

Shooters sharp in Conant's win

by A STAFF WRITER

Conant found a new way to win a basketball game Tuesday night.

The Cougars have lived by rebounding and defense in most of their 13 victories this season (they have six losses). But Tuesday at Harvard — a little farming community that is the final stop on the Chicago and North Western railroad line — Conant employed a weapon that has not been among its stronger suits.

That would be shooting. Conant shot a respectable 45 per cent from the floor and had a fine night from the line (where they have had even more problems) with 14 for 18 on the way to a 62-48 triumph over the Hornets.

Nike Atkocallis, 5-10 guard, led the sniping with 18 points for the Cougars and saw to it that they never trailed. He staked the visitors to a 10-8 lead in the first quarter by hitting his first seven shots from outside.

"He also had three steals and some assists, he anticipated and he hustled," said coach Dick Redlinger of Atkocallis. "It was the best I've ever seen him."

Conant didn't exactly run away with it, but gradually expanded a five-point lead after one quarter and outscored Harvard in every period. The margin might have been greater, but Redlinger rested his front line after it played a little more than half the game.

The Cougars did continue their custom of controlling the boards, too. Roger Sander led with 12 rebounds and Steve Irion, Dave Sutherland and Tracy Robertson also helped.

"We forced them to take a lot of outside shots," said Redlinger of his zone defense. "One kid hit four in a row from the corner but we stopped them after that. They only got five baskets from within 15 feet."

"Robertson was our offense in the third quarter. He came in and hit four straight."

Tracy ended up with 13 points, second only to Atkocallis for the Cougars.

Conant will travel to Glenbard North for a Mid-Suburban League game Friday night.

State approves grid playoffs in high school

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Illinois High School Association said Wednesday a majority of its member schools have approved statewide football playoffs in five classes of competition, effective in the fall of 1974.

The IHSA said it sent out ballots on the question to its 778 schools on Jan. 30. With a simple majority needed to carry, the vote was 400-209 to have football playoffs in five classes of competition, the IHSA said.

Under the plan submitted to schools, the IHSA will provide a football playoff series in five classes, based on school enrollment.

Forest View gymnasts flat

"I think it was the biggest letdown of our season," Forest View gymnastics coach Gay Hughes moaned. His Falcons, having posted their second-best score in the school's history only one week ago, stumbled before Wheaton North, 108-02 to 107-02, Tuesday evening.

"I think we took Wheaton for granted," Hughes continued. "We thought we could beat them all along, especially since we hit our best score of the season (115.48) last week. This was a tough one to take."

Hughes looked back at every event and "found" the single point that cost Forest View a victory. "It could have come from anywhere," he said, but it didn't.

Forest View launched the meet in strong fashion with Steve Rohn (7.75), Chet Szostek (8.7) and Don Lanham (8.6) combining for a 21.05 in free exercise. The side horse and horizontal bar teams were sub-par, though, despite Mark Ohlman's 5.55 and Lanham's 8.65, respectively.

Szostek's 5.7 and Rich Valentine's 5.5 earned Forest View its normal 15.45 on tramp, but Ken Gawne's 6.05 was the lone pleasant surprise on parallel bars which dipped to 16.55.

Lanham completed his five events to qualify for all-around with a nifty 7.95 on rings and averaged 6.12 for his work-horse lead. History repeated itself on the freshman-sophomore level as the Falcons fell short, 47.00 to 48.58.

Veris, who Maine East coach Ron Davitt calls one of America's best, is top-ranked in four events among all Illinois swimmers.

Nearly a one-man team, he leads all Illinois prepsters in 200 freestyle (1:44.3), 200 individual medley (2:01.8), 100 freestyle (48.5) and 400 freestyle (3:46.8). And he's ninth in 100 backstroke with a best clocking of 57.4 seconds.

He's accompanied by so much Cowboy

Polz has covered the distance in 1:04.3 seconds, three-tenths faster than Rusk's best which he recorded against East last weekend.

The Blue Demons, incidentally, won that meet, 59-36 and finished 6-6 for the dual meet season. North stopped at 3-10.

Polz and Rusk aren't assured top placings at Friday's meet. That's because Deerfield's Paul Najt (1:03) and Highland Park's Chip Tom (1:04) have Illinois' quickest prep clockings.

Maine West's Larry Bierwirth ordinarily would have the best shot at a Central Suburban individual title. Unfortunately, he'll probably bump up against NTW's Veris in the 100 and 200 freestyles.

Bierwirth has a 1:50.2 clocking in the 200, good for 10th in the state and second fastest among all conference swimmers. But Veris, as shown above, has gone the same distance nearly six seconds faster.

West's leading Warrior probably rates a better chance at cutting down Veris in the 100 freestyle. There, Veris has been 48.5 while Bierwirth's 50.1 leaves him ninth in state.

Once again, they're one-two in the Central Suburban League.

The Warriors concluded their dual meet season last weekend by outpointing Maine South, 51-44. Maine West recorded a surprising 9-2 mark this winter.

Now Trier's strength has come from tremendous help behind Veris, much of it by Neil Hanson and Bruce McDonald.

Hanson has Illinois' fourth quickest clocking (50.4) in 100 backstroke. He's third (51.1) in 100 butterfly, seventh (22.6) in 50 freestyle and ninth (2:07.5) in 200 individual medley.

McDonald is the state's fourth speediest 400 freestyler, having covered the yardage with a personal best of 3:53.7.

Other top swimmers at this meet will include Glenbrook North's Scott Andrews. He's 10th state ranked (2:07.9) in 200 individual medley and sixth (55.1) in 100 butterfly.

Maine South's David Dale (50.5) is the league's third quickest 100 freestyler behind Veris and Bierwirth. He's ranked 10th statewide.

New Trier West should sweep both relay events. The Cowboys are No. 2 state ranked in the 200 medley relay, having done it in 1:42.0.

In 400 freestyle relay, the Cowboys are third at 3:21.3, just one second behind state leading Thornwood. Glenbrook North (3:26.0) is ranked 11th.

talent that New Trier West is being given a good chance to dethrone Hinsdale Central at the March 2-3 IHSAA state finals.

Davitt and other CSL coaches admit Friday's 7 p.m. CSL meet is really just a battle for second place plus a scattering of individual honors.

Davitt said Glenbrook North, Deerfield and the host Highland Park Little Giants probably rate the best chances at finishing runner-up.

He figures his own swimming club at about seventh or eighth among the dozen CSL schools. Maine West should finish higher and North lower.

East's only serious competitors for individual honors will be divers Glen Sedjo and Tom McKervy. Safely figure they'll finish one-two or two-one.

If the Blue Demons could enter a third water alicer in Lance Gabriel, they'd probably pull down the top three CSL spots.

Gabriel is Maine East's modern day "Who's He?" In his own right, the kid's a tremendous diver. But nobody ever hears a word from him because Sedjo and McKervy are among Illinois' best.

Just last weekend, for instance, Sedjo scored 257.35 and McKervy 243.95 in a dual meet against Maine North. Randy Nelson finished third for North in official placings with 137.35 points.

But sitting there at 234.00 was East's Gabriel. Oddly, prep swimming regulations do not allow a 1-2-3 sweep in any event.

So Gabriel's no better known than the inventor of peanut butter. But the senior diver is third ranked in the Herald area. Behind Sedjo and McKervy.

Maine North's best possibilities for individual honors are Don Polz and Jeff Rusk in the 100 breaststroke. They've swum to fourth and sixth respectively in the most recent state rankings.

Lake Forest falls victim to Prospect

Nine firsts helped Prospect swamp Lake Forest Saturday afternoon, 71-24, at Koop's Pool.

Accounting for six individual victories were these Knights — Tom Bennett in the 200 (2:05.8) and 400 (4:32.3) freestyles, Dave Larsen in the individual medley (2:15.1) and butterfly (1:02.0), and Rick Fox in the 50 (22.5) and 100 (55.4) freestyles.

Jeff Young registered the other individual win with is showing in the breaststroke (1:07.6).

Young joined Chris Prinslow, Larsen and Greg Walshwell in taking the 200 medley relay (1:52.6).

The 400 free relay of Walshwell, Mike Barone, Don Kinnaman and Kent Dexter also won (4:08.4).

Posting seconds were these Knights: Jim Lyon in the 200 (2:07.2) and 400 (4:33.4), Paul Bolit in diving, Al Armbrust in the butterfly (1:12.1), Steve Forton in the 100 free (59.8) and Prinslow in the backstroke (1:01.7).

Recording point-producing thirds were this foursome:

Barone in the individual medley (2:31.6), Walshwell in the 50 free (28.2), Kinnaman in diving and Forton in the breaststroke (1:19.7).

Wheeling, Hersey on radio Friday

Wheeling's first visit to Hersey will be spotlighted Friday night on WWM-FM of Arlington Heights.

The Mid-Suburban League battle, always a crowd-pleasing attraction, is a crucial game in the North Division race.

Wheeling must keep winning in the North to maintain any hopes of catching Arlington. The Cardinals lead the Wildcats by only one game with two remaining, but the leaders must also visit Hersey on Friday, Feb. 23.

WWM-FM Sports Director and Herald Sports Editor Bob Frisk will be at the microphone Friday evening at eight o'clock. WWM-FM is located at 92.7 on the FM dial.

SHOWING THE FORM that gives Prospect high hopes for the future is diver Don Kinnaman. He and Paul Bolit, also a junior, should give Coach Jerry Lovejoy good depth in that event next season. Kinnaman finished third (1:59.4) and Bolit first (1:01.4) as the Knights defeated Wheeling in a battle for third place Friday, 62-33.

NORTH'S BEST HOPES. You're looking at tall Don Polz and not-quite-so-tall Jeff Rusk, Maine North's top contenders for individual honors at this weekend's Central Suburban League varsity championship swimming meet. Polz and Rusk are ranked four-six respectively among all Illinois prep swimmers in the 100 breaststrokes. Polz has gone 1:04.3 and Rusk 1:04.6. But Deerfield's Paul Najt (1:03.0) leads the state and is trailed by Highland Park's Chip Tom (1:04.0). Thus, Polz and Rusk will have a battle at the 7 p.m. Friday CSL finals. The meet will be staged at Highland Park.

Rangers 5, Leafs 1 — John Pratt's pair of goals and an assist led the Rangers to victory over the Leafs. Single goals were scored by Tom Hollingsworth, Doug Vaska, and K. Hagland. Assisting on these goals was Greg Marquette, Bob Peterson, Doug Peterson, and John Campbell. Sing Leafs goal went to Ted Glazowski with an assist to Steve Albuch.

Flames 4, Canadiens 1 — A pair of goals by Wilbur Conway and single markers to Scott Harrington and Gary Zarko gave the Flames a win over the Canadiens. Assisting were Dave Miller, Brian Anderson, Ed Byrnes, and Jim Nordin. The Canadiens only goal was scored by Glenn Poyer assisted by Pete Wasserman and John Gallagher.

Kings 2, Oilers 1 — Goals by Randy Voss and Mike Sarich gave the Kings a win. Assistants were by Joe Moreirell, Mike Shanley, Mike Mondelky, and Mark Chihir. The Oilers goal went to Frank Plunkett assisted by Bob Atkinson and Ken Emerich.

Allen's other totals

Dick Allen of the Chicago White Sox last year had some interesting statistics besides his 37 home runs, 113 runs batted in and .308 average that won him the American League's Most Valuable Player or award. He stole 19 bases, third-highest total on the team, and struck out 126 times, most for a Sox player.

Brighter in sunshine

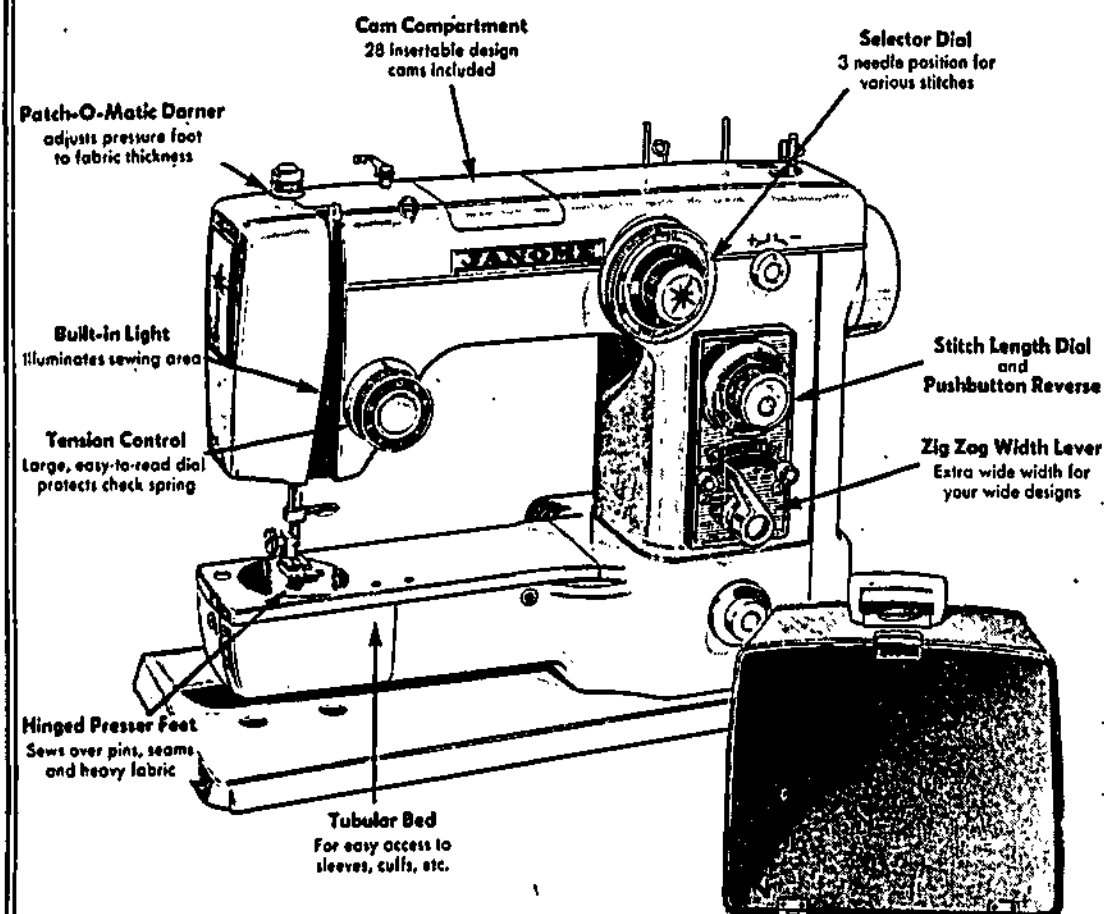

The American League's Most Valuable Player last season, Dick Allen of the White Sox, has been known as a night person but enjoys daylight much more on the baseball field. In day games in 1972 he hit for a .331 average with 23 home runs and 64 runs batted in. After dark, though, his average was .261 with only 14 homers and 49 RBI.

Feb. 28 issue to honor Gershwin

The U.S. Postal Service will issue an 8-cent commemorative stamp honoring George Gershwin, American composer, Feb. 28. First day ceremonies will be held in Beverly Hills, Calif., in conjunction with the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers.

Gershwin, composer of some 400 songs, won world acclaim in 1924 for his "Rhapsody in Blue," a symphonic treatment of jazz. His American folk opera, "Porgy and Bess" has become a classic although early critics dubbed his effort a "fake" and Gershwin himself did not live to see it attain its rightful place. He died in 1937 at age 38.

The stamp, which will be semi-jumbo in size, will be printed 40 stamps to a pane on the Androctil press and will carry six plate numbers. Designed by Mark English of Georgetown, Conn., it depicts a Gershwin profile and a montage of figures from "Porgy and Bess." It is to be the first stamp in the American Arts series.

Collectors desiring first day cancellations should address their requests to "Gershwin Stamp, Postmaster, Beverly Hills, Calif., 90211" enclosing the proper remittance which is the cost of the stamps to be affixed.

THIS SEEMS to be the year for speculation... and before we tote up the score we'll inch out a bit further on this rather creaky limb...

The Summer Olympics will be held in 1978 in our neighboring city of Montreal, Que., Canada and already others are speculating about how the Summer Games will be financed.

Seems there is an idea afoot in our northern climes to issue special coinage at a cost below face value, then sell the coins to collectors for face value and turn the difference over to the Olympic Committee. The assumption is that buyers won't put them into general circulation since the denominations might be $3, $5 and $10.

Might the Canada Post Office get the same idea? I wouldn't be a bit surprised.

AN EARLY speculation on the issuance of a stamp commemorating the late President Lyndon B. Johnson proved correct and we thank the readers who took the time to send congratulatory notes. On the basis of one guess, the score totals 100 per cent. (I should quit while I'm ahead.)

As for the instances where we have not had a living ex-President, that's a bit tougher. Floyd Kalber of NBC News noted this was only the fourth time in our history this has occurred and the Herald's editorial chief concurred. The speculation — that it might be unusual not have a living ex-President — seems correct but led to another question... when did those four times occur? That sent me back to the research books and, hopefully, next week, the answer.

ALSO, next week, results of our "Curiosity Survey No. 2."

THE UNITED Nations Postal Administration has announced the last day of sale for the World Health Day Stamp will be April 7.

The "Art on United Nations Stamps" souvenir card sold out at the close of business Dec. 4, 1972.

Collecting Coins

by Mort Reed

As a new concept in type collecting, the U.S. Numistamp idea is extremely popular. New collectors find the idea of putting together a complete set of U.S. coin types via the numistamp series is much simpler than trying to assemble an entire set of 119 coins, many of which are almost impossible to acquire.

Collectors agree that being able to see the obverse and reverse designs at the same time makes an explanation of the difference between two types of a single major issue comparatively easy.

To demonstrate this reasoning, take a look at the Shield nickel of 1866. The first issue that year contained rays between each of the 13 stars encircling the large figure "5" on the reverse. Shortly after the 1867 mintage was under way the rays were removed. Why is anybody's guess, but it created a second design type or a Type I and Type II.

The shield nickel was discontinued in 1863 with the issuance of the Liberty head design. Here again, an oversight caused two types to be produced with the same date. The Type III or first Liberty head failed to show the word CENTS on the reverse with the space immediately under the wreath being occupied by the motto E PLURIBUS UNUM.

THIS LITTLE deletion caused endless circulation problems for the Treasury department and later the same year the reverse was redesigned to display the word cents properly and relocate the motto just above the wreath.

In 1913 a similar miscalculation caused two "Buffalo" nickels to be issued and a temporary metallurgical hangup fathered two major types of the Jefferson nickel in 1942. Consequently, there are eight types.

While every effort has been made to maintain accuracy in the configuration, the depth is deliberately increased to a semi high relief not experienced by the coin itself. For example, the outline of Liberty's head is identical to that of the prototype, but at its highest point the contour of the facial features rises slightly above the heights of the rim.

The same effect has been given to the Indian head and the Lincoln head in the six-piece one-cent series.

SINCE THE point of distribution of the U.S. Numistamp has been changed from British Columbia, Canada, to a more central point here in the United States, fewer complaints have been received regarding late or delayed delivery. Write United States Numistamps, 300 West National Road, Vandalia, Ohio 45377.

Type IV U.S. Nickel

There are 119 different designs involved in all of the coins issued by the United States since 1793 from the half-cent through the double-eagle or 20-dollar gold piece.

In its entirety, a type set of United States Numistamps will contain one metal stamp for each of the 119 pieces. By comparison an eight-piece set of uncirculated nickels for a nickel type set would cost close to $241.50. An eight-piece numistamp nickel series is about $36 postpaid.

Veterans' News

Q — I was recently discharged from the service and am now working for a tile setter, learning the business. Is there any way that I can qualify for on-the-job training under the GI Bill?

A — From your nearest VA office obtain application 21E-1990. Fill it out completely and return it to that VA office along with copies of your separation papers from the service (DD 214), and birth and marriage certificates (if the latter apply). Your state approving agency (usually the Department of Education) for such training will take it from there and determine whether or not your job qualifies. If it does, VA will send you benefit checks allotted for such training.

Q — I am a veteran, aged 46, and I have cancer. I am unable to work and must stay in bed 100 per cent of the time.

Can I get any financial assistance from the Veterans Administration?

A — You may apply for a pension which is allowed to qualified war time veterans whose annual income does not exceed $3,800. For further information, contact your nearest VA office, or the VA office where you know your records are located.

Q — If a veteran sells his home and his GI loan is assumed by the buyer, can his eligibility be restored so he can buy another house on a GI loan?

A — No. Entitlement can be restored only if both the following conditions are met: (1) The original GI loan has been paid in full; and (2) the home was disposed of due to compelling reasons such as health, destruction by hazard, condemnation and under certain conditions of transfer for employment.

Social Security and You

Q. Is it too late for me to send in 1971 medical bills to Medicare?

A. It is too late to send in any bills concerning services received between January, 1971, and September, 1971. However, you can still send bills for services received in October, November and December, 1971. Claims for services received between October, 1971, and September, 1972, must be sent in to Medicare no later than Dec. 31, 1973.

Q. I read that Congress passed a bill stating that all prescriptions are now covered under Medicare. Is this true?

A. Not it is not true. You probably read that this was being discussed by the congressmen. Medicare does not pay for prescriptions or drugs you can administer yourself — such as insulin.

Q. Last year I told the people at the Social Security office that I intended to earn $1,800 in 1972. Today I received my W-2 form from my employer and it shows gross wages of $1,800 for 1972. Do I still have to submit an annual report to social security?

A. Yes. Anyone who received at least one social security check and had gross earnings more than $1,600 in 1972 must make an Annual Report of earnings to social security by April 15, 1973. (NOTE: In 1973 the allowable amount of earnings has been increased to $2,100 so only those people earning more than that in 1973 will have to file annual reports before April 15, 1974.)

The Doctor Says...by Dr. Lawrence Lamb

No cholesterol in coconuts

Dear Dr. Lamb — In one of your columns you recently said that vegetables did not contain cholesterol. Ordinarily I've found your information to be both interesting and factual but in this instance it appears that you've overlooked the fact that one plant product that is high in cholesterol is the common coconut and because many of the coffee cream substitutes are based on coconut products they should be avoided even though no such information appears on the label.

Dear Reader — Coconut oil does not contain one single drop of cholesterol and I'll be happy to be quoted on that anywhere. The confusion results from the point that saturated fats, and coconut oil is high in saturated fat, stimulate the body to form cholesterol. This is the reason that it is not recommended to use coconut oil. This is quite different from saying that coconut oil contains cholesterol.

Our body normally forms cholesterol. Apparently it will form excess amounts of cholesterol and cause excess amounts of cholesterol and fatty particles in the blood stream in people who eat too much of almost any type of food, including too much carbohydrates, and all kinds of fats.

Incidentally, a synonym for coconut oil by the food companies is often "vegetable oil." Too, if you want to avoid coconut oil don't buy products that simply say "vegetable oil" because it very often means coconut oil.

Why do food manufacturers use coconut oil? Because it's saturated and therefore doesn't become rancid so early and that means the shelf-life of the product will be longer. The coffee whiteners and artificial creamers that are used by many people to avoid the saturated fats that are in cream contain coconut oil which is rich in saturated fat and defeats that purpose for using it.

I've had several letters from people challenging my statement about coconut oil and cholesterol. I hope that this reply will clarify the matter.

However, there is so much public confusion about blood fats, cholesterol and what should be in the diet that I suppose this is an overly optimistic expectation on my part.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Is it true that fertilized eggs are more healthful than unfertilized eggs because they contain hormones that help to utilize any cholesterol that may be in the eggs? Do fertilized eggs contain more vitamins than unfertilized eggs?

Dear Reader — Pure stuff and nonsense and shades of quackery. It's a real shame that the beneficial effects from good nutrition and eating properly have to be sabotaged by unscientific and just plain downright untruths that are used to bilk the gullible public.

About the only way that a fertilized egg is going to contain more hormones is to keep it around long enough until the chick embryo develops far enough to have its own developing endocrine system.

Since most people don't care for eggs at this stage of their development, I doubt that's going to catch on. There is no advantage to eating fertilized eggs over the standard, good quality eggs that can be obtained in any supermarket.

American Indian — a victim of society

(This column is presented by Forest Hospital in Des Plaines, a fully accredited 135-bed psychiatric hospital widely known for its intensive programs in psychiatric treatment, research, education and community service.)

The problem with the American Indian is that he wants to be left alone — away from the values of middle class society that have harmed him. "The American Indian today," said Dr. Carl Hammerschlag, psychiatrist with the Indian Health Service, "suffers from a high rate of alcoholization and family disintegration. These problems stem from what's going on in this country today."

"We have a myth that says all people are capable of becoming what they are capable of being. We don't recognize that some people are more capable of getting than others. Indians have gotten nothing — they've been taken away from."

Dr. Hammerschlag said that if one looks at the problem of today's American Indian he must look at it in the historical view of disenfranchisement.

"Initially the Department of War was responsible for global care of the Indian people. Then the Bureau of Indian Affairs was created. This essentially took care of the Indian people from cradle to grave. But in the giving of housing, health and education one takes away."

"The mere act of giving emphasizes one's ability to give and the other's dependency — it's a re-creation of the slave-master syndrome. Other people doing things for you disallows you for doing things yourself. That is disillusioning and reinforces your sense of powerlessness."

"THE INDIAN movement is saying: 'we don't have to be power driving, striving aggressive, self-steering and competitive,'" Dr. Hammerschlag continued. "We value our traditional culture which has as much or more to offer. We don't want to have to accept what you give us."

What about the alcoholism and the family disintegration? "I don't think the way to deal with these problems," Dr. Hammerschlag said, "is through psychotherapy where patients discuss their personal problems in living. We should, rather, deal with the underlying issues of which these are symptomatic expressions."

"The cure for alcoholism and family disintegration lies in the dealing with the institution of racism and poverty and the recognition that American Indians have been deprived."

"Americans," Dr. Hammerschlag added, "must become aware of what the issues are that the American Indian is involved in and the American Indian must be supported in his causes."

"Gadzooks!" swore the villainous Sir Mordred. "I know you always win in battle because your heart is pure. Why do your finesses also have to work?"

The noble Galahad had just won another rubber at the square table that stood alongside the round table so that King Arthur's knights could play bridge when not off jousting, hunting the Holy Grail or rescuing damsels in distress.

"This wasn't a finesse," replied Galahad. "It was a certainty."

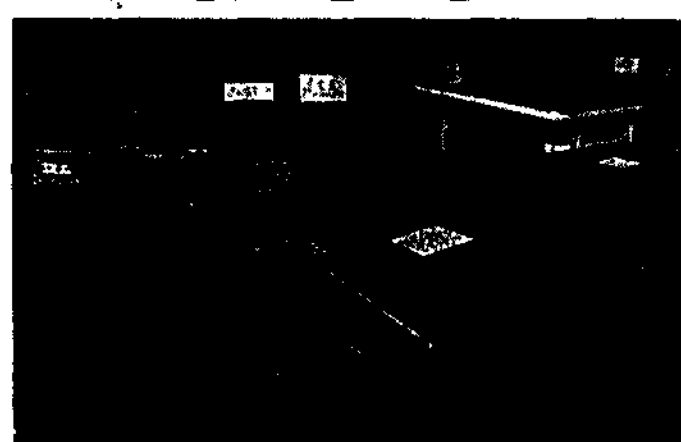

Mordred had led ace, king and a third heart. East had ruffed and Galahad overruffed. Galahad's next play had been the king of trumps. Mordred had won and led the suit back.

The pure in heart drew Mordred's last trump, ran off the three good diamond tricks, played dummy's ace of clubs; led another club and finessed his jack.

Can you readers see why this finesse was certain to work? It was certain to work because when East trumped the third heart it meant that West had dealt six hearts. West had also played three spades and three diamonds and followed to the first club. Therefore West could not hold another club and East had to hold the queen.

The Hollywood Scene

by Vernon Scott

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The world "Mafia" was excised from the biggest movie of the year, "The Godfather," but little old television isn't afraid of the mob and uses the term freely in "Honor Thy Father."

The two-hour film adaptation of the best-selling book not only uses the term Mafia, it also names characters involved in the underworld.

Shot on location in New York for CBS, the television movie follows the eight-year-Bonanno war, culminating in the death of Joe "Bananas" Bonanno and the arrest of his son, Bill.

DIRECTOR PAUL WENDKOS did not know what to expect when he began filming in Manhattan. But since "The Godfather" the Mafia look upon themselves as folk heroes, according to Wendkos.

"We got all the cooperation in the world," he said. "There were no threats or obstructions."

"It seems the underworld has come to think of itself in the same light as the bandits of old — Jesse James and the rest. They figure movies and television shows about them are sort of an honor."

SUCH WAS NOT Wendkos' intent for the film, which will be aired March 1.

"This is not 'The Godfather' or 'The Valachi Papers.' This is the powerful story of a young man with one foot firmly planted in American traditions and values and the other in the world of Mafia loyalty and honor," said Wendkos.

"Bill Bonanno always had an ambivalent feeling about following in his father's footsteps. He was part of organized crime through association with his father, but he tried to keep his marriage and children out of it."

It's a story of character dynamics.

We focus on the disintegration of his family life.

MOTION PICTURES allow all the violence audiences can stand. Television, thanks to fear of the FCC, has restrictions on the amount and kind of mayhem and bloodshed allowed on the tube.

Inasmuch as dozens of gangsters were wiped out during the Bonanno war, Wendkos couldn't very well gloss over the killings.

"Violence is inherent in mob warfare," Wendkos said. "We were aware of that. But it has been pushed into the background. A story like this doesn't need slow-motion deaths and bodies all over the place."

"We've tried the documentary approach to authenticity. But we don't belong to the death-is-beautiful school."

"Bill Bonanno is a bright young man caught up in a web of ironic circumstances. It's the day-in-day-out life story of a young man who was taught to honor his father and his way of life, but who saw the better, decent side of American life."

"The fact that his father was one of the great dons of the Mafia who encouraged the envy of his fellow dons in all parts of the story."

"Some 20 or 30 deaths — maybe more — resulted from the gang warfare. Even now Bill Bonanno is in jail for a crime that had nothing to do with the Mafia. It's a ballet of irony."

DuBrow on TV...by Rick DuBrow

'Today' to recap the years for POWs

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — NBC-TV's "Today" series is planning a special two-hour program recapitulating national and world events for returning POWs of the Vietnam conflict.

Titled "While You Were Away," it will be broadcast on the network Feb. 22.

Says NBC-TV: "Film and video tape spanning the last eight years will cover the complete spectrum of life in the United States and elsewhere in the world," ranging from political to social developments, and reporting on such lighter matters as sports as well.

The network says the daily morning series, in this special program, will review "events of general interest, such as elections and moonwalks."

AND THE LIGHTER material, in addition to sports, will deal with such subjects as "changes in fashion and hair styles for women and men."

There will be a look at "the literary scene, books that have been published in the interim, new magazines, and old familiar publications that have vanished."

NBC-TV says another segment will offer "a wide-ranging panel discussion of transformations in our society."

Adds the network: "A kinescope of the program will be made available and the Defense Department is providing a list of 31 hospitals to which the POWs will be returned and to which the film will be sent, so that it can be viewed at later dates."

NBC-TV SAYS it is also planning to present, next month, an hour drama examining the issue of amnesty in regard to those who went into exile to avoid military service in the Vietnam War.

Scheduled for the afternoon of Sunday, March 11, the play, "Duty Bound," is, according to the network, "presented in the form of a trial" and "tells the story of a draft dodger... who returns from Canada and gives himself up for failing to report for induction."

And NBC-TV's announcement says the television audience is asked to vote its verdict by mailing responses to: The National Council of Churches, Broadcasting and Film Commission, P.O. Box 650, New York, N.Y. 10027.

Written by Allan Sloane, "Duty Bound" is a public affairs offering of the network, produced by the Television Religious Programs Unit of NBC News in association with the commission of the National Council of Churches to which responses can be mailed.

SAYS NBC-TV: "The essence of the drama... the call to duty and its complexity in a free society... is revealed in the course of the exile's hearing. Significant voices of current American attitudes toward draft evaders are heard as witnesses appear for and against him."

Producer-director Martin Roade says: "The play is a trial, but 'Duty Bound' contains no verdict. The enabling form in which amnesty may be granted in America aside, the American people in their collective wisdom will decide whether to grant amnesty or deny it. The verdict, we hope, will be expressed by the television audience jury."

"It is our intent that the play will add to the information upon which an informed citizenry will make this difficult decision."

The Lighter Side

by Dick West

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Well, well, what have we here? Why, bless my soul, it's another international monetary crisis.

Or maybe it's the same international monetary crisis we had last time, which everybody forgot about for awhile.

That's one of my shortcomings. I confess I'm unable to tell one international monetary crisis from another.

Half the time I wouldn't even know we were having an international monetary crisis if it weren't for George Shultz over at the Treasury Department.

Shultz calls me up and says, "Hey, man." And I say, "Hey, man." And he says, "Do you know what?" And I say, "No, what?" And he says, "We're having ourselves another international monetary crisis, that's what."

I say, "You mean like those European currency speculators are dumping dollars again, despite all we've done for them, like helping them recover from world war deuce and protecting them from communism and all like that?"

And Shultz says, "You got it."

I guess those dollar-dumpers must be about the biggest bunch of ingrates on earth. When it comes to making themselves unpopular, they're right up there in the same league with stock market profit-takers.

Every time the stock market gets a good rally going, profit-takers move in and put a damper on it. Which is the same spirit of sportsporting that prompts dollar-dumpers to disrupt the stability of the world money market.

THE WORST part of it is that it sets a bad example at a time when President Nixon is trying to impress Congress with the need for fiscal restraint.

"You can't solve problems by throwing money at them," Nixon has said.

That goes for dumping money on them too.

The trouble is that when congressmen see Europeans dumping dollars willy-nilly, they feel they should be allowed the same privilege.

A NUMBER of remedies have been suggested for coping with the monetary crisis, among them an import surtax and revaluations of foreign currencies.

Or Nixon could simply impound the dollars that speculators have acquired overseas. But these would be only temporary holding actions.

In the long run, some type of currency reform will be necessary to stabilize the international monetary situation.

Like maybe removing the "In God We Trust" inscription from the dollar bill and replacing it with a "No Dumping" sign.

New Brando film looks like a smash

NEW YORK — You're going to be hearing a lot (probably more than you want to) about the Marlon Brando movie, "Last Tango in Paris." Pauline Kael of "New Yorker" went so far as to call it "a landmark in movie history." The New York opening has had more than $150,000 advance sale at $5 a head, with some paying $25 to $50 for early reservations. Time magazine put Brando on its cover, got 1,200 letters of protest, 310 cancellations and lost $280,000 in advertising. The New York Times' Vincent Canby calls it "beautiful, courageous, foolish, romantic and reckless." Our view: Dressed-up, sophisticated porno. It will make a fortune. That's how Americans are these days.

at the box office, according to Motion Picture Herald. New king is Clint Eastwood. Following, in order: George C. Scott, Gene Hackman, Wayne, Barbra Streisand, Marlon Brando, Paul Newman, Steve McQueen, Dustin Hoffman and Goldie Hawn.

THE BIG political gossip in the East has to do with the White House downgrading of VP Spiro Agnew. His staff has been cut sharply, the President has let it leak that he rather fancies John Connally as GOP nominee for '76, and there is much ado being made of Agnew's friendship with Frank Sinatra. It remains to be seen whether the Sinatra bit is at the root of the White House disaffection, or whether it isn't something more fundamental.

WHILE WE'RE at the world of movies, John Wayne is no longer No. 1 draw

OUT WEST, the political news is that Ronald Reagan is gearing up for a run at the Senate seat now held by Alan Cranston. Reagan has made clear he doesn't want a third term as governor... Out in Berkeley, where the free-speech movement began all the campus furor, the radicals seem to have shot their wad. In a big campaign for members of a new rent-control commission, all five radical candidates lost. The student turnout, as well as the black, was dismal.

Nelson Rockefeller released a public letter to his brother Laurance. "Dear Bill," it said... The Lyndon Johnson postage stamp (issued by tradition after the death of a President) will appear on his birthdate, Aug. 27. Harry Truman's birthdate was May 8 and we may see the HST stamp sooner than the LBJ one.

MSD suit 'to bring results'

A suit filed during last fall's election campaign calling for a citizen watchdog to observe the Metropolitan Sanitary District is expected to bring results, MSD Trustee Joanne Alter said Tuesday.

Mrs. Alter said that the suit, which she filed against former Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie, is still pending in Cook County Circuit Court.

But Mrs. Alter said she has learned that Gov. Daniel Walker plans to appoint an observer as required in a state law enacted in 1967.

SHE SAID, however, she has had no indication as to who the observer will be, or when the appointment will be made.

Because the state statute requires that the sanitary district observer have "knowledge of the principles of sanitary engineering," Mrs. Alter said there is some question whether the post must be filled by an engineer.

Mrs. Alter filed her suit against Ogilvie last September when she was a candidate for the MSD Board.

Her suit sought a court order forcing Ogilvie to appoint an observer.

STATUTES GIVE the state Senate the right of advise and consent on the appointment.

"The observer, under law, has access to all the books and records of the sanitary district," Mrs. Alter said.

State statutes give the observer the right to attend all district meetings including those held in executive session which are closed to the public. The observer also may conduct inquiries into the efficiency and adequacy of the district's operation and into the effect MSD actions have on other areas of the state.

The $12,500 per year job is full-time, Mrs. Alter said.

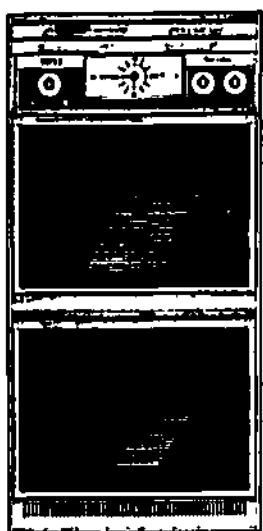

The observer's salary is paid by the state as are his expenses. He reports to the governor, the General Assembly, and the state department of conservation and state sanitary water board.

"The observer is empowered to fulfill a true ombudsman function on behalf of the people of Cook County and the rest of the state," Mrs. Alter said when she filed the suit.

YOUR MONEY...

The first savings and loan association in America was the Oxford Provident Building Association, organized in Frankford, Pennsylvania, in 1831. That early town is now a part of Philadelphia, and its greatest claim to fame remains the birth of that first savings and loan association.

There were 37 members in that first association. It was different from today's association in being a cooperative, open only to members. The idea was that each member put in a specified sum each week or month. When enough money was accumulated, one member could get a loan to buy or build a home.

Incidentally, that privilege of getting the loan went to the highest bidder... the member willing to pay the highest "premium!" Later, as more savings accumulated, additional members could obtain loans... until each member has had the chance. After that, the association had fulfilled its purpose and was dissolved.

Our savings and loan association, of course is not "closed" to members only, either for savings or home loans. Even if you've never met us, you'll find a warm welcome here... and a desire to serve you, with planned savings or financing.

The Volunteer bureau

'Volunteer recognition': what is it?

"According to a number of experts in the field of volunteerism, the concept of 'Volunteer recognition' is badly in need of overhaul, expansion and redefinition."

So says the National Center for Voluntary Action in its newest publication called Volunteer Recognition.

The publication goes on to say that "formalities have their place. Certificates are framed. Pins worn with pride. The lunch or dinner is enjoyed. However, they suggest, such festivities are merely a final salute in the total process of recognizing volunteers and should develop simply as the outward celebration of the already clearly acknowledged fact that volunteers are valued and valuable."

"If the value of the volunteer is central to the thinking of programs enlisting their services, recognition becomes a day-to-day practice, motivating careful recruitment, intelligent orientation, purposeful training and well-conceived assignments."

IT IS IN accepting this fact that the Volunteer Bureau emphasizes training at the agency level of all volunteers — beginning with an orientation that says by its action "I'm glad you are here."

The Bureau conducts some training programs such as the coordinator's training workshops held at the beginning of the school year for the volunteer coordinators of the individual schools and their principals.

Harper College and the Volunteer Bureau are co-sponsoring an Agency Forum today. It is another form of training geared to the administrators of agencies and organizations which utilize non-paid personnel, the volunteer.

ALTHOUGH THERE are seminars of several weeks or even several months available throughout the country in the training of volunteer administrators, this is the first attempt to present a short term, local workshop in which the volunteer movement is explored by those working with it.

Dr. Mary Ann Miller, director of Community Services at Harper College and a member of the Volunteer Bureau Board; Marilyn Marler, vice president of the Volunteer Bureau; and Esther Rabcmuk, executive director of the Volunteer Bureau, served on the committee appointed by Dr. Roderick McLennan, president of the Volunteer Bureau.

Carol Wortham of St. Louis, instrumental in coordinating the 16 counties in the Regional Council of Volunteer Services in Southern Illinois, will conduct the workshop.

Recruiting volunteers, maintaining a volunteer corps, compiling records, conducting training programs are factors common to all agencies and organizations in the volunteer movement.

Do-It-Yourself

Most every homeowner acquires a basic assortment of tools in time. What sends him out into the night looking for a hardware store that is open late is a lack of proper supplies.

You can't stock everything in your basement, of course, but in time and with a little experience you will have on hand the right fuse, the right washer and just the nail you need for those minor repairs that come up at odd moments.

Consider the kinds of jobs that occur and what you need. Make a note of proper sizes for next time and stock up in advance.

PLUMBING — The first time around you will probably buy an assortment of washers in a small box. This gives you one or two of everything including a few sizes you will never use. The assortment is Q.K. the first time around, but a waste of money after that. Once you've had a faucet apart and you know the size washer it takes, stock up on that only. Do the same for other faucets. Buy only the sizes you need and buy them in advance. Have some packing on hand as well.

ELECTRICAL — Have tape around, friction and rubber or plastic electrical tape which will do for both. Have the right size fuses on hand. Keep them near the fuse box. You need a flashlight in case of a power failure. The flashlight needs spare batteries. Keep a stock of several plug ends for lamp cords, screw-in base plugs, three-way plug taps, extension cords, a spare appliance cord. Remember the size bulbs the light fixtures in your house require after you replace them and stock up in advance.

LUBRICATION — Light machine oil for small appliance motors, such as sewing machines, mixers, fans. Grease stick for fan belts, windows that stick. Powdered graphite for locks — never use oil. Heavier oil for motors on large appliances. Grease for wheel bearings on bikes, lawn mowers, wheelbarrows.

PAINT — Save small amounts of paint that are left when you finish a job. They're good for touch up. Keep turpentine or paint thinner around; it's good for cleanups, soaking brushes. A bag of old rags is great for cleaning up.

FASTENING — For nails and screws the ready-made assortment is good the first time around. After a time you'll know what sizes you need most. Save odds and ends in glass jars. Don't buy an assortment when you have a special job to do. Determine the right size and buy accordingly. A few brads, tacks and an assortment of nuts and bolts should be around. Also picture hooks, cup hooks and a few screw eyes. When you need one you'll find that you have to buy more than one. Save the extras where you can find them.

Destroy 'poisoned lettuce,' farm militant Chavez urges

KEENE, Calif. (UPI) — Farm labor leader Cesar Chavez has urged the destruction of "poisoned lettuce" allegedly shipped from California and Arizona after being improperly sprayed with a pesticide.

Chavez, director of the United Farm Workers Union, said Tuesday that "large numbers" of boxes of contaminated lettuce had been shipped to points in the United States and Canada before the Food and Drug Administration seized about 10,000 boxes of it.

His union is staging a nationwide boycott of lettuce not picked by its members.

Chavez' request came in telegrams to government authorities in Washington, D.C., and Canada and to the nation's two largest grocery chains A&P and Safeway.

Union attorney Jerry Cohen said the lettuce was shipped from the Imperial Valley of California and the Yuma Valley of Arizona after being contaminated with a new organophosphate called Monitor 4. He said its manufacturer has since told distributors not to sell the pesticide for use on lettuce.

He said federal investigators found higher than permissible levels of the chemical in lettuce in the two valleys and seized 10,000 boxes, including 2,500 in a grocery warehouse.

Before I joined the Payroll Savings Plan, all I could save was string.

When it comes to saving money, most of us can use all the help we can get.

Joining the Payroll Savings Plan is one easy way to force yourself to save. When you sign up, an amount you specify is sent aside from each paycheck and used by U.S. Savings Bonds. It's automatic. Everything is done for you.

And now there's a bonus interest rate on all U.S. Savings Bonds — for E Bonds, 5 1/2% when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months (4% the first year). That extra 1/2%, payable as a bonus at maturity, applies to all Bonds issued since June 1, 1970... with a comparable improvement for all older Bonds.

Sick with the plan and before you know it you'll have a bankroll waiting. That's when you'll find you can do a lot more with money than you can with string.

Take stock in America.
New Bonds pay a bonus at maturity

NOTICE IS HEREBY given, pursuant to "An Act in relation to the use of an assumed name in the conduct of transaction of business in this State," as amended, that a certificate was filed by the undersigned with the County Clerk of Cook County, file No. D-33285 on the 5th day of February, 1973 under the assumed name of Cannonball Towing. Last year, all John Benson saved was $54.32.

This year, he joined the Payroll Savings Plan.

Poor John, Money just seemed to slip right through his fingers. Every time he planned to stash something away, there wasn't anything left.

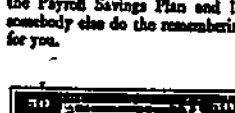

Then John decided to join the Payroll Savings Plan where he works. Now, an amount he specifies is automatically set aside from his check before he gets it. And invested in U.S. Savings Bonds.

Because John has become such a systematic saver, he's almost forgotten about it. When he gets around to remembering, he's going to have quite a nest egg laid away.

And now there's a bonus interest rate on all U.S. Savings Bonds—for E Bonds, 5 1/2% when held to maturity of 3 years, 10 months (4% the first year). That extra 1/2% payable as a bonus at maturity, applies to all Bonds issued since June 1, 1970... with a comparable improvement for all older Bonds.

If you keep forgetting to save something out of your check, join the Payroll Savings Plan and let somebody else do the remembering for you.

Take stock in America.
New Bonds pay a bonus at maturity.

Fondue, elegantly different!

First it was cheese fondue, then beef fondue. Now it's fried fondue, for a deliciously simple combination of the two.

Mrs. Gary L. Jordan

She cooks according to her moods

by LOIS SEILER

Hearty Hungarian Goulash heaped on a platter of buttered noodles is appetizing dinner fare for family or friends. It has been a favorite of Mrs. Gary L. Jordan of Schaumburg ever since her mother made it when she was a young girl at home.

"Everyone who tastes it likes it," Nancy Jordan remarked, and her husband, Gary, and sons Mark, 7, and Scott, 4, are no exceptions.

Nancy makes it with pot roast — round bone preferred — and cubes the meat. After browning, it is simmered with lots of flavorful ingredients — tomatoes, onion, green pepper, wine and herbs, which makes a savory gravy that is delicious over the noodles.

This good cook admits to having an artistic feeling towards food and cooks according to her moods. Her temperament influences her menu planning, choice of herbs, spices and wines for seasoning, and accompaniments. With the colorful goulash she might choose a green vegetable, a tossed salad or both, and probably soft, dinner-type rolls.

Her favorite roll recipe is also one which she acquired from her mother. The recipe makes a large batch, but the dough may be stored in the refrigerator up to ten days and can be used as needed. Nancy simply pinches off pieces of the dough and places them in greased muffin tins, baking enough for one meal at a time. As the recipe makes about six dozen, fresh homemade rolls can be served with several meals before the dough is used up.

With this dinner she likes to serve chocolate cake or brownies for dessert. The brownies are a family favorite; they are moist and chewy with a sprinkling of nuts on top.

Although Nancy is a busy woman, combining homemaking with a career, she can still serve tempting meals such as this by making preparations in advance. The goulash can be made well ahead and frozen; the yeast dough can be stored in the refrigerator for days, and the brownies only take minutes to prepare.

Nancy is a real estate associate and belongs to the Schaumburg Woman's Club. In her spare time she enjoys sewing and all types of handiwork.

HUNGARIAN BEEF GOULASH

2 pounds beef pot roast, round bone preferred
3 tablespoons shortening
1 cup sliced onions
1/2 cup green peppers, cut in narrow strips
2 cans tomato paste
4 tablespoons tomato paste
1/2 cup domestic dry red wine
1 small bay leaf
2 teaspoons salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
Pinch of thyme
Pinch of marjoram
2 tablespoons paprika
Cut meat into 1 1/2 to 2-inch cubes. Melt shortening; when hot, saute onions until light golden in color. Then add meat and brown very lightly, two or three minutes, stirring occasionally with wooden spoon.

Add remaining ingredients and simmer very slowly in a heavy, covered saucepan for 1 1/2 to 3 hours, or until meat is fork-tender. Choice quality beef will be done in 1 1/2 to 2 hours.

After meat is tender, and if gravy is too thick, thicken with one tablespoon cornstarch diluted in two tablespoons water and cook an additional five minutes, stirring constantly. Serve over one pound cooked broad noodles which have been dotted with butter. Serves 6 to 8.

POTATO

REFRIGERATOR ROLLS

1 cup leftover mashed potatoes
2/3 cup margarine
1/2 cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
2 eggs
1 small cake yeast
1/2 cup lukewarm water
1 cup scalded milk, cooled to lukewarm
6 to 8 cups flour
In large mixing bowl, cream potatoes, shortening, sugar, salt and eggs with electric beater.

Dissolve yeast in water; add to cooled milk. Then beat into potato mixture. Add as much flour as the mixer will beat in. Remove from bowl and turn out on floured board. Knead in enough flour until smooth and elastic, kneading 10 to 12 minutes.

Let rise, covered, in a mixing bowl until double in bulk, about 1 1/2 hours. Knead lightly again, 3 to 4 minutes. Return to bowl and rub top with melted butter. Cover tightly and place in refrigerator until ready to use. If dough starts to rise too high, punch down; it will keep in refrigerator 1 to 1 1/2 weeks. It can be taken out and used as needed.

About 1 1/2 hours before baking time, pinch off pieces of dough and place in greased muffin tins. The pieces should be about half the size of the muffin cups. Make the top rounded. Cover and let rise again, 1 1/2 hours. Bake at 425 degrees for 20 to 25 minutes. Makes approximately 6 dozen or more.

BROWNIES

1 cup sifted cake flour
1/2 teaspoon baking powder
1/4 teaspoon salt
2 squares unsweetened chocolate
1/3 cup butter or margarine
1 cup granulated sugar
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 to 3/4 cup chopped nuts
Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Melt chocolate and butter over hot water.

Put sugar, eggs and vanilla into large mixing bowl. Beat at medium speed two minutes. Stop mixer. Add chocolate mixture and flour mixture; beat at low speed until blended. Beat at medium speed about one minute, scraping bowl as necessary.

Turn into greased, 9 by 9-inch pan. Sprinkle nuts over the top. Bake 25 minutes at 350 degrees or until done. Cut in squares. Makes about 25 cookies.

MRS. GARY JORDAN'S favorite dinner roll recipe is one she obtained from her mother. A cup of leftover mashed potatoes is added to the yeast dough to give it a light texture. Although the recipe yields a large batch, the dough can be kept in the refrigerator to be used as needed.

Mostly For Men

by Charles Flynn

One doesn't go to the Berghoff Restaurant for atmosphere other than that of the traditional and substantial German establishment. Long a favorite of Chicagoans, it has few peers for consistent quality, excellent service by well-trained waiters, and reasonable tabs.

Established in 1896, the original restaurant is at 17 West Adams and in recent years a second Berghoff appeared at 123 North Wabash. German food is, in my opinion, the best bet, although excellent steaks and seafoods are served.

I like the Beef ala Deutsch or Deutsches Beefsteak which is a different and flavorful method of preparing ground beef. To serve 4, you'll need 1 1/2 pounds of good quality lean beef coarsely ground. Chop 2 small onions and mix well with the ground beef, 2 tablespoons flour, 4 tablespoons water, 2 scant teaspoons salt, a generous dash of freshly ground pepper, then form into 4 oblong patties.

With the finger press a depression in the center of each patty, fill with butter and then close. Heat butter in a skillet and fry patties 3 to 5 minutes on each side depending on how well done you wish the beef. Remove from skillet and keep hot. In the fat where the beef has been fried, brown a medium onion, sliced, then place onion slices atop patties.

Add flour and water to the fat in the skillet and blend well to form a creamy gravy. Pour this over the patties and serve immediately.

ANOTHER GERMAN favorite is the puffed potato pancake known as Kartoffelpuffer, Reibekuchen. For 4 servings, peel and grate 4 large potatoes and drain off liquid by placing potatoes on paper toweling. Mix with 2 eggs, 1 cup milk, 3 tablespoons flour, and salt to taste. Form a rather firm dough.

Heat bacon drippings or shortening in a skillet and drop in the dough, 2 tablespoons at a time, then spread out thinly to form small pancakes. Fry these on both sides to a golden brown. Keep finished pancakes hot while using the rest of dough.

Serve very hot sprinkled with salt, or, if you wish, with granulated sugar. Many German tastes lean toward sugaring these pancakes.

Do you have a favorite German recipe or a question about food?

Write Chuck Flynn, care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. For personal reply please enclose self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Franfare

by Fran Heckart

A "quack," according to the dictionary, is a person who pretends, professionally or publicly, to skills, knowledge, or qualifications which he does not possess. The term "quackery" encompasses both products and people. Generally, quackery is misinformation about health.

One needn't look or listen long to be aware of all the numerous health claims today. Many of the so-called cures and remedies are presented subtly while others proclaim blatantly to the wonder drug, vitamin, cream or whatever.

The Food and Drug Administration has set up the following criteria to determine the credibility of claims and whether or not someone making claims is a "quack."

IF THE answer to any of the following questions is yes, FDA recommends checking with a local medical society, health department, the American Medical Association or their offices.

—Claims the product involves a secret formula or remedy.

—Promises or promotes a quick cure.

—Advertises by case histories or testimonials.

—Claims constantly for medical investigation and recognition.

—Claims the medical profession is persecuting him and afraid of his competition.

—Belittles recognized treatments.

—Sells through door-to-door peddlers, lectures to the public and is promoted in sensational publications.

—Uses high-sounding titles easily confused with qualified scientific professionals and organization.

—Claims the product or service is good for a wide variety of illnesses, real and fancied.

The National Live Stock and Meat Board has initiated a program for coordinating a standardized nationwide meat labeling program.

The new program, which should be underway in many meat markets and food stores by next month, will eliminate the use of regional names that now confuse shoppers.

Such labels as Pike's Peak, Diamond Wedge, Goose-neck and Denver Pot-Roast are not particularly informing and have been a source of consumer confusion.

These various fanciful names are rarely intended to deceive the shopper, but rather usually represent an attempt by a retail store or company to give personal identity to a line of fresh meat cuts.

UNDER THE new system each package of meat would bear the names of the meat by species (beef, veal, pork and lamb), the primal or wholesale cut (chuck, loin, etc.), a common retail name of the cut standardized through the nation (sirloin steak, short ribs, rump roast, etc.) and, perhaps, the store's own customized name. The latter would allow the store or chain to maintain its own identity without confusing the customer.

For ground beef, the Meat Board recommends that stores label different kinds of ground beef by name and by percentage of fat. For example, to the names ground beef, lean ground beef, extra lean ground beef would be added information such as "not less than 75 per cent lean" or whatever the percentage happened to be.

The new program is voluntary and the Board cannot require stores to use the standardized names.

New fondue features fried cheese

For fried fondue, bite-size pieces of cheese are coated in bread crumbs and toasted in hot fat. The cheese comes out golden and crusty with a center that's warm and soft.

Often called fried cheese, this easy fondue has long been familiar to Europeans. The Danes are responsible for its recent rush in the United States. Although most any cheese can be fried, a perfect choice is something soft like Camembert.

For frying, the cheese needs to be cold. Cut the Camembert into wedges, dip each piece in egg white then dredge in bread crumbs and the cheese is ready for the fondue pot.

It helps smooth things along to do this much ahead, but keep the coated cheese chilled. However, some guests prefer to do the whole thing. For this routine, you need individual saucers of egg white and crumbs. To soak up the fat, have plenty of paper towels ready for the fried cheese. The cheese needs only casual contact with the towels — fried fondue is best eaten very warm.

Serve it plain or with crisp toast or crackers. For something sweet, the Danes spread the warm cheese with red currant jelly.

Fried fondue requires the same kind of metal pot beef fondue cooks in. If your fondue pot is not electric or butane, then first heat the fat in a pan on the range in your kitchen. Pots heated by canned heat or alcohol will not get hot enough. It's also a good idea to re-heat the fat from these pots now and then.

Fried fondue is a natural accompaniment for wine. Dessert wines like cream sherry, port and sweet sauterne are particularly good choices with stronger cheeses like Camembert, a natural white cream cheese, blue cheese or Brie.

CAMEMBERT CHEESE FONDUE

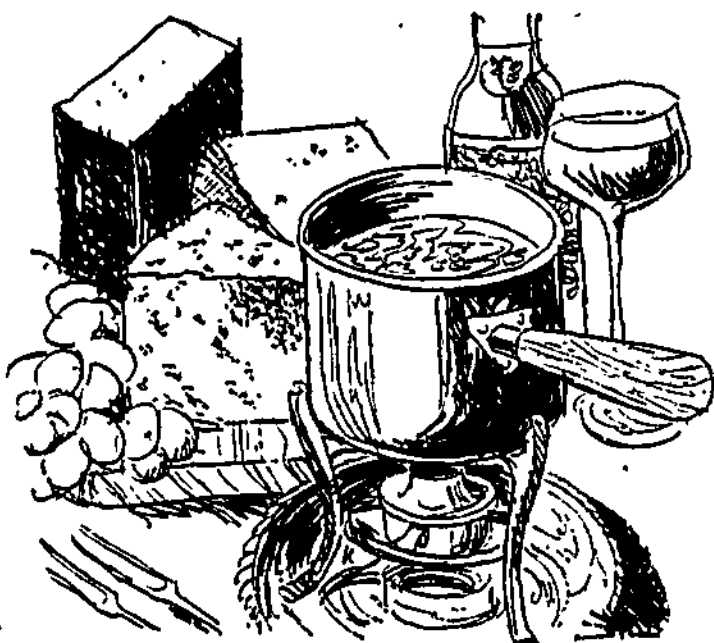

1 package (5½ ounces) or 1 can (7 ounces) Camembert, chilled
1 egg white, beaten just to blend
Very fine dry bread crumbs (about ¼ cup)
Dash salt
Dash paprika

Cut half moon package of Camembert into 8 wedges, or the can into half and each half into 6 wedges. Dip each wedge of cheese into the egg white then into the bread crumbs which have been combined with salt and paprika.

Arrange crumb-coated cheese on wax paper-lined tray and chill till time to fry. Or cook the coated but still cold cheese immediately.

Heat cooking oil to 375 degrees in electric or butane beef fondue pot. If you're using an alcohol burner or canned heat, first heat the oil in a pan on your kitchen range and transfer to the fondue pot.

Let guests spear a wedge of the coated Camembert on long-handled forks and fry in the deep hot fat about 1 minute. Drain briefly on paper towels then eat immediately. Most Americans like this fried cheese as is. But it's a Danish custom to serve the cheese with red currant jelly. Or with thin toast or crisp crackers. Allow about 1 package (5½ ounces) of Camembert per person. The egg white and bread crumbs go slightly further.

Nutrition teams with convenience

The mid-winter months are busy ones for the entire family, but especially for the homemaker, who is expected to have dinner on the table in time, in spite of all the extra curricular demands on her time. The purse has probably been depleted by those holiday meals and unexpected guests.

Now is the time for homemakers to count more heavily on good convenience foods; such as canned salmon. A one-pound can of salmon can be quickly transformed into a hot and hearty luncheon or supper dish to serve six.

SALMON ROLLS A LA GRECQUE

2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1½ teaspoons salt
½ cup shortening
2/3 cup milk
1 pound can salmon
4 green onions, chopped
1 green pepper, seeded and chopped
Dash cayenne
Water cress for garnish

In mixing bowl combine flour, baking powder and 1 teaspoon salt. With pastry blender or two knives, cut in shortening until mixture looks like coarse meal. Add milk and stir gently with a fork until all dry ingredients are moistened and dough holds together. Gather dough into a ball, turn out on lightly floured board and knead gently, about 12 kneadings strokes. Roll dough out on lightly floured board into a rectangle about ¼ inch thick.

Drain and reserve liquid from can of salmon. Flake salmon and combine with onion, green pepper, the remaining ½ teaspoon salt and cayenne. Moisten with a little of the salmon liquid and spread salmon mixture over dough. Roll lengthwise like a jelly roll and cut into 1½ inch slices. Arrange slices, cut side down in buttered baking pan and bake in a preheated 400 degree oven for 30 minutes. Transfer to a warm serving platter and garnish with water cress. Serve with Lemon Sauce. Serves 6.

LEMON SAUCE

2 tablespoons butter
1½ tablespoons flour
1½ cups hot chicken broth
2 egg yolks
Juice of ½ lemon
In saucepan melt butter. Stir in flour and cook, stirring, until mixture bubbles.

'Farming' fish may create new food supplies

This, marine biologists tell us, is the dawning of the age of aquaculture, when "farming" fish at the edge of the sea and harvesting marine stocks will create vast new food supplies. And when all this comes about, it will be like a fairy tale come true in more ways than one.

A while back, the fictional Dr. John Dolittle implied that the world would be a better place "if we could talk to the animals."

Now marine scientists are echoing Dr. Dolittle's refrain. Dr. John H. Todd of the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution in Massachusetts, for one, is specifically interested in "talking" to fish and crustaceans, such as the lobster.

"ONCE WE LEARN the chemical and acoustic signals that are the key links in the life of these animals, we should be able to reproduce them," Todd reports in a forthcoming issue of The Lamp, published by the Exxon Corporation. "These signals could be used selectively to save threatened marine populations and to 'help harvest marine stocks.'"

Scientists already know that chemical signals cause migratory fish, such as the salmon and herring, to return to the streams of their birth for breeding. Once these chemicals can be identified, ocean-side "farmers" will be able to create artificial hatching sites and even let their "livestock" return to the ocean to "graze" before returning periodically to breed. The Lamp article will say.

THE LOBSTER, too, has not avoided intimate scientific scrutiny. Marine biologists are studying lobster sexual and social behavior to find clues to curbing hostility and increasing growth, Todd reports.

Hostility among lobsters has been the principal reason why farming them has not been a success. Recently, however, scientists have learned that aggression decreases during the courting ritual and they have been able to identify the chemical that brings on this particular kind of social behavior.

Braised Celery Wedges

Put the heat on celery

Celery is an excellent hot vegetable. Cook it briefly in water, broth or vegetable juice; then serve with melted butter or a rich sauce — such as cheese sauce. Quarter the stalk and braise it in broth. Parboil celery chunks, dip them in herb butter and deep fat-fry. (Especially good if you add chopped peanuts to the batter.) Team celery with other vegetables such as carrots, cabbage, tomatoes or green beans. Mix with a Bechamel sauce and sprinkle the finished dish with toasted sliced almonds.

BAKED CELERY WEDGES

1 stalk celery
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
½ cup minced onion
½ cup sliced mushrooms
2 tablespoons flour
1 can (12 oz.) cocktail vegetable juice
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon oregano leaves, crumbled
¼ teaspoon ground black pepper

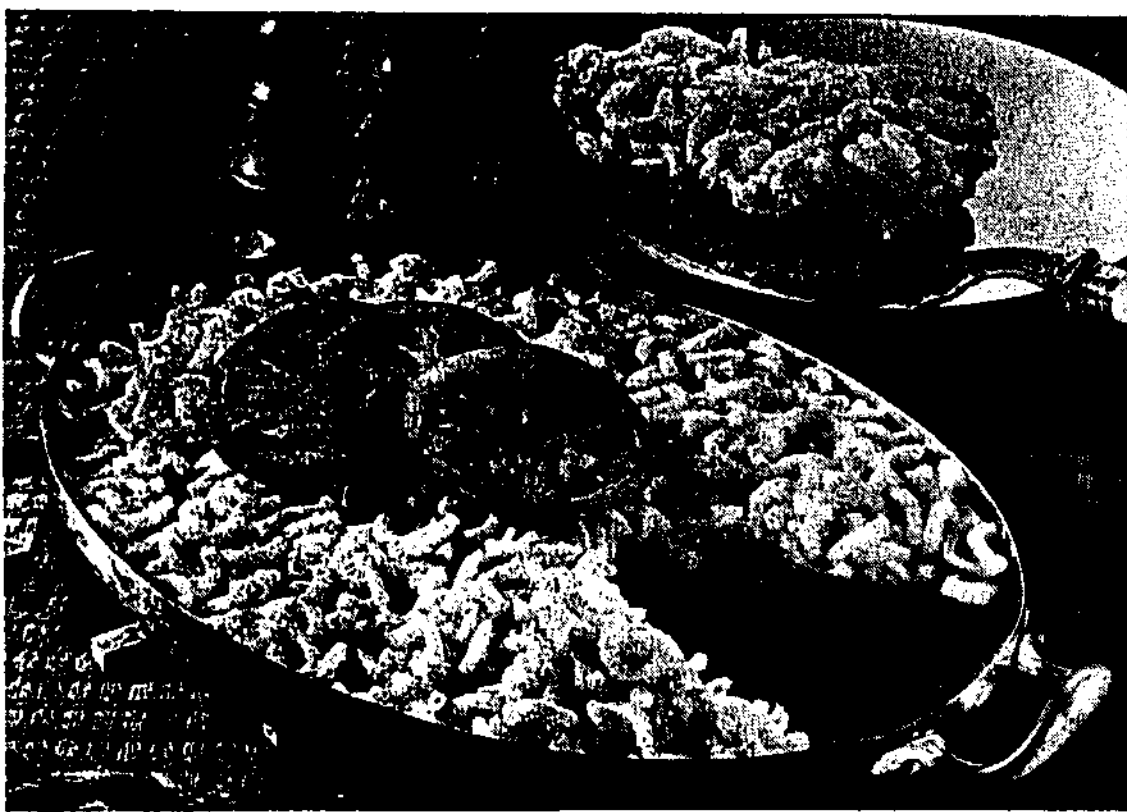

Trim stem end from celery stalk, keeping base intact. Cut top so that stalk is 8 inches long. Chop enough tops to make ½ cup chopped celery; reserve. (Use remaining tops for soups, stews, etc.) Cut trimmed celery stalk into fourth or sixth, lengthwise; place in a 12 x 8 x

2-inch baking dish. In a small saucepan melt butter. Add onion, mushrooms and reserved chopped celery; sauté 5 minutes. Stir in flour. Gradually blend in vegetable juice, salt, oregano and black pepper. Bring to boiling point. Cook and stir 2 minutes or until sauce is thickened. Pour over celery wedges. Cover and bake in a preheated moderate oven (350 degrees) for 40 minutes or until celery is crisp-tender. (This recipe may be doubled.) Garnish with celery leaves, if desired. Yield: 4 to 6 portions.

CELERY AND CARROT CRUNCH

1 stalk celery
¼ cup butter or margarine
½ cup onion rings
1 cup silvered carrots
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
¼ cup toasted silvered almonds

Trim stem end from celery; remove leaves (use in soups, salads, etc.). Separate into ribs. Thinly slice on the diagonal (makes about 6 cups). In a large skillet melt butter. Add celery and onion rings. Stir-fry for 6 to 8 minutes or until celery is crisp-tender. Stir in carrots, salt and black pepper. Stir-fry 2 minutes longer. Add almonds. Serve immediately. Yield: 4 portions.

Macaroni Double-Decker

Pasta paces food budget

It isn't always an easy task to find an entree which offers nourishing, tasty eating and can be classified economical as well. However, pasta (which includes macaroni, egg noodles and spaghetti) is the base of many recipes which fill the foregoing requirements.

An excellent example is found in Macaroni Double-Decker. A well seasoned ground beef mixture is topped with macaroni and cheese, flavored with green pepper and onion. It's one of those great one-dish creations — pop into the oven to bake — and eat. Satisfying and nutritious, it requires only a simple green salad as an accompaniment.

MACARONI DOUBLE-DECKER

1½ tablespoons salt
4 to 5 quarts boiling water
3 cups elbow macaroni (12 ounces)
¼ cup chopped onion
¼ cup chopped green pepper
¼ cup butter or margarine
¼ cup flour
½ teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
2½ cups milk
3 cups shredded Cheddar cheese

1 egg
1½ cups soft bread crumbs
¼ cup catsup
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon thyme
1½ pounds ground beef
6 tomato slices, optional

Add 1½ tablespoons salt to rapidly boiling water. Gradually add macaroni so that water continues to boil. Cook uncovered, stirring occasionally, until tender. Drain in colander.

Meanwhile, sauté onion and green pepper in butter until tender. Blend in flour; ¾ teaspoon salt and 1/8 teaspoon pepper. Slowly add milk and cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until thickened. Add cheese, stir until melted. Combine macaroni with cheese sauce.

Mix together egg, bread crumbs, catsup, 1½ teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper and thyme; add beef and mix lightly with fork. Spread on bottom of 13x9x2-inch pan. Cover with macaroni mixture. Bake in 400 degree oven 35 minutes. If desired, top with tomato slices; bake 15 minutes longer. Make 6 servings.

Waste not with planned overs

Appliances to aid food conservation

In the early days of our pioneer forefathers, homemakers always found ingenious methods to prevent food from being wasted. Not a potato peel, radish top, celery heart, chicken leg or ham bone was cast aside, and if it did not coincide with the main meal, it was saved for the soup kettle. This admirable frugality was food conservation in the full sense of the word. It might have evolved out of necessity or the old adage, "Waste not, want not."

Luckily, the modern homemaker is now one step ahead of her pioneer counterpart with electrical appliances that make food conservation a snap. Tops on the list is the blender. This popular kitchen helpmate is the backbone of today's conscientious movement to recycle food and eliminate waste. The blender serves a dual purpose by providing the homemaker with a quick and easy meal preparation appliance for saving in the kitchen... and in the pocketbook.

A perfect meat for recycling with the blender is ham. The flavor and preservative qualities of smoked and cured ham make it easily adapted to many menus, days after the first main meal. Due to the ham's versatile adaption to multi-meal preparation, the modern homemaker can follow in the footsteps of her pioneer sisters by using "everything but the squeal!" The wise cook provides her family with a beautiful glazed ham dinner, then saves unused portions to create more scrumptious recipes for "planned-overs" at future meals. There is no end to the variety of tempting "planned-over" recipes that can be created in an electric blender... why not give it a whirl with this conservation menu.

After Sunday's first main dish of glazed ham, use the remaining slices to prepare a Ham and Broccoli Casserole for Wednesday's supper. Highlight the family's lunches with Ham Sandwich Spread, using bits and pieces of ham and pickles. Make a Chef's Salad with julienne strips of ham and cheese to accommodate Saturday's luncheon. For a quick and easy supper before Tuesday's bridge club, whip up a dish of Chow Hawaiian Ham, using strips of ham, green peppers and carrots. Serve a hearty Pea and Ham Soup made from the last bits of ham and seasoned with the bone and its trimmings for a late night warmer-upper. Throw bone to dog and ladle soup into large mugs.

CRANBERRY GLAZE
1 16-oz. can (no. 303) whole berry cranberry sauce
1/2 cup light corn syrup

Put cranberries and corn syrup into blender container. Cover and process at low until mixed well.

Thirty minutes before the ham is through baking, remove from oven. Score the fat and stick whole cloves into ham. Spread with cranberry glaze and return to oven. Baste with glaze at 10 minute intervals until ham is through baking.

HAM DIVAN
2 10-oz. pkgs. broccoli pieces, cooked and drained
1 16-oz. can (no. 303) sliced new potatoes, or 2 cups cooked, sliced potatoes
1/2 cup butter or margarine
1/2 cup flour
2 cups chicken broth
2-3 cup Parmesan cheese

1/2 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon white pepper
2 cups milk or light cream
1/3 cup sherry
10 slices ham 1/4-in. thick by 2 inch or 3 inch in diameter
3 tablespoons Parmesan cheese mixed with 1/4 teaspoon parsley flakes

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Butter a 2-quart casserole. Mix potatoes and cooked broccoli in casserole. Put butter, flour, chicken broth, Parmesan cheese, salt and pepper into blender container. Cover and process until well blended. Pour into saucepan; add milk. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly until thickened. Add sherry. Pour half the sauce over broccoli and potatoes. Arrange ham slices on top and pour remaining sauce over ham. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese and parsley. Bake for 20 minutes at 350 degrees. After baking set the casserole 4" from broiler unit and broil until sauce bubbles and cheese turns golden brown. Serve immediately. Yield: 5 to 6 servings.

CHOW HAWAIIAN HAM

4 large carrots cut into 2 inches by 1/2 inch by one-quarter inch strips
2 tablespoons salad oil
1/8 teaspoon garlic powder
1/2 cup chicken broth

1/2 teaspoon Chinese bean molasses

1/3 cup sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon monosodium glutamate
1 large green pepper, cut in 1/2 inch strips
1 cup pineapple chunks

Cook carrots in boiling water for 2 minutes, drain and set aside. Heat oil and garlic powder in saucepan over high heat about 3 minutes. Add ham strips and stir-fry until heated through, about 5 minutes. Put broth, vinegar, soy sauce, molasses, sugar, cornstarch, salt and monosodium glutamate into blender container, cover and process until well mixed. Add to ham in saucepan, add carrots, pepper and pineapple, and continue to cook at III, stirring constantly until thickened and shiny. Serve at once with rice. Yield: 6 servings.

Cooking hints

Soft cookies are done when delicately browned and when the imprint of a finger is slightly visible when you touch the cookie centers.

To substitute cocoa for unsweetened chocolate in cake baking, use 3 tablespoons of cocoa and 1 tablespoon of shortening for each 1-ounce square of chocolate called for.

Rapid boiling of rice can cause boil-overs and break the grains. Rinsing cooked rice can wash away nutrients. And stirring rice during cooking can mash the grains and make the rice gummy.

Celery is a $24 million annual crop in Florida. It covers farmland equal in size to the resort island of Bermuda and totals about 7.5 million shipping containers annually.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) has proposed a revision of the U.S. grade standards for canned sweetpotatoes that should result in a better quality product for the consumer. It would also broaden the scope of the current standards. The proposal reflects improved commercial practices.

According to USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service (AMS), the proposal would provide more specific quality limits which should, in turn, mean that canned sweetpotatoes packed according to the U.S. grade standards would have at least slightly better color, flavor, odor, and uniformity of size. In addition, the revision would clarify definitions of, and allowances for, different kinds of defects and texture.

The proposed standards would cover for the first time sweetpotato "sections" (cylindrical pieces about 2 inches long) and sweetpotatoes with added flavorings, spices, artificial sweeteners, and garnishes such as pineapple and orange segments.

The grade names in the canned sweetpotato standards would be changed to U.S. Grade A and U.S. Grade B to bring the terminology in line with standards for other canned and frozen fruits and vegetables. The present standards provide for U.S. Grades A and C.

HAM SPREAD

1/2 cup mayonnaise
1 pickle, cut in 1 inch pieces
1 slice onion
1 cup cooked ham, cubed

Put all ingredients into blender container, cover and process until smooth. Use a rubber spatula to help ingredients flow to blades. Yield: 3 to 4 sandwiches.

PEA SOUP

1 large onion, cut in eighths
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 carrot, sliced thin
2 stalks celery, sliced thin
3 quarts (12 cups) water
1 ham bone with leftover ham bits
1 teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon salt
3 cups (1 lb.) green split peas, rinsed

Blender-chop onion. Melt butter in large kettle, add onions, carrots and celery and saute over medium heat until onions are transparent. Put 1 cup peas and 1 cup water into blender container, cover and process until thick puree. Add to vegetables and repeat process with remaining peas. Add 9 cups water, ham bone, ham bits, salt and pepper. Simmer over very low heat, stirring frequently, 2 to 3 hours. Remove bone, trim meat from bone, adjust seasonings and serve. Garnish with croutons. Yield: 6-8 servings.

New standards proposed for canned sweetpotatoes

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) has proposed a revision of the U.S. grade standards for canned sweetpotatoes that should result in a better quality product for the consumer. It would also broaden the scope of the current standards. The proposal reflects improved commercial practices.

According to USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service (AMS), the proposal would provide more specific quality limits which should, in turn, mean that canned sweetpotatoes packed according to the U.S. grade standards would have at least slightly better color, flavor, odor, and uniformity of size. In addition, the revision would clarify definitions of, and allowances for, different kinds of defects and texture.

The proposed standards would cover for the first time sweetpotato "sections" (cylindrical pieces about 2 inches long) and sweetpotatoes with added flavorings, spices, artificial sweeteners, and garnishes such as pineapple and orange segments.

The grade names in the canned sweetpotato standards would be changed to U.S. Grade A and U.S. Grade B to bring the terminology in line with standards for other canned and frozen fruits and vegetables. The present standards provide for U.S. Grades A and C.

Another provision would increase, for all container sizes, the recommended

Liver pate and ground beef in stuffing for mushrooms

Leave it to the French to come up with a family dish that could substitute, for some, for meatloaf. This is Stuffed Mushrooms, Ile de France. These are filled with a mixture of lean ground beef, pate de foie (liver pate) and biscotte crumbs (crisp, French rusk-like toast), and seasoned with herbs and spices. The sauce combines beef broth, chopped mushroom stems, a Beaujolais wine and gherkins. You can make your own bread crumbs if biscotte crumbs are not available in your specialty food store. These filled mushrooms also may be served as hors d'oeuvres.

STUFFED MUSHROOMS ILE DE FRANCE

12 large mushrooms
1 pound lean ground beef

1 can (4-oz.) pate de foie
½ cup chopped shallots
½ cup fine biscotte (toast) crumbs
1 egg
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ cup chopped parsley

SAUCE:

¼ cup butter
Chopped mushroom stems
¼ cup flour
1 cup condensed beef broth
1 cup French Beaujolais wine
¼ cup chopped cornichons (tiny gherkins)

Salt and pepper to taste

Remove stems from mushrooms and reserve for sauce. Mix beef, pate, half the shallots, egg, salt, pepper, parsley and crumbs. Mix well and use mixture to stuff mushroom caps. Place in a single layer in a shallow pan and bake in a preheated 350 degree oven for 35 to 40 minutes. Serve with cornichon wine sauce: Melt butter. Chop mushrooms stems and saute with remaining shallots until golden. Stir in flour. Gradually stir in beef broth and wine. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly until sauce bubbles and thickens. Stir in cornichons, salt and pepper to taste. Makes about 6 servings.

Tuna-rice dish is budget helper

A money-stretching dish (if peanuts instead of cashews are used) has a base of brown rice and tuna which will please health food followers. It also is a flavorful dish that requires little time in preparation.

TUNA-BROWN RICE SKILLET

2½ cups cooked brown rice
¼ cup butter or margarine
2 ribs celery, sliced
1 medium green pepper, cut in strips
1 medium onion, sliced
1 cup sliced mushrooms
¼ cup broken cashews or peanuts

1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon dried leaf thyme
1 tablespoon soy sauce
2 cans (6½ or 7 ounces each) tuna in vegetable oil
Prepare rice according to package directions; set aside. Melt butter over medium heat in a large skillet. Add vegetables, mushrooms and cashews or peanuts. Cook, stirring occasionally, until vegetables are crisp-tender, 3 to 5 minutes. Add salt, pepper, thyme and soy sauce; mix well. Stir in cooked rice and tuna. Heat to serving temperature, stirring occasionally. Transfer to serving dish. Makes 4 servings.

THE STAGE HAS been set for Mark Gerlach, center, to work on his relationship with his dead father. Dr. Arthur Weinfeld, second from left, directs the confrontation Mark chose to have with his mother, played by Bonnie Cortese, and father played by Steve Welf, right. Ray Giese, behind Mark, is the double in this psychodrama — giving Mark insights on how he may be feeling or what he may want to say.

OTHER MEMBERS OF the group being conducted at the I.C.E. House, Mount Prospect, join in the psychodrama as Mark takes the role of his dead father. Dr. Weinfeld acts the father to be alive for awhile so he can talk with his son. By Mark reversing roles — being his father — he can better understand what feelings his parent may have had as well as being able to see himself through his father's eyes.

Psychodrama

The action therapy

by DOROTHY OLIVER

Tom mounted the stage, rearranging a few chairs and describing the scene he was setting to his audience. He settled across from his father and began a conversation that started in a casual tone but exploded into anger, recrimination and tears.

The director stood nearby, watching Tom carefully and breaking in occasionally with comments and suggestions.

An hour later Tom listened with the director and his father as members of the audience commented on what had just happened.

The drama that had unfolded was not staged for entertainment. This was psychodrama, an action form of therapy in which people act out their problems and fantasies.

TOM, THE protagonist, wanted to work on his relationship with his father, a perfectionist who set extremely high standards for his only son. Tom selected a man from the audience, made up of other group members — to play his father.

Tom used a real confrontation he had with his father which was typical of their relationship. Before beginning, he set the stage, physically and verbally, and took the role of his father to explain the kind of person he is.

The therapist, or director, observed the action looking for clues on where it should go next. When the psychodrama concluded the director asked the audience to share similar feelings and experiences with Tom — thereby including the audience in the therapy as well as giving support and encouragement to the protagonist.

"PSYCHODRAMA allows the person to see himself in action, to see himself through other people's eyes so he can assess himself in time and space," said Dr. Arthur Weinfeld, a clinical psychologist and psychodrama director on the staff of Northwest Mental Health Center, Arlington Heights, and currently running a psychodrama group at the I.C.E. House, Mount Prospect.

"With psychodrama you allow a person to, in action, go back and finish 'unfinished' business with people, experiences and feelings. The sores of yesterday gnaw at the person today; until it is finished a person can't live in the here and now," he continued.

"PSYCHODRAMA also allows a person, through action, to experience future projections and fantasies. He can look at the consequences of his behavior in the future by acting out his projection. He can practice alternative ways of reacting to a situation, or can begin to work on changing in preparation for the future," he said.

The group system also enables a person to work on current problems. Relationships with family and friends, employment situations, any conflict can be examined with psychodrama.

This psychotherapeutic group system was created by Viennese psychiatrist J. L. Moreno, who, with his wife Zerkka, still teaches the techniques at the Moreno Institute, Beacon, N.Y. Psychodrama has become increasingly popular with therapists and is being used in all types of groups — for the severely mentally ill, in rehabilitation programs for addicts and alcoholics, with children, adolescents and adults, and in growth groups for healthy people with problems.

"WE BELIEVE that action is as important to the individual as thinking, as the mind," Dr. Weinfeld said. "Sitting around saying 'I hate' hasn't the same quality as actually hating. I think for most people psychodrama is the most meaningful experience they've ever had."

"There are three parts to a psychodrama," explained Elaine Sachnoff, a clinical psychologist and certified psychodrama director who teaches the system to social therapists studying at Forest Hospital, Des Plaines. "It begins with a warm up which creates a climate so the person feels comfortable enough to share a problem."

"Then we move into the action portion. The person decides what he wants to work on and how. He takes full responsibility for everything that happens. He sets the stage, he chooses people from the audience to be his auxiliaries, to take the roles of those he wants to work with — mother, father, spouse, child, etc., and he is responsible for correcting the auxiliaries if they say or do the wrong thing."

THE PROTAGONIST could be an alcoholic working on the source of his alcoholism or acting out a fantasy of not drinking at a cocktail party. Or he could be the boy next door looking into his relationship with his peers or sisters and brothers. Or she could be any suburban woman using psychodrama to solve problems with her husband, parents or children.

"During the sharing, or the third part of psychodrama, the director, role players and audience give feedback to the protagonist," Elaine said. "The major purpose is to get the protagonist off the stage and back into the group. As the group members share experiences and feelings the protagonist feels better, knowing others understand, knowing he's not alone."

"WHAT YOU HAVE WITH psychodrama is people helping people," Dr. Weinfeld added. "It's therapeutic in that group members really get the sense of helping someone else. Sharing is speaking from the first person — not advice giving or interpretation. Even a 17-year-old can have the same feelings as a 50-year-old. We're all human; we all share feelings."

When directed by an experienced, qualified therapist, psychodrama can be "dynamite," according to Elaine. "It can go very deep very quickly. Often the protagonist winds up with important insights, or resolves something that's been bothering him for years."

The first-time observer might find psychodrama an unusual method of therapy. But, Weinfeld smiles, "there's a method to our madness and our techniques. Psychodrama is no act. The best session is one that seems most real to the protagonist. We work with problems in action, and not from a distance."

ESPECIALLY FOR THE FAMILY

For parents

An explanation of hard rock

NEW YORK (UPI) — Hey, there, parent. The kids upstairs or in the basement have the rock music on so loud you can't hear yourself screaming to the top of your voicebox — "Turn that down!"

It's hard rock they're playing and clearly you do not understand why it should be so loud, do you? Well, make way for Ron Berier, a 23-year-old who was backstage manager of "The Syndrome," the late rock palace of Chicago.

In a report in the PTA magazine, he provides a primer on hard rock. It's just for parents.

"If you want to understand hard rock, Mother and Dad," he writes, "then let me suggest that you ride the music."

Ride the what? The music, like the man said.

"With its nasty, angry lyrics, hard rock music provides teenagers with an easy out," he says.

"NO COMMITMENT is asked of the teenager who sits in a bedroom with a portable radio or in a concert hall with a recording group, cheering the songs he hears. The bedroom and the concert hall are protected zones for the teenager. Unorthodox thoughts elicit no reprisals, no punishments. No parents lurk there."

Sociologists say that teenagers go to rock concerts largely to express an ill-defined, yet tenacious affinity with their peers. At the concerts they can hear the noisy anthems of their generation, they can cheer the performers, they can go home happy — having reaffirmed their roles as guerrillas in the ranks of the youth revolution.

Other points for parents who want to know about the music ride in hard rock:

—"Hard rock, parents should remember, is a direct, primary conveyor of the youth subculture. Yet, like some forms of preaching, hard rock is necessarily anti-intellectual. The words, while occasionally important, are more often ancillary."

—"IF YOU HAVE the emotional potential (while riding the music) despite the fact that you're adults, then perhaps hard rock can spirit you away, too, on that incredible emotional journey your teenagers take."

—"The purpose of hard rock, as most adolescents know and most adults must learn, is complete release: that euphoric state of mind and emotion that exists on Everest above the common human experimental level."

—"Hard rock . . . invades the body of the listener capable of experiencing it on every sensory level. Historically, young people have been more open than adults to new ways of feeling human experience. This explains in part, perhaps, their pleasure in — and their commitment to — hard rock music."

See?
Er, listen!

THE PSYCHODRAMA IS complete, Mark's conflict has been resolved and group members join together for a time of sharing. Despite differences in age and lifestyle most group members are able to relate to Mark's feelings. They use this time to let Mark know he is not alone in his problem, that they care and empathize.

She's 90 Years Old Today

Today, Feb. 15, marks a milestone for Mrs. Jennie Graf, 816 N. Gibbons, Arlington Heights. She is celebrating her 90th birthday.

Two and one-half years ago Mrs. Graf suffered a stroke and through the lending closet of the Arlington Heights Nurses Club, she enjoys the comforts of a hospital bed, wheelchair, lift and commode.

The nonagenarian is herself a registered nurse, a 1905 graduate of Augustana Hospital. Her three sisters were also registered nurses, as is her daughter, Ellen Hartman, with whom she makes her home. One son, Carl, is a doctor practicing in Morton Grove, and another, John, is an attorney in Evanston. Mrs. Graf's husband was also a doctor whom she met while he was interning at Augustana.

Mrs. Hartman, following a family tradition, also graduated from Augustana Hospital, and she was a visiting nurse in Evanston for many years before her retirement to care for her mother.

Mrs. Hartman is a 17-year member of the Arlington Heights Nurses Club which makes nursing equipment available, free of charge, to all residents of Arlington Heights. Members take turns dispensing the equipment. Mrs. Morton Clotfelter, 394-9131, is in charge for February; Mrs. Lloyd Moody, 259-3578, will be in charge for March. Mrs. Ronald Drafft, 253-2419, is in charge of crutches and Mrs. Donald Kjerland, 253-6578, is responsible for vaporizers.

District Juniors to get info on brain research

Lawrence J. Linck, of Hinsdale, vice president of the Brain Research Foundation, will be guest speaker tonight for the winter meeting of the 7th District Juniors, Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs.

Junior Director Mrs. Raymond Crouch, Arlington Heights, will preside at the 8:15 business session at Rolling Meadows City Hall.

Support of the Brain Research Foundation has been a project of the Illinois Junior clubs for over 10 years. They have contributed over $200,000 to aid on-going research projects and toward the erection of an $8½ million Brain Research Institute building at the University of Chicago.

THE JUNIORS have also been instrumental in initiating Brain Research Week in Illinois each October, with the affiliate clubs conducting timely candy and bake sales and similar activities to raise funds for the foundation.

Research at the new institute is contributing to the prevention of disease and injury, the treatment of illness and crippling, and the understanding of human behavior.

How to deal with dream

Children's dreams are more vivid and real to them than the same dreams would be to an adult. So it's important for parents to learn how to cope with problems caused by too vivid dreams.

Here are two suggestions for handling the situation:

1. If the child is having a bad dream but is not awake, it's probably best to let him sleep through it rather than awaken him. He may continue to sleep and never remember the nightmare.

2. If the child wakes up, take time to comfort and reassure him in his own room. Parents should not take the child to bed with them; this can lead to worse problems later on.

Sorority to pick Sweetheart

The Pottng Shed

by Mary B. Good

"Have you got a pussycat in the crawl space?" my husband demanded as I glided by with a glass of milk.

"No, I'm just going down to water my plants," I responded.

Said he: "I thought you watered plants with WATER? Next thing I know, you'll be giving the little buggers blueberry pie!"

Well, maybe it does look strange to the uninformed, (that's you, my love), but milk works wonders in saving forced tulip and hyacinth bulbs, that have been hit with powdery mildew (humidity too high). Given the milk treatment and a spot with better ventilation, tulips responded with an inch growth of pipe within three days. I should have nice flowers for Easter.

This powdery mildew stuff is a fungus that produces white, powdery growth on the outer bulb scales. And because it is on the plant surface, it is one of the diseases that can be controlled successfully, even when widespread.

I ALSO USE vinegar water (one cup of white vinegar in one quart of water) for damping off disease of newly-emerging seedlings. That is one to remember when you begin to start your punch-and-grow lettuce, petunias, etc. If a seedling sprouts, then quickly dies, THAT is damping off disease.

A use for sugar water in insect control means adding one part of sugar in 25 parts of water to zap nematodes. These are minute ceworms that cause galls (swellings) on the roots of plants.

I wouldn't trade my crawl space for two stand-up greenhouses. (No, I take that back!) Even with the crawl space's inconveniences — like bumping my head on water pipes and getting my clothes full of sand — it is outfitted to meet growing specs. I've got Gro-lux lights, a heater with a thermostat, a fan to circulate the air and three ranges of tempera-

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: I was washing out a couple of good plastic bags when my sister walked in. She watched me finish and hang them on the towel rack to dry. I'm sure you know few things can be worse than a sister-argument and this was a beaut. She laid me out for carrying pack-rat habits too far; I lit into her claiming plastics were ideal to reuse particularly since they can't be recycled and so on. Since you're the pack-rat queen, I'd like to get you into this family fight. What's your position? —Barbara Ann W.

If ever I saw a "fix," this is it! You know very well where I stand. Of course, I save plastic bags, especially the quilted kind, which are excellent for freezing purposes. As to the recycling problem, you're right there, too. Some progress has been made, but there's a long way to go. Anyway, that's not the central argument. Should you or shouldn't you save plastic bags? I say sure, and so will many others.

Dear Dorothy: Water is leaking from a shower stall through the hall ceiling below. A neighbor who loves to do things around the house said he would help me if we knew what to do. Have you ever run into this type of problem?

—Henry D.

Yes, indeed — and what you need is not a helpful, handy neighbor but a good plumber. In our case, the plumber's diagnosis was that the lead pan under the shower stall had sprung a leak. He was right. And having seen what he had to do I can only say it's no job for amateurs.

Dear Dorothy: Here's a time-and-money-saver — leftover waffles are frozen and at the appropriate time later are popped into the toaster for a quickie breakfast. —Mrs. Richard Voss tures — 40 degrees for forcing bulbs (and curing my pickled herring), 50 degrees for holding temperatures and 70 for germinating.

I read in the news section where the village of Arlington Heights is faced with a $210,000 expense to excavate so there is room for more garbage. What happened to the big effort to recycle newspapers, cans and bottles at the fire stations and take newspapers to the Southminster Presbyterian Church collection bin?

Nobody composting, either? Eggshells, coffee grounds, banana peels, clothes dryer lint, the contents of the vacuum cleaner bag, even the hair from your hairbrush, any garbage except meat or fats is great for the compost pile. And compost makes humus soil, the same product it takes Mother Nature 500 years to produce under natural conditions.

You can collect your compost "makings" all winter long in a large plastic bag and let it stay frozen until spring at the back of your property or some unobtrusive spot.

"I'VE OFTEN wondered why the garbage collectors don't charge by the container? Too much bookkeeping? Sometimes the only way to get people to cooperate is touch them in the pocketbook.

If one family with four garbage-cans loads a week had to pay twice as much as another family who put out two a week, or one, or one every other week, I'd bet we'd see a lot more recycling effort. Let the polluters pay for their waste and the recyclers/composters be rewarded with savings, and perhaps the townspeople wouldn't have to toss their money into a $210,000 hole.

A 1913 Setting for 1973 fashions

The Palmer House in Chicago will be a scene of Edwardian elegance next Tuesday when members of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Infant Welfare Society of Chicago, dressed in Edwardian gowns, will be strolling about reflecting that era of 60 years ago when the Auxiliary was founded.

The Edwardian setting will be the scene of the Society's annual Lollipops and Roses benefit, a luncheon-fashion show in which all 50 Chicago area centers participate. Fashions will, of course, be contemporary with two members and two children from each Center modeling ensembles from Blums Vogue and Marian Michael of Winnetka.

Chairman of the luncheon, at which more than 1000 guests are expected, is Mrs. Richard Berkshire of Prospect Heights. Mrs. Berkshire is a past president of the Mount Prospect Center and in 1971 served as one of the models representing her center. Last year she served as chairman of the all-center benefit.

DOZENS OF members from the Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Palatine Centers, who regularly give their services to the Infant Welfare, and their friends, will be among the guests. Mrs. Richard Burtett, president of the Arlington Heights Center, will be heading a contingent of guests from her center as will Mrs. William Cameron, president of the Mount Prospect Center, and Mrs. Ernest Howard, president of the Palatine Center.

Modeling will be Mrs. Craig Hill and Devin Hill of the Palatine Center, Mrs. Bernard Hulseberg and Virginia Hulseberg, Mount Prospect; and Mrs. Michael Wilt and Lauri King, Arlington Heights.

Special events chairmen who have worked closely with the auxiliary are Mrs. Jack Driscoll, Palatine; Mrs. Terrence Leahy, Mount Prospect; and Mrs. Robert Fivian, Arlington Heights.

MRS. EDWARD CARPENTER of the Arlington Heights Center is first vice president of the auxiliary and standing committee members include Mrs. John Ostrem, Mrs. Berkshire and Mrs. Guy Courtney, Mount Prospect; and Mrs. Robert G. Kodl and Mrs. Norbert Rosenhauer, Palatine.

Proceeds of the benefit will be used to help maintain the Infant Welfare Philip D. Armour Child and Family Center in Chicago. The center is a two-component service: a medical clinic provides physical (including dental) care for all women and for children to age 16 in the community; the Child Development Center operates a therapeutic nursery school for emotionally disturbed pre-schoolers, counsels their parents and sees children in diagnostic play groups.

Infant Welfare who will represent their centers as models Tuesday. The Lollipops and Roses benefit luncheon at the Palmer House will have an Edwardian theme to mark the 60th anniversary of the society.

RECAPTURING yesteryear at the Historical Society and Museum of Arlington Heights are Mrs. Bernard Hulseberg, Mount Prospect, Mrs. Michael Wilt, Arlington Heights, and Mrs. Craig Hill, Palatine, members of

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Kispert

Marilyn Gillen, groom living in Indianapolis

Recent newlyweds Marilyn Gillen of Arlington Heights and Kenneth Kispert of Orlando, Fla., are living in Indianapolis, Ind., where both are employed. They were married Jan. 20 in the Casa Royale, Des Plaines, and then feasted at a reception there by 150 guests.

Marilyn is the daughter of the Thomas R. Gillens of 510 E. Miner St. Her sister, Elizabeth, was her maid of honor and cousins, Patricia and Colleen Benson, Arlington Heights, were bridesmaids.

THE GROOM'S parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Kispert, came from their home in Orlando for the late afternoon festivities.

Kenneth's brother David was his best man and ushers were four of his friends: David Byl, Robert Stewart, Rick Dorberly and Steve Kelly.

The bride chose a white velvet gown with lace and ribbon trim and carried a bouquet of white daisies and yellow roses. Her attendants wore wine colored velvet and carried white and yellow daisies.

Before returning to Indianapolis, the newlyweds honeymooned for 10 days in Florida.

The bride is a graduate of Arlington High School.

A reminder to brides

The Herald reminds brides-to-be of the deadlines in effect for reporting wedding news. Full information is printed on forms available in all the Herald offices.

For detailed wedding story (including gown descriptions) information is due within three weeks following wedding date. Information received in Herald office after three weeks and up to five weeks following wedding date will be used for a brief story only or caption.

Accompanying picture should be a black and white glossy close-up photo (bouquet and up) of bridal pair or bride alone. At the discretion of the editors and the Herald photo department, color photos may or may not be used, depending on color tones contrast and clarity. Small snapshots are not acceptable.

We suggest the bride or some member of the family select a photo for the newspaper immediately upon receiving photographer's proof. Better yet — have the photographer make a selection and send it immediately to the Herald office. Any delay may mean missing the deadline.

If your photographer cannot comply with deadlines, write-up will be published without a photo providing information is in the Herald office before the deadline.

If wedding bells will soon be ringing in your family, we want to hear them, too.

There is no charge for publishing this news.

New design for dentures

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — For years, one adhesive product or another has been advertised as the best method of keeping your dentures firmly in your mouth.

Now, a dental researcher says he has an idea that might do a still better job. It's a redesigned false tooth.

"We have been indoctrinated to think nature's form is best," says Dr. Max Sosin of the University of Southern California's school of dentistry. "We traditionally construct dentures to reproduce natural teeth as exactly as possible."

"This is fitting a round peg into a square hole."

Sosin said there is a substantial amount of clinical evidence that no matter how much a false tooth looks like a natural one, it just won't perform as well.

The difference is the change in a person's mouth when his teeth are gone, he said. The highly specialized gum tissues suddenly become nonspecialized and ordinary shaped teeth don't function as well.

The answer for the edentulous (toothless) person might be a "bladed tooth" using the principle of the chopping blade, which Sosin says was "one of the earliest instruments used to reduce food to a manageable size."

The bladed tooth is used to replace the grinding teeth at the back of the mouth. Instead of a broad surface, the molars and bicuspids come to a smooth point, and will contact simultaneously no matter what position the jaw is in.

"We have reduced the area of the tooth by one-seventh to allow it to have the same penetrating effect as the average molar," Sosin said. "There is only one point of contact between upper and lower teeth."

However, there is a drawback — it takes more chewing to grind up food.

"But the patient can manage these strokes, something that he may not be able to do with conventional tooth structures," Sosin said.

An additional feature of Sosin's denture design is a much larger base than is customary.

"By using every square millimeter possible to support the denture, the resulting appliance distributes the force of impact during eating, talking, etc., so that the tissue of the jaw bone is subject to as little shock as possible," he said.

Sosin has been working on the design for 20 years and reports success in fitting patients who had been unable to adapt to conventional dentures.

Muscle disorder

Muscular dystrophy is the name given to a group of chronic non-contagious progressive diseases which are characterized by wasting and consequent weakness of the voluntary muscles.

The National Health Education Committee continues its definition of the disorder by saying: "Though the rate of progression varies in the various types, most of the voluntary musculature finally becomes involved. As weakness increases, patients are confined to wheel chairs and finally to bed." (UPI).

Abortion crusade continues

by PATRICIA MCCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — Now that the Supreme Court of the United States has ruled that the states may not interfere with prohibitions on the abortion front (during the first two trimesters), the next question is this:

Does the National Association for the Repeal of Abortion Laws (NARAL) go out of business? The NARAL has been in the front lines of the campaign to get the landmark decision from the Supreme Court.

Laurence Lader, chairman of the Board of NARAL, said in an interview that his organization is going to be busier than ever. He had hardly said that when something he predicted happened: a U. S. senator who was out of the country when the Supreme Court decision was handed down now says he will ask the Congress to come up with a constitutional amendment restoring control over abortion.

Sen. James Buckley, R. — N.Y., is expected to have a lot of support, especially from the Right to Life movement which speaks of the constitutional rights of the fetus — a question the Supreme Court did not address itself to. Rather, the court considered the mother's right to privacy, saying that the states shall not interfere with a decision she and her doctor make.

IN THE INTERVIEW, Lader anticipated more than the move for the constitutional amendment. He said there may be an effort to seek legislation that guarantees the husband's rights when abortion is contemplated. Does a man, for example, have a right to oppose the contemplated fetal death involved in abortion? The fetus is as much his as his wife's. This, Lader noted, is a complicated question. He expects it to be raised.

Lader said the NARAL is active in most of the states and counts as institutional members over 75 national and state organizations. Some he cited: the United Methodist Church, the National Organization for Women, Zero Population Growth, the American Civil Liberties Union of New York.

To help implement abortions since the Supreme Court decision, Lader said NARAL is going to set up model abortion clinics in every state "as soon as possible."

He expressed fears over hospitals handling the abortions. "We don't want women to feel guilty," he said. "There is a chance of that in hospitals. Also the hospital experience is more costly and involves an overnight stay."

"IN THE free-standing clinic there is counseling and the right atmosphere. The base price is around $120 and it all takes just three to four hours, including the counseling."

Lader said his organization also intends to continue its battle against commercial abortion referral services. He said that usually takes $75 onto the bill.

"We also intend in the months ahead to have introduced in every state legislative measures calling for the repeal of all abortion laws in the criminal code."

We want to eliminate any mention of abortion in any criminal code. It is degrading."

The NARAL also is going to try to "put pressure on Blue Cross and Blue Shield plans that will not cover abortion costs on an out-patient basis."

There is more than the NARAL saying that the abortion crusade, as it has been called, is far from over. While the Right to Life movement, fueled by support from Catholics who oppose abortion, is pushing in one direction, another Catholic group is pulling in the opposite direction.

THE "OPPOSITE" group is called Catholics for the Elimination of all Restrictive Abortion and Contraception Laws. Patricia McQuillan, head of that New York based group, said the organization expects to operate in all the states eventually.

"Our position is that all the laws should be off the books," she said. "A woman's body is not state property. The Supreme Court ruling still says the state can tamper with a woman's uterus after six months of a pregnancy."

Miss McQuillan said a number of nuns who are authorities in sacred theology are in her organization. "We are against socialized uterus," she said.

Juniors' circus nets $3,300

"My sincerest thanks to all that made the circus show such a big success!" were the words used by Arlington Heights Junior's President Mrs. Carl Kramer to express her appreciation for the more than $3,300 raised by this project destined to be donated to philanthropies.

Brain research will receive $1,500, cancer research will receive $500, and $650 will be given in scholarships for teachers of exceptional children at three Illinois universities.

The Kidney Foundation will receive $150 and $200 will go to the community improvement project for the establishing of a library for Kirk, Clearbrook and Countryside Schools. Two hundred dollars will be donated to Gateway House, a rehabilitation center in Chicago, and Lake Villa for drug addicts.

The National Association of Retarded Children will receive $100, and others such as Project Concern, CARE, Indian Scholarship Fund for Indian children in the Chicago area, and veteran's hospitals will also be recipients of monies earned through the circus show.

It's fashion

by United Press International

Simple, not plain. That's the shape of '73 fashions, according to Mildred Sullivan, director of the New York Couture Business Council. "And it's a well-known fashion axiom: the simpler or more classic the shape, the more important the fabric and color story. Sugary pastels, sparkling white, fields of florals, soft luxurious fabrics or nubby naturals are the raw materials. No hard lines, no harsh tones . . . even structured shapes take soft fabrics."

The shirtwaist springs up again for spring and summer. It's done deluxe in soft crepe de chine, jersey and silk. It's also available in all kinds of plain fabrics. The shape tends to be softer than ever with fuller sleeves, blouson tops, pleated skirts. The drawstring-waist shirtdress makes sportive news.

The sleeveless dress most to be seen this spring comes with jacket — either matching or contrasting with bright stripes, geometric or strong pattern.

The jacket is the constant element in any separate formula this spring. The silhouettes range from cardigans to wear over everything to the short blouson baseball jacket, a skirt jacket or a smoking jacket. The blouson looks good with short puffed or roll-up sleeves, or a full gathered back. The jacket with the drawstring waist may be one of spring's most popular themes.

The New York Couture Business Council says pants stride into spring with classic chic, in linen-look fabrics, chambray, gabardine, cord. They play it soft with baggy shapes and palazzo; straight and narrow with the new cigarette shapes.

A new pants twist for spring: seams down the front and back.

The Consumer

by Monica Wilch

"We started adding up the bills," the female voice sighed over the radio, "and we just decided we needed help."

The woman in the commercial then recounted how she and her husband visited their friendly neighborhood lending institution, where the people were "so friendly" and made her feel "so at ease" and — most amazing of all — actually "made money happen!"

Strip away all the euphemism and what you have is a couple who are in debt and who have just borrowed more money to pay the bills, thus putting themselves even deeper in debt.

Common sense would seem to dictate that if you already owe too much money, the last thing you ought to do is add to that debt. Yet this is what thousands of Americans do every day, at the urging of "the friendly people at . . . finance company."

When other kinds of commercial businesses are prohibited from practicing deceptive advertising, why is it that lending institutions are allowed to paint a deceptively rosy picture of their services, implying that your financial problems will be solved with a loan from them; that they are practically giving money away free; that you will be able to reduce your debts when in fact you will be increasing them?

WHY DO THEY not mention that when you "consolidate" all your bills into "just one monthly bill," that bill will be significantly greater than the total of your original bills?

Recent government figures indicate that Americans owe about $106 billion — not counting automobile and mortgage loans. The Federal Trade Commission has been investigating charges of abuse, harassment, and deception in debt collection. During the course of these hearings, it has become apparent that many of the victims of debt collector harassment are people who have overextended themselves — according to Consumer Reports, "sometimes with the enthusiastic help of credit sources."

The hearings disclosed many cases like that of the Edward Harrigan, who were hopelessly in debt already when the New York office of a national finance company granted them a loan of $1,200. Seven months later, under the burden of debts now totaling $8,000, the Harrigans declared bankruptcy.

But that wasn't the end. Less than a year later, a loan company representative called Mrs. Harrigan about repayment of a debt, and Mrs. Harrigan explained about the bankruptcy, adding that her husband was in the hospital and she and her two children on welfare. Whereupon, the caller offered her another loan of $300.

WHEN LOAN companies are so eager to make loans that they go to these lengths in their business practices, it is not hard to believe that their ads are purposely geared to delude.

But it's difficult to pin down in the usual terms just what specifically should be left out of these ads, or what they should contain. The ads are pure imagery, with subtle motivational undertones. This is an area which only in the last 10 to 15 years has been researched by psychologists and exploited by ad men — but still has not been dealt with by any regulatory agencies to any extent. The only inroads so far have been in connection with children's and political advertising.

But very possibly it is something that cannot or should not ultimately be controlled by law. Definitely there is a lot of room for improvement in the quality of these ads. Some basic regulations requiring more factual content and less delusive reference to "making money happen" would be helpful.

But a better approach, in the end, might be to educate the public so that people aren't so gullible as to believe such simplistic and illogical assertions.

A GOOD start in that direction would be to send for the U.S. Department of Agriculture publication "Consumers' Quick Credit Guide." It gives tips on buying on installment, the cost of credit, understanding percentage rates and borrowing money. Also included are specific things to remember and questions to ask before using credit.

New 7% fare hike? Commuters don't like it

by KAREN BLECHIA

They might not like it, but commuters who use the Chicago & North Western Ry. for daily trips to the Loop already are prepared for a possible 7 per cent rate increase being sought by the railroad.

And even though they complain, most of them say that daily service is more important than the cost because if the trains ever stop, thousands of suburbanites will not just be inconvenienced, they will be stranded without jobs in the empty suburbs.

"Yech" is the way Kathleen Peters of Arlington Heights feels about the 7 per cent fare increase proposed by the Chicago and North Western. But, like most commuters, she said she "would rather have the fare increase than a decrease in service."

After all, what can you do if you depend on the train to take you downtown five days a week? "You don't like the hike, but you have to accept it," said Daniel Mulcahy, who has been a C&NW passenger for the past 15 years.

The way Bud Daskel of Mount Prospect explains it, the C&NW "has sort of a captive audience with the commuters who don't have a choice because it's the only way for them to get downtown."

"I'd still ride the train. There's no way my nerves could take driving downtown," said Fred Booth of Wheeling, adding that he just started riding the train last August when the C&NW raised rates by 5 1/4 per cent.

A new fare increase won't stop Raymond Brodt of Des Plaines from riding the train, either. "I'm not in favor of the increase. I think the Chicago and North Western has had sufficient hikes in the past years and that those should be adequate," said the rider of 13 years. "But I think the North Western provides excellent service."

LARRY PROVO, president of the railway company, said the C&NW is finding it increasingly difficult to maintain present commuter service in the face of rising costs and increased competition. The C&NW first proposed the hike last November, with hopes it would go into effect by Jan. 1.

For commuters like Brodt, the hike would mean an increase of between $2.20 and $2.70 on the price of a monthly ticket. For those who ride the train only a few times a week, like Michael Spratlin of Palatine, the hike would mean 20 cents more for a round-trip ticket to the Loop.

"It's terrible. They just raised the rates last August," said Spratlin, who said he is a student and "always going broke." But Spratlin, who often stops in Arlington Heights to give music lessons, likes the C&NW service. "The people are very friendly and they help me board the train with my instruments."

Vicki Selman, from Prospect Heights, said she rides the train about once a month and feels "terrible" about the proposed increase. She said she'd probably take a car instead if the hike is approved.

FOUR DAYS of hearings by the Illinois Commerce Commission on the proposed hike ended last week. According to Tom Judge of C&NW, the ICC will make a decision on the increase in April. He said an increase, if approved, would probably go into effect May 1, although it's up to Village weighing $23 million Levitt projects

by JILL BETTNER

Plans for two projects proposed by Levitt & Sons Inc., totalling almost $23 million, were discussed Tuesday night in a public hearing conducted by the Buffalo Grove Village Board.

No formal action was taken on Levitt's request for annexation and zoning of a 50-acre "Koepfer Demuth Parcel" east of Arlington Heights Road and north of Rte. 83. The same was true for a nearby 61-acre "Wagner Parcel" south of Apple Road and east of Arlington Heights Road.

Ken Campbell, representing Levitt, told the board that Levitt plans to build 75 single-family homes, 225 apartment condominiums and 52 townhouse condominiums on the Wagner parcel. The Koepfer-Demuth parcel is to be developed with 284 townhouse condominiums.

A retention pond that may also be used for recreation is planned on the Koepfer-Demuth parcel fronting Arlington Heights Road.

This development is to have a 14-acre neighborhood park, but lots and bicycle or pedestrian walkways. The paths will eventually provide access to a commercial area planned at the intersection of Rte. 83 and Arlington Heights Road, Campbell said.

A LAKE ALSO is planned on the Wagner parcel in addition to two or three lot lots and walkways.

Park Board Pres. William Kiddie objected to the proposed recreation facilities, particularly to the small size of the planned neighborhood park.

Kiddie also said the proposed 16 acres of public open space in the Wagner parcel are "virtually unacceptable to us under current conditions." The land has severe drainage problems.

Campbell said Levitt plans to contour the 16 acres and perhaps later install an underground drainage system. The work, Campbell said, should make the land usable for recreation.

THE WAGNER parcel also includes a proposed school site located on poor soil. Only four to five acres of the 11-acre site is buildable.

The Dist. 96 School Board earlier rejected the site, but Supt. William Hiltzman indicated Monday that Levitt's plans to improve drainage in the area have caused the board to reconsider accepting the site.

If the Levitt projects are approved, a school north of Ill. Rte. 83 will become necessary. If the school board rejects the site Levitt will be required to aid Dist. 96 in another way.

As one alternative, Campbell told the school board Monday, Levitt would contribute cash instead of the school site. Campbell said Levitt would also be willing to donate the five buildable acres of the site and either give the district five more acres somewhere else or money to buy the land.

Hopes still alive for second firehouse

There's still a chance that there will be a second Buffalo Grove fire station on Dundee Road.

Officials of the Wheeling Rural Fire Protection District decided Monday to scrap a proposed real estate transaction to build the station. However, the deal is now on again.

The fire department has been planning to build the station on two acres of the six-acre site, which is located directly next to the Kingswood Methodist Church on the south side of Dundee Road. The department hopes to recover the cost of the land by selling the remaining four acres.

ORIGINALLY, the fire district requested that two acres of the site be zoned special use and the remaining acreage designated single family.

Winter said it had become apparent that no one would buy the property unless the zoning on the land to be resold was changed to commercial. When it appeared last week that the plan commission would support the master plan that calls for residential land uses in that area, Winter said the fire district board of trustees decided to forget the whole idea.

Yesterday Winter told the Herald that the deal was on again because the fire district has a potential buyer for the entire site and "a favorable indication" that the board may be persuaded to grant the needed commercial zoning.

Winter said the potential buyer of the property has promised to firm up the deal by Friday. If the deal goes through, Winter said the fire district will ask for another public hearing by the plan commission in the near future to consider the commercial zoning request.

This Morning In Brief

The nation

President Nixon reports the nation is well on its way to winning the war against air and water pollution, but said he would ask Congress to pass 19 pieces of legislation to help make the victory complete.

Former Teamsters Pres. James Hoffa said he is trying to arrange an early return to union activities, but has no intention to seek the ouster of his successor, Frank Fitzsimmons.

On orders from the White House Donald Johnson, Veterans Administration administrator recalled a tentative proposal to cut disability payments to Vietnam veterans.

The American Bar Association's House of Delegates, mindful that no-fault insurance could mean less income for some lawyers, gave a resounding defeat to a sweeping no-fault automobile insurance plan.

President Nixon explained the U.S.-Cuba hijackers pact does not mean the United States is ready to normalize relations with that nation.

The state

The Illinois House tabled a bill designed to liberalize the state's abortion laws after the bill's sponsor said it "may only add to the present confusion."

A spokesman for two unions representing the CTA, said the chance of averting a strike in the next week to 10 days was slim.

Valentine's Day was Homecoming Day for three of the Baer quintuplets. The quint is six weeks old. The two others must remain in the hospital until they weigh about 5 pounds.

The world

More American prisoners of war — their bags packed with gifts — began landing at Travis Air Force base in California for the best reunions of their lives.

A British soldier, shot in the back by a sniper, died in the hospital. He was the 43rd victim of violence in Northern Ireland this year.

Geologists have rejected suggestions that U.S. planes bomb the Helgafell volcano as a way of controlling the lava flows.

The war

Communist truce delegates gagged and gasped for air yesterday after a tear gas grenade was hurled into their compound at Tan Son Nhut Air Base. The incident followed continued haggling over the release of prisoners, and a step-up in a war that was supposed to have stopped last month.

The market

The widely followed Dow Jones Industrial average took its worst loss in 20 months as prices on the New York Stock Exchange plunged in an atmosphere of investor uncertainty surrounding devaluation of the dollar. Activity, however, was only moderate. The Dow closed at 979.91, off 16.85, worst loss for the average since June 18, 1971 when it fell 17.09. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index declined 1.68 to 115.10, and the price of an average NYSE common share lost 61 cents.

Stevenson High reviewing goals

Several residents, teachers and administrators from Stevenson High School Dist. 125 met earlier this week to begin work on a long-range educational program for the high school.

Six committees of five local citizens, two teachers, an administrator and a board member will examine Dist. 125, basic educational philosophy, instructional program, support services, board policies, physical facilities and administrative practices.

Supt. Harold Baner outlined techniques for examining the present philosophy and structure of Stevenson High School. He also discussed developing broad, new goals and objectives to meet the present and future student needs of the district.

HE POINTED out that this will fulfill a new requirement by the Office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction

which must be completed by Sept. 1, 1973.

Board Pres. Robert Anderson reviewed Stevenson's long history of working with local citizens in developing programs and noted that he was glad that the OSPI finally had caught up with Stevenson High School. Dist. 125 developed its first statement of educational philosophy in 1968. Among the listeners was Mrs. Dorothy Woods, a staff member of OSPI, who will be working with Dist. 125 on the program.

the commission to decide.
Until then commuters will have time to prepare for an increase. If they're thinking like R. Roch of Mount Prospect, they'll start looking for alternatives to riding the train.

"A group of friends and I are talking about forming a car pool if there's a hike," said Mrs. Roch who rides the train downtown six days a week. "I think an increase is ridiculous. If you consider driving downtown and even parking, the train almost costs as much now. It's terribly expensive."

One Mount Prospect commuter, who wouldn't give his name, doesn't think the C&NW deserves the hike. "Raising rates — it's all they've been doing in the past couple of years. I think they could get by with what they have now. They're like the CTA, they only lose more customers with every rate increase," he said.

"I'd just like to look at their books," was all one Arlington Heights commuter would say.

Fund lack sidelines creek projects

Work on two local creek projects will be postponed for at least a year because of lack of state funds, the chief engineer for the Illinois Division of Waterways said yesterday.

John Guillou, chief engineer, said there is not enough state money available during the 1973-74 state fiscal year to widen portions of McDonald Creek in Mount Prospect and the Wheeling Drainage Ditch as planned. The two projects are among 11 waterway programs throughout the state that will be delayed because there is no money available.

Guillou said the Illinois Bureau of the Budget has approved $4,945,000 of the Illinois Division of Waterways nearly $9 million budget request. As a result, he said, only 10 of the state's 21 projects will get money this fiscal year. "The waterways division chose its priorities on the basis of need," Guillou said.

The second phase of the McDonald Creek Improvement Project could be finished by 1975 if the state provides money for the program in the 1974-75 fiscal year, Guillou said. The second phase, estimated to cost $110,000, would provide for widening and other improvements from the Des Plaines River to Foundry Road.

GUILLLOU estimated that the entire McDonald Improvement Project, which should help alleviate flooding in Mount Prospect and Prospect Heights, will be completed in 10 years. Most of the work left to be done is upstream of the creek, north of the Wolf Road and Euclid Avenue intersection in Prospect Heights.

The McDonald Creek project was deferred, Guillou said, "because the greatest benefit will be the work which is going on now."

Currently the Soo Line RR bridge near Euclid Avenue and Wolf Road is being enlarged. An official of the Herlihy-Mid Continent Co., which is doing the work, said yesterday he expects it will be finished in several months.

As soon as the bridge work is completed, it will be better able to carry flood flow downstream to the Des Plaines River. Guillou said this will not create any more flooding than there is now in the area downstream from the bridge.

The Wheeling drainage project being delayed provides for channel improvements along the ditch from Wolf Road to Des Plaines River southeast of Wheeling. Last year, the state granted $80,000 for widening of the ditch upstream near the Meadow Brook West subdivision in Wheeling. The money was never used, however, because residents complained they would lose all trees along the creek if it was widened. The site for the improvements was then moved downstream.

New racing date session slated Tuesday

The Illinois Racing Board is scheduled to convene Tuesday to reconsider the 1973 racing schedule, specifically the dates awarded to racing associations controlled by William S. Miller.

Anthony Scarlano, board chairman, said he will ask Miller to show cause why dates assigned to Balmoral Jockey Club Inc. should not be revoked or reassigned to other associations.

Scarlano and Gov. Daniel Walker's racing board are seeking to revoke dates awarded last December by a lame duck racing board because of Miller's testimony before the state Legislative Investigating Commission and in the trial of former Gov. Otto Kerner.

During the trial, Miller admitted misrepresenting his interest in Balmoral to the old racing board.

ARLINGTON PARK Race Track could pick up all or some of the 27 racing days now assigned to the Balmoral association if the board is successful in its bid to overturn the existing schedule.

Arlington operators are hoping that the board will set an entirely new racing schedule and assign the more lucrative summer dates to the track here.

Right now, Arlington Park is scheduled to open April 19 and close July 24.

On a separate front, the Illinois Supreme Court has agreed to hear an emergency appeal on the racing schedule from Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott.

Scott too is seeking to revoke dates awarded to Miller's associations but last month a Circuit Court ruling upheld the 1973 dates schedule, including the 27 days for the Balmoral Jockey Club.

SUPREME COURT Justice Thomas E. Kluczynski set March 15 for a hearing in the attorney general's case. Scott said he is fighting the present schedule because it involves at least $48 million in state revenue.

The racing board also has assigned six charity racing dates to the Metropolitan Crusade of Mercy. The dates Feb. 22-28, will be run at Sportsman's Park and are expected to bring $150,000 to $200,000 to the charity.

Six other charity dates remain unsigned.

The charity dates became available when Chicago Tribune and Chicago Today charities relinquished their dates because of alleged impropriety in the old board's announcement of the 1973 dates.

Counterfeit money being passed in area

by STEVE BROWN

Businessmen throughout the Northwest suburbs have been warned to be on the lookout for a new batch of counterfeit currency that may be passed in this area.

Schaumburg police reported that more than $100 in bogus $10 bills were passed at Woodfield Mall last weekend.

They have speculated that more counterfeit notes may have been passed at the shopping center.

John Hanley, chief of the Chicago office of the Secret Service, said that while some reports have been received from this area, it does not appear the Northwest suburbs are the focal point of the counterfeit currency passers' efforts.

"We have seen these bills turn up in all sections of the city, around large shopping centers and other highly commercial areas," he said.

He said businessmen have been warned by local police to examine all currency used in business transactions.

Hanley said the notes apparently came from a counterfeiting operation in Chicago that was broken up in January.

REPORTEDLY, THE agents seized the counterfeiters, but the plates used in the operation were not confiscated.

Hanley said the incident was not connected to another counterfeiting ring in which a Schaumburg man was arrested last November.

There may be as much as $50,000 in counterfeit currency involved in this incident, according to police, but Hanley said it is impossible to determine how many of the $10 notes may be circulating in the area.

"We thought we had it all when we made the arrests, but the possibility exists there may be more in the area that has not been passed."

Hanley said Secret Service agents are investigating the incident to determine how widespread the situation may be and if there is a pattern to the method in which the counterfeit bills have been passed.

They might not like it, but commuters who use the Chicago & North Western Ry. for daily trips to the Loop already are prepared for a possible 7 per cent rate increase being sought by the railroad.

And even though they complain, most of them say that daily service is more important than the cost because if the trains ever stop, thousands of suburbanites will not just be inconvenienced, they will be stranded without jobs in the empty suburbs.

"Yech" is the way Kathleen Peters of Arlington Heights feels about the 7 per cent fare increase proposed by the Chicago and North Western. But, like most commuters, she said she "would rather have the fare increase than a decrease in service."

After all, what can you do if you depend on the train to take you downtown five days a week? "You don't like the hike, but you have to accept it," said Daniel Mulcahy, who has been a C&NW passenger for the past 15 years.

The way Bud Daskel of Mount Prospect explains it, the C&NW "has sort of a captive audience with the commuters who don't have a choice because it's the only way for them to get downtown."

"I'd still ride the train. There's no way my nerves could take driving downtown," said Fred Booth of Wheeling, adding that he just started riding the train last August when the C&NW raised rates by 5 1/2 per cent.

A new fare increase won't stop Raymond Brod of Des Plaines from riding the train, either. "I'm not in favor of the increase. I think the Chicago and North Western has had sufficient hikes in the past years and that those should be adequate," said the rider of 13 years. "But I think the North Western provides excellent service."

LARRY PROVO, president of the railway company, said the C&NW is finding it increasingly difficult to maintain present commuter service in the face of rising costs and increased competition. The C&NW first proposed the hike last November, with hopes it would go into effect by Jan. 1.

For commuters like Brod, the hike would mean an increase of between $2.20 and $2.70 on the price of a monthly ticket. For those who ride the train only a few times a week, like Michael Spratlin of Palatine, the hike would mean 20 cents more for a round-trip ticket to the Loop.

"It's terrible. They just raised the rates last August," said Spratlin, who said he is a student and "always going broke." But Spratlin, who often stops in Arlington Heights to give music lessons, likes the C&NW service. "The people are very friendly and they help me board the train with my instruments."

Vicki Selman, from Prospect Heights, said she rides the train about once a month and feels "terrible" about the proposed increase. She said she'd probably take a car instead if the hike is approved.

FOUR DAYS of hearings by the Illinois Commerce Commission on the proposed hike ended last week. According to Tom Judge of C&NW, the ICC will make a decision on the increase in April. He said an increase, if approved, would probably go into effect May 1, although it's up to

Can Behrel be beaten? Two think so

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

A News Analysis

"I'm home free — now that the vote is split," Mayor Herbert Behrel said Tuesday as the 5 p.m. doors closed on city hall.

Behrel was joking as the filing deadline passed for the city's April 17 election.

Behrel's jest may actually be a succinct analysis of the rush for the $25,000-a-year post as the city's chief executive.

A last-minute scramble pitched teacher Burton Kosmen into the mayoral race Tuesday — adding a third name behind those of Behrel and fireman David Wolf. Kosmen's candidacy drew the immediate suggestion that the four-term incumbent mayor may split the opposition and walk to another election victory.

POLITICAL REALITY suggests that office holders struggle to hold friends and make many enemies. Behrel is no exception. He can count on opposition from a number of city council members and anti-Behrel sentiment in some areas of Des Plaines, including the downtown 1st Ward and the West Side 8th Ward.

"All I have to run on is my record," Behrel said Tuesday. "I think the city has had good administration. Whoever my successor may be, he's going to find that he can't do it alone."

Behrel talked of the "cards we had listing our goals in the last election. I was surprised at the number of goals we accomplished in the last four years."

The non-accomplishments — the city plan, downtown redevelopment, environmental controls — probably will attract the most fire from Wolf and Kosmen.

THE MAYOR IS far from invincible.

Wolf — who released an impressive list of backers yesterday — appears as the top challenger for the mayor's job. Wolf has shown indications of a careful, researched campaign that will pick its spots and attempt to squeeze every possible vote from Des Plaines electorate.

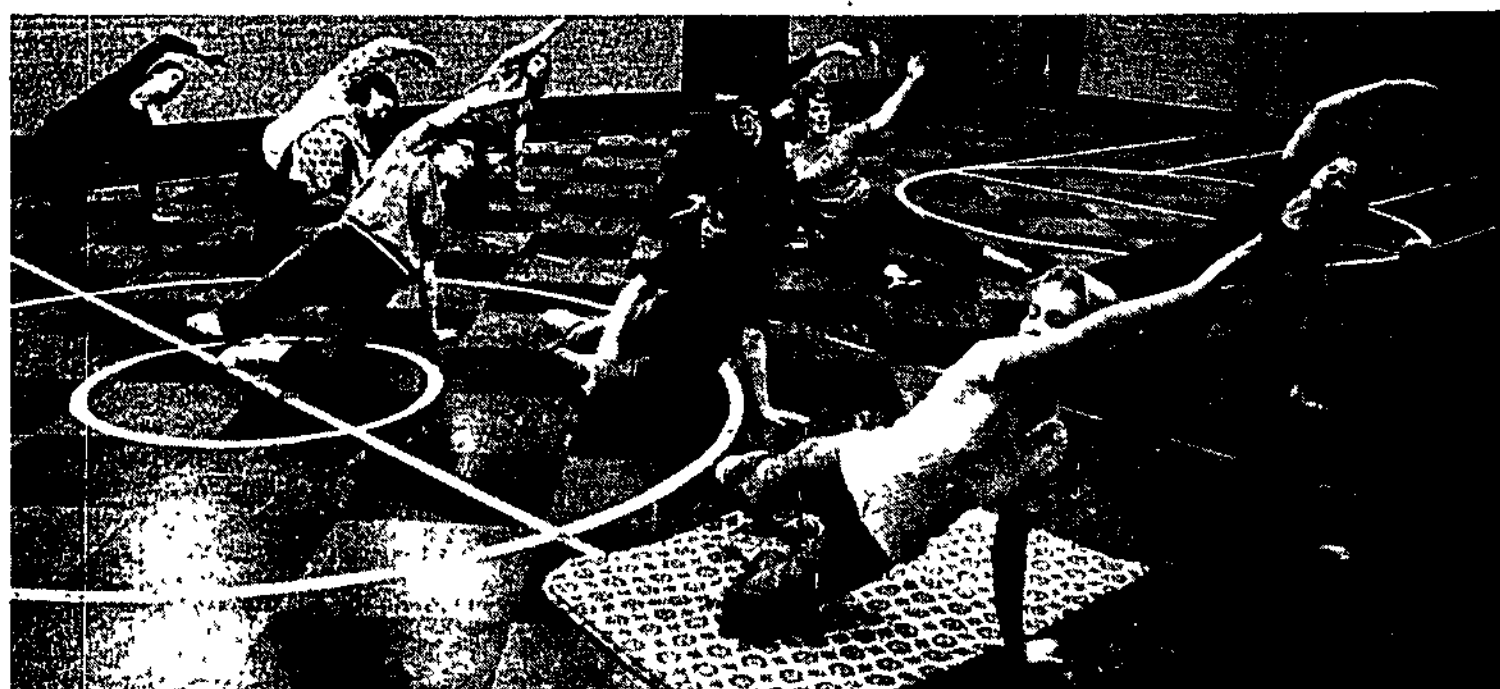

Campaigning on a leave of absence from the city fire department, Wolf probably will devote the most time to the two-month run for mayor. Behrel claims 41 public speeches during the 1969 election and Wolf may top that, working throughout the day this year.

Kosmen cannot be looked upon as a potential winner. "I'm a spoiler," he said. "I'm running to bring the issues out."

The question is — will Kosmen spoil Wolf's chances for victory or Behrel's chance for reelection?

KOSMEN, who has an unlisted tele-

Two incumbents, Park Ridge attorney

3 endorsed for Oakton College board

by KATHERINE BOYCE

Two incumbent trustees and a Park Ridge attorney were endorsed by the Oakton Community College convention Tuesday night for election to the college board of trustees April 14.

Paul Gilson, vice chairman of the Oakton board and chairman of the site committee; Raymond Hartstein, chairman of the community relations committee, and Thomas Schlake, of 2424 DeCook Ct., Park Ridge, received the majority of votes from convention delegates representing local school caucuses in Maine and Niles townships.

All three vacancies on the college board will be filled by three-year terms.

The third trustee up for reelection, LeRoy Wauck, yesterday announced he will not run again. Wauck, chairman of the college board since last spring, said he will support all three convention candidates.

Wauck told the Herald last month he hadn't decided to seek reelection but was opposed to the convention and would not appear before the delegates. Wauck, a psychology teacher at Loyola University, told the Herald his professional work at Rogers Memorial Hospital in Oconomowoc, Wis., this year will not permit him to run for the Oakton board.

THE OAKTON Community College Convention has no official connection with the school. The convention interviews candidates, endorses one person per vacancy and campaigns for its candidates.

Gene Sjostrand, chairman of the convention, told the Herald the convention would not actively campaign for its candidates by setting up a campaign headquarters or allocate funds for campaign literature. He said convention delegates would report back to their local school district caucus groups and ask them to support the convention candidates.

Residents of Maine and Niles townships may run as independent candidates by filing a nominating petition with 50 signatures with the college board secretary at the temporary campus, 7900 N. Nagle Ave., Morton Grove. Petitions may be picked up from the secretary after Feb. 28 and must be returned by March 24. Position on the ballot will be determined by the order in which petitions are received.

Seven candidates were accepted by the convention nominating committee. Edgar W. Sellers of Park Ridge withdrew from the race when he learned that he may be transferred out of state. Vivian Medak of Lincolnwood, Harold Liss and Bernard Kaplan both of Skokie, were defeated Tuesday night.

Liss, owner of Harold Liss Jewelers in Chicago, said he may run as an independent candidate. His candidacy is supported by the Niles North High School Parent Teacher Association. Kaplan, a lawyer and teacher at Roosevelt University, said he will not run as an independent candidate.

SCHLAK, 46, is a member of the law firm of Struck, Schlake and Schlake in Skokie. A resident of Park Ridge for 10 years, he is a member of the men's association at Lutheran General Hospital. He is married and has two children who attend St. Andrew's Lutheran School in Park Ridge.

Schlake gave the delegates three res-

The nation

President Nixon reports the nation is well on its way to winning the war against air and water pollution, but said he would ask Congress to pass 19 pieces of legislation to help make the victory complete.

Former Teamsters Pres. James Hoffa said he is trying to arrange an early return to union activities, but has no intention to seek the ouster of his successor, Frank Fitzsimmons.

On orders from the White House Donald Johnson, Veterans Administration administrator recalled a tentative proposal to cut disability payments to Vietnam veterans.

President Nixon explained the U.S.-Cuba hijackers pact does not mean the United States is ready to normalize relations with that nation.

The state

The Illinois House tabled a bill designed to liberalize the state's abortion laws after the bill's sponsor said it "may only add to the present confusion."

A spokesman for two unions representing the CTA, said the chance of averting a strike in the next week to 10 days was slim.

Valentine's Day was Homecoming Day for three of the Baer quintuplets. The quint is six-weeks old. The two others must remain in the hospital until they weigh about 5 pounds.

The world

More American prisoners of war — their bags packed with gifts — began landing at Travis Air Force base in California for the best reunions of their lives.

A British soldier, shot in the back by a sniper, died in the hospital. He was the 43rd victim of violence in Northern Ireland this year.

Geologists have rejected suggestions that U.S. planes bomb the Heigafell volcano as a way of controlling the lava flows.

The war

Communist truce delegates gagged and gasped for air yesterday after a tear gas grenade was hurled into their compound at Tan Son Nhut Air Base. The incident followed continued haggling over the release of prisoners, and a step-up in a war that was supposed to have stopped last month.

The market

The widely followed Dow Jones Industrial average took its worst loss in 20 months as prices on the New York Stock Exchange plunged in an atmosphere of investor uncertainty surrounding devaluation of the dollar. Activity, however, was only moderate. The Dow closed at 979.91, off 18.85, worst loss for the average since June 18, 1971 when it fell 17.09. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index declined 1.68 to 115.10, and the price of an average NYSE common share lost 61 cents.

Place For People is dead. Its obituary appeared last week on the front page of the Herald.

Its passing is mourned by few for the end has been in sight since last spring. Even back then death seemed inevitable but those who had put so much time, so much energy, so much faith and so much caring into the Place rallied around to give it another chance at life.

Obviously it didn't work. A disease called "lack" had sunk its teeth so far into the Place and wasn't about to let go. Lack killed the Place. This disease has been around almost since the Des Plaines youth center organized three years ago. A symptom of lack has frequently been pegged by the newspapers as "financially troubled." It was only a symptom but it was an important and a discouraging one.

Financially troubled means no money. No money means no activities, no salaries, no rent, no bills paid.

THERE WAS some money — otherwise the Place wouldn't have lasted as long as it did. Money came in small amounts — $10, $20, $100 — from churches, service clubs, private individuals, dinner dances, fund-raising projects. But it took thousands to run the Place and no one was willing to give thousands.

I was one of several volunteers who attempted to get a sizable grant for Place For People. I like the others, was turned down by the best of them — field Foundation, Wieboldt's Foundation, Ford, Carnegie, Stone, DuPont, McCormick. In one week I was turned down for grant requests totaling more than $40,000.

The big disappointments were the ones close to home. We had counted on local business and industry to show some support but received next to none. There were donations of materials and services — which were tremendously appreciated — but no local company was willing to put up several thousand dollars to keep us going.

One company gave all its charitable money to Boys Town, another donated to only anthropological causes, a third put its foundation money into scholarships, others gave out grants only through corporate offices in other parts of the United States where Place For People was not a household word.

THE DES PLAINES Community Chest came through with money for last year. They gave the Place enough to pay the rent. It was something but it just wasn't enough and the $2,300 debt that went with the closing of the Place proves it.

Money was the symptom. The full title of the disease is "lack of community support." This is what really has been responsible for the death warrant being written.

Before I get into the disease it's worth mentioning that the kids who were Place For People are Des Plaines kids. At one point more than 600 kids a week walked through the doors and the vast majority were Des Plaines kids. They were a good percentage of the teen population of this community — your kids, your neighbor's kids, the kids of laborers, executives, shop owners, lawyers, doctors, and carpenters.

Now let's look at the community support they got. Start with the city council. Place For People went to our city fathers to ask for community support in the form of money. It got no money, no actual support of any kind. Every so often a city official would show up at a board meeting, or a fund raiser but there was no real involvement, no real commitment, no real support.

Part of the Place's obituary was written the day the City Council failed to find a way to provide funds for a youth center in Des Plaines which served the young people of Des Plaines.

THE DES PLAINES police department contributed to lack of community support. It was common knowledge to those involved at Place For People that the department was not our biggest fan club. There were friends there — a few men really believed the Place was a good thing and they supported it "off the record."

But there were few supporters among the men that counted. One officer told me there was an unwritten "hands off — stay away — don't get involved" policy concerning the Place. A few of the top men wanted nothing more than to see the Place shut down, even though publicly they gave it token support.

Another newspaper in this town gave little community support to the Place. At one point it staged open warfare in print after an executive in the company was heard to vow "to close that place down." They contributed to the death by turning people in the community against the Place with a few mostly inaccurate articles. These were people who didn't know much about Place For People in the first place and unfortunately believed everything they read in the newspaper.

The most community support came from the kids themselves. Even that dropped away eventually. After a while it became just too much hassle to raise money from people who didn't want to give it. To take constant abuse from non-supporters, to have parents not want them to go. Spring came, there were things outside to do, they drifted away. When it came time to drift back there

Hospital pays center debt

Place for People Youth Center, closed officially last week by its board of directors and trustees, will apparently be relieved of a $2,000 debt to Forest Hospital, according to Des Plaines City Clerk Eleanor Rohrbach.

At a meeting Tuesday with Morris Squires, Forest Hospital administrator, Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel and Erwin Roschke, director of the center's board of trustees, Mrs. Rohrbach tried "to encourage Forest administrators to absorb the cost of the director's fee into the hospital budget," she said.

The fee was owed for the services of John Dronfield hired Sept. 1 as the center's director. He resigned last December and has since moved to Colorado.

Mrs. Rohrbach also said that Squires, who declined to comment on the matter, indicated he would be willing to forego the debt.

HOWEVER, THE center, 1415 Ellinwood St., still owes $38 to Central Telephone Co. and another $300 to Commonwealth Edison Co.

"The bills are still good until our lease is up in October," she said, adding that she has contacted Commonwealth Edison and Central Telephone officials in an effort to have those debts relieved.

Mrs. Rohrbach also said there was general agreement at Tuesday's meeting that a need still exists in Des Plaines for some type of youth and counseling center.

She added the center had a useful purpose while attributing its death to "many contributing factors."

The center's directors and trustees are slated to meet Feb. 28 to discuss some remaining financial obligations and possible ways to raise funds to meet them.

Mrs. Rohrbach said, however, no fund-raising ideas have yet been discussed.

was nothing, or practically nothing left.

Other community support came from many of you and other residents of Des Plaines who gave a few dollars now and then, or a few hours, or an old sofa, or a bake-sale, or a few kind words and letters. Some of you made pledges for last spring's volleyball marathon, some of you wrote beautiful letters defending the place when it was under attack, some of you really seemed to care.

But you, and I, and the kids, and the staff weren't enough. The odds were against us and the Place died. Now, may it rest in peace.

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT
A musical chairs hearing yesterday on challenges to candidates seeking ballot spots in Rosemont's April 3 election was continued until Feb. 20.

Lawyers for Mayor Donald Steven's Legal Residents Party and Joan Pucillo's Good Government Organization sought the delay to subpoena witnesses and evidence on 18 challenges filed by six residents.

Backers of both parties have filed objections that will be heard at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday in Chicago by one of three electoral boards.

A key challenge was filed by Patricia L. Krumwiede, of 10040 W. Norwood, Rosemont, against Mrs. Pucillo. Mrs. Krumwiede says that Mrs. Pucillo, who is running against Steven, Rosemont mayor for 16 years, has lived in the village less than the year required by state law.

THE GGO contends Mrs. Pucillo moved to her Rosemont apartment in April, 1972.

A second challenge against the GGO village clerk and trustee candidates was filed by George Gallee, of 6031 N. Scott St. Gallee claims that the withdrawal of candidate William Veremi two weeks ago from the GGO slate leaves the party with an illegal, incomplete ticket.

The GGO contends the party has 45 days to fill Veremi's ballot position. Lawyers for Steven's party will argue that state statute allows only established, not new, political parties to fill slate vacancies occurring from anything other than death or illness after filing.

Two lists of challenges were filed against Steven's party. Mary Barris, of 9604 W. Higgins Rd., and Louis Venuso, of 9624 W. Higgins Rd., have challenged Steven's Voters League of Rosemont ticket.

GGO TRUSTEE candidates Michael Yublosky and Robert E. Kirsh object to Steven's Rosemont Legal Residents Party nominations.

Steven originally filed a slate as the Voters League of Rosemont, the same name used in 1969. The mayor's party, finding defects in the nominating petitions, withdrew the list and refiled at the Legal Resident Party with the same candidates.

The GGO contends the same residents signed petitions for both of Steven's parties, invalidating the nominations.

The challenges will be decided by three-member electoral boards, composed of the village clerk, the mayor and the village's senior trustee, Steven Giles, who is not seeking reelection.

Because the GGO has challenged the entire Steven slate — including City Clerk Elsie Fregeau and the mayor — the two candidates cannot sit on that electoral board. Circuit Court Judges Helen McGillicuddy and Daniel A. Roberts will rule with Giles on the GGO challenge.

THE CITY clerk will join the electoral board to hear the challenge against the GGO's mayoral candidate, bumping Judge Roberts from the panel.

And, Steven's will sit on the board to hear the challenge against the clerk and trustee GGO candidates, bumping Mrs. Fregeau.

The fate of the challenges may be decided before Tuesday. GGO attorney Michael Lavell, an expert on electoral law, and lawyers Gerald Chapman, husband of state Rep. Eugene Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, and Claude Kahn may agree to "let the voters decide." Rosemont Village Atty. Michael Diamond said.

7% hike? Commuters don't like it

the commission to decide.

Until then commuters will have time to prepare for an increase. If they're thinking like R. Roch of Mount Prospect, they'll start looking for alternatives to riding the train.

"A group of friends and I are talking about forming a car pool if there's a hike," said Mrs. Roch who rides the train downtown six days a week. "I think an increase is ridiculous. If you consider driving downtown and even parking, the train almost costs as much now. It's terribly expensive."

One Mount Prospect commuter, who wouldn't give his name, doesn't think the C&NW deserves the hike. "Raising rates — it's all they've been doing in the past couple of years. I think they could get by with what they have now. They're like the CTA, they only lose more customers with every rate increase," he said.

"I'd just like to look at their books," was all one Arlington Heights commuter would say.

sons for choosing him for endorsement. He said he is willing and able to work hard as a college trustee, he has the ability to analyze issues and make a judgment, and has the courage to make a decision even if it means alienating a portion of the community.

Schlake said he became interested in running for the board after reading newspaper articles on the controversy over selecting a permanent campus for the college and after talking about the college with people in the community.

No site will satisfy everyone in the college district, said Schlake. But the Oak-ton board should have the courage to select the best site and fight for it despite opposition from a small portion of the community, he said.

Disregarding the site question, Schlake praised the college and said he would "attempt to better what has already been done." Improving relations with the community is "simply a job of selling and educating all the people of the district."

HARTSTEIN, OF 4639 Elm Terr., Skokie, served two years as the founding chairman of the college board. A resident of Skokie for 12 years, he is married and has six children. He taught at Yale University, was employed by General Motors Corp. for 13 years, served with the U.S. Embassy in Tel Aviv and is now director of personnel and industrial relations for Brunswick Corp.

Hartstein listed five criteria he said he meets as a trustee. He is a businessman with financial expertise, understands the unique role of a community college, puts high priority on the quality of education, is alert to the needs of the community, has a desire to serve the college and is willing to donate time.

"I measure the quality of education by results," said Hartstein. Follow-up studies on the class of 1972 show that many Oakton graduates are getting good grades at universities, he said.

The decision to annex another township to Oakton's district should be a community decision, said Hartstein, who said he would not act on an annexation motion without surveying district residents of Maine and Niles townships, he said, but added he would not oppose annexation if it benefited the school and the community.

GILSON is employed in Rosemont as the national director of training for the U.S. Department of Labor, through the Occupational Safety and Health Administration. A resident of Skokie for 18 years, he and his wife reside at 7541 N. Key-stone and have two sons. Mrs. Gilson is a social worker for the Salvation Army Family Service in Des Plaines.

Gilson said his election to the board would be a "continuation of the same dedication and effort that I have offered the college since its initial phase." He said his background in engineering is an asset in making complicated decisions on building renovation and construction, and 16 years experience in government purchasing work are also useful to the college. "I believe I know this community," he said.

Gilson said he hopes to promote more vocational education programs at Oakton and involve industries in the community in the education of Oakton students. Oakton's two major problems are, one, defining its role as a community college, a problem shared with all junior colleges in the state, and two, finding a permanent campus.

New exhibits open at Historical museum

The Des Plaines Historical Society's museum, 777 Lee St., is opening new exhibition rooms and a gallery this month with exhibits on the Plains Indians and Abraham Lincoln.

Guides will be on hand this Saturday and Sunday from 1:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. for tours of the museum. In addition to the two exhibits, the museum's loom and spinning wheel will be in operation to give visitors a look at how cloth was made in the past.

Photos of old Des Plaines not previously exhibited will be on display in the museum gallery. The tour is free to society members and costs 25 cents per person or 50 cents a family for the public.

The society also has openings for young men or women to serve as guides at the museum. A guide training session will be held at the museum Thursday, Feb. 22. Anyone interested should call Richard Welch, museum coordinator, at 297-4912 or Mrs. Lisa Anderson at 827-7870.

Welding course offered to adults

The Maine-Oakton-Niles Adult Education program will offer a second section in a course in welding, beginning Tuesday, March 6, at Niles West High School, Oakton Street and Edens, Skokie.

Classes will meet twice a week on Tuesday and Thursday nights from 7:30 to 9:30 for five weeks.

Students will learn gas, arc, and TIG welding. Beginners will be instructed in the fundamentals and basic practices of welding and experienced welders will be taught advanced techniques.

Fee for the course is $31.30. Lab fee included. For further information, call 696-3600.

3 Notre Dame teens cited as 'outstanding'

Three Notre Dame High School seniors have been selected Outstanding Teenagers of America for 1973.

Selection for the awards program automatically qualifies them for further state, regional and national honors and scholarships totaling $7,000.

Joh Detzner, Michael Merchut and Philip West, the three seniors, were chosen for their excellence in academic achievement and community service. Merchut ranks first in his class, is president of the band and is lead saxophone player in the band, The Melodons.

Detzner is president of the student body and is a major force in the Chicago Area Lay Movement tutoring program. West is active in the student government, organized the school's used book co-op and is an officer in a student service organization, Cross and Anchor.

Detzner, Merchut and West will now vie for the Outstanding-Teenager-of-the-Year Trophy to be presented by Gov. Daniel Walker.

Businessmen warned

Counterfeit money being passed in area

Businessmen throughout the Northwest suburbs have been warned to be on the lookout for a new batch of counterfeit currency that may be passed in this area.

Schaumburg police reported that more than $100 in bogus $10 bills were passed at Woodfield Mall last weekend.

They have speculated that more counterfeit notes may have been passed at the shopping center.

John Hanley, chief of the Chicago office of the Secret Service, said that while some reports have been received from this area, it does not appear the Northwest suburbs are the focal point of the counterfeit currency passers efforts.

"We have seen these bills turn up in all sections of the city, around large shopping centers and other highly commercial areas," he said.

He said businessmen have been warned by local police to examine all currency used in business transactions.

Hanley said the notes apparently came from a counterfeiting operation in Chicago that was broken up in January.

REPORTEDLY, THE agents seized the counterfeiters, but the plates used in the operation were not confiscated.

Hanley said the incident was not connected to another counterfeiting ring in which a Schaumburg man was arrested last November.

There may be as much as $50,000 in counterfeit currency involved in this incident, according to police, but Hanley said it is impossible to determine how many of the $10 notes may be circulating in the area.

"We thought we had it all when we made the arrests, but the possibility exists there may be more in the area that has not been passed."

Hanley said Secret Service agents are investigating the incident to determine how widespread the situation may be and if there is a pattern to the method in which the counterfeit bills have been passed.

River Trails Caucus backs 3 school board candidates

The River Trails Dist. 26 General Caucus has endorsed three candidates for election to the Dist. 26 School Board in April. They are William Haase, Michael Sheyker and Robert Blomquist.

Haase and Sheyker were both appointed to the school board last year to fill the unexpired terms of two board members who resigned. Blomquist is a member of the Dist. 26 Citizens Committee on Vandalism and a former member of the caucus.

Sylvia Lurie was the only incumbent who was not endorsed. She said she thinks the caucus endorsed Blomquist rather than her because "they had to choose between two qualified candidates and they knew him."

According to Mary Stenbridge, nominating chairman, the caucus decided to endorse only the number of candidates for which seats are open in April. "It's not in the bylaws. We decide it separately each year," she said.

OF THE THREE school board seats up for election, one is a one-year term, the other two are three-year terms. The caucus endorsed Blomquist for the one-year term and Haase and Sheyker for the two three-year terms.

In all, seven residents were interviewed by the caucus. Of the four who were not endorsed, three have already stated that they plan to run independently for the board. These include Mrs. Lurie, Dr. Alex Ronnett and Rheta Baum. The fourth resident who was not endorsed, Eugene Snyder, said he has not decided yet whether he will run as an independent.

Of the two incumbents endorsed, neither said they plan to request any changes in school board policy next year. Both said they do have special concerns, however.

Haase said he did not "have any ax to grind. My primary concern is with the total management of the district," he said. Sheyker listed fiscal responsibility and the continuation of present programs, such as the open classroom, gifted and learning disability programs as those things he was most concerned about.

Blomquist said "one of the big things" he is interested in "is getting the community more involved in the school district. What I'd like to see is a greater interest on the part of the community. I don't think any seven people can have all the answers," he said.

MRS. LURIE said her campaign would have no set platform. "I don't really know to what extent issues will be important this year," she said. "I would say that there have been many changes taking place in the district in the last year. There have been a lot of misunderstandings and so there's a lot of explaining that needs to be done."

Dr. Ronnett said there are several issues he is concerned about, including the school budget, the open school concept and teachers' status. He said he is "100 per cent against open schools" and feels that teachers in the district are treated as "second-class citizens."

Dr. Ronnett of 502 Garwood St., at present has a lawsuit pending against the school district for injuries his daughter suffered when she was cut by an open window at Peckanville School. Ronnett said he doesn't think the suit should have any effect on his candidacy in the election.

Mrs. Baum, of 1006 Westgate Rd., said the issues she is most concerned with are the continuation of individual learning in the schools and seeing that the board communicates better with the public. "I don't think the people get enough information about things that bother them," Mrs. Baum said. "The people aren't dummies. They do want to know," she said.

phone number, has pledged first allegiance to the Chicago school children he teaches, planning campaign activities for weekends and nights. "I won't miss a day of school," he told the Herald, promising to "paper the city" with facts and figures criticizing Behrel's administrations.

If history is an indication, the facts and figures will fall mostly on deaf ears. Behrel, Wolf and Kasmen see one-to-one campaigning as the only way to reach the scant voter turnout typical in municipal elections. "You hope that each person you talk to passes the information on to other people," the mayor says.

Adding to the mayor's advantage will be uncontested races in two crucial wards — the 7th and 8th. Ald. Robert Michaels (8th) Monday withdrew from a reelection race in the 8th Ward that would have helped draw out voters. Michaels left the campaign to Richard Ward, an outspoken foe of the proposed west side Metropolitan Sanitary District plant.

WITH ONLY ONE aldermanic candidate and no race in a ward where Behrel has drawn considerable flak, the turnout may be light, aiding the mayor.

Township revenue-sharing funds delayed

A bureaucratic snarl in Washington, D.C., has prevented Elk Grove Township from getting any federal revenue sharing funds.

Richard Hall, township auditor, said the township was mistakenly considered a non-taxing unit when its application was submitted. A non-taxing unit is ineligible for revenue sharing.

According to Hall, the necessary information to correct the error has been submitted, but none of the township officials have any idea when the first federal check will be received.

Hall said the township has been assured of receiving all back revenue funds when the error is corrected. He had no estimate of how much money the township was to receive.

THE DELAY in getting revenue sharing will force the township to hold a second set of budget meetings. The township is now holding budget meetings for the 1973-74 fiscal year expenditures of its tax monies. Once the amount of revenue sharing is known, the township will hold additional meetings to budget the funds.

During budget meetings, expenditures for the coming fiscal year are estimated. The figures are subject to change until the board of auditors have developed a proposed official budget. This budget must be on public display for at least 30 days. After that the auditors have to adopt it as the official township budget for the new fiscal year.

At the first of the meetings, held Tuesday, the auditors suggested a Town Fund budget of $185,012, a total only $200 higher than last year's budget of $185,712.

The Town Fund covers all operations expenses of the township except those for sewers, road and bridge and general assistance funds.

THE BIGGEST increase in line items on the budget was a more than doubling of the township youth committee expenditures. Last year's youth committee had a $12,000 budget. For 1973-74, a total of $27,000 was suggested.

Major reductions in budgeted expenses were made for the township collector's office. This office is no longer a functioning agency at the township level of government. Nominal amounts were suggested for the collector's office in the event that it does become active again.

No amount was suggested for payment of bond and interest since the township paid off the last of its bonds during the current fiscal year.

The overall township Road and Bridge Fund was decreased by almost $3,000 in the suggested budget with a total expenditure of $173,100, down from this year's $176,000.

THE OVER-ALL township general assistance budget for 1973-74 was reduced by over $2,000 compared to this year. The 1973-74 figure is $78,400 compared to this year's $80,450.

At the meeting, representatives from Elk Grove Village Community Service requested that the township allocate $28,600 for the agency. The amount is based on the number of people from Elk Grove Township who received counseling and therapy from Community Service in the past year. Officials said that township tax money could not be appropriated for mental health agencies.

The auditors said there is a possibility that federal revenue sharing funds could be used to support some form of mental health treatment. The auditors asked that Community Service representatives return to the township when federal revenue sharing funds are obtained, and a budget is drawn up.

The next budget meeting is scheduled for 8 p.m., Tuesday, at the town offices, 2400 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

RICHARD WARD, a pilot for United Air Lines, Village. Using a special radio, the students were able to monitor radio transmissions between airplanes to a class at Rupley School in Elk Grove Airport. The students are studying different forms of communication as a class project, and the teacher invited Ward to give the demonstration.

New 7% fare hike? Commuters don't like it

by KAREN BLECH

They might not like it, but commuters who use the Chicago & North Western Ry. for daily trips to the Loop already are prepared for a possible 7 per cent rate increase being sought by the railroad.

And even though they complain, most of them say that daily service is more important than the cost because if the trains ever stop, thousands of suburbanites will not just be inconvenienced, they will be stranded without jobs in the empty suburbs.

"Yeah" is the way Kathleen Peters of Arlington Heights feels about the 7 per cent fare increase proposed by the Chicago and North Western. But, like most commuters, she said she "would rather have the fare increase than a decrease in service."

After all, what can you do if you depend on the train to take you downtown five days a week? "You don't like the hike, but you have to accept it," said Daniel Mulcahy, who has been a C&NW passenger for the past 15 years.

The way Bud Daskel of Mount Prospect explains it, the C&NW "has sort of a captive audience with the commuters who don't have a choice because it's the only way for them to get downtown."

"I'd still ride the train. There's no way my nerves could take driving downtown," said Fred Booth of Wheeling, adding that he just started riding the train last August when the C&NW raised rates by 5 1/4 per cent.

A new fare increase won't stop Raymond Brod of Des Plaines from riding the train, either. "I'm not in favor of the increase. I think the Chicago and North Western has had sufficient hikes in the past years and that those should be adequate," yawned the rider of 13 years. "But I think the North Western provides excellent service."

LARRY PROVO, president of the railway company, said the C&NW is finding it increasingly difficult to maintain present commuter service in the face of rising costs and increased competition. The C&NW first proposed the hike last November, with hopes it would go into effect by Jan. 1.

For commuters like Brod, the hike would mean an increase of between $2.20 and $2.70 on the price of a monthly ticket. For those who ride the train only a few times a week, like Michael Spratlin of Palatine, the hike would mean 20 cents more for a round-trip ticket to the Loop.

"It's terrible. They just raised the rates last August," said Spratlin, who said he is a student and "always going broke." But Spratlin, who often stops in Arlington Heights to give music lessons, likes the C&NW service. "The people are very friendly and they help me board the train with my instruments."

Vicki Selman, from Prospect Heights, said she rides the train about once a month and feels "terrible" about the proposed increase. She said she'd probably take a car instead if the hike is approved.

FOUR DAYS of hearings by the Illinois Commerce Commission on the proposed hike ended last week. According to Tom Judge of C&NW, the ICC will make a decision on the increase in April. He said an increase, if approved, would probably go into effect May 1, although it's up to the commission to decide.

Until then commuters will have time to prepare for an increase. If they're thinking like R. Roch of Mount Prospect, they'll start looking for alternatives to riding the train.

"A group of friends and I are talking about forming a car pool if there's a hike," said Mrs. Roch who rides the train downtown six days a week. "I think an increase is ridiculous. If you consider driving downtown and even parking, the train almost costs as much now. It's terribly expensive."

One Mount Prospect commuter, who wouldn't give his name, doesn't think the C&NW deserves the hike. "Raising rates will be all they've been doing in the past couple of years. I think they could get by with what they have now. They're like the CTA, they only lose more customers with every rate increase," he said.

"I'd just like to look at their books," was all one Arlington Heights commuter would say.

Last day today for vehicle tags

Today is the last day Elk Grove Village stickers may be purchased at a cost of $5 per automobile. After today the stickers will be sold for $7.50.

Stickers are available at the village hall, 901 Wellington Ave.; currency exchanges in the Park 'N' Shop and Grove shopping centers, and at the Bank of Elk Grove, 100 E. Higgins Rd.

$185,000 street, walk program on agenda

A $185,000 program for street repairs, street resurfacing and broken sidewalk replacement in Elk Grove Village will be discussed at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the village hall, 901 Wellington Ave.

In a recommendation to the board of trustees, the engineering department proposed that the money from the state motor fuel tax rebates be used to resurface 4.7 miles in the industrial park and 3.23 miles in the residential sections. The estimated cost of resurfacing is $101,000 in the industrial park and $84,000 in the residential area.

Industrial streets designated for resurfacing include portions of Greenleaf, Lunt and Morse avenues; Pratt and Nicholas boulevards; Gordon and Gaylord streets and Bennett Drive. Proposed residential resurfacing includes parts of Berkshire, Dover, Dorchester, Somerset and Tottenham lanes; Trowbridge and Parkchester roads; Cumberland Circle and Brandywine Avenue.

Street-patching costs have been estimated at $16,770, and sidewalk replacement was estimated at $17,000.

Another big bug crop likely

Mosquito sprayer funds sought

The Elk Grove Village Board of Trustees asked the village budget committee Tuesday to consider allocating money for a spraying machine to combat the mosquito problem locally.

Village Pres. Charles Zettek said the committee should give "strong and serious consideration" to buying the sprayer and appropriating money to train employees to use the machine and chemicals to kill mosquitos.

Officials of the Northwest Mosquito reason the village could not enter into a joint agreement with the district to fight mosquitos in the area.

THE VILLAGE attorney also was asked to check into the constitutionality of a village ordinance that would allow the district to spray in all parts of the village, including private property.

Willis also announced at the meeting that he was waiting for the final draft of a fire protection agreement with the Elk Grove Mobile Home Park, 941 W. Higgins Rd., Elk Grove Township. The agreement, under which the village would provide fire and ambulance service to the trailer park, was expected to be presented to the trustees Tuesday.

Trustee George Spees made a motion to donate $1,238.90 to the Northwest Opportunity Center to help the center continue its services to the Northwest suburbs. He said there was money for the donation in the trustees' expense fund. The motion failed because of lack of a second, but trustees indicated the donation would be discussed further at budget meetings.

- The village engineer was authorized to attend the Illinois Transportation and Highway Engineering Conference Feb. 27-29 at the University of Illinois, Urbana, at a cost not to exceed $155.

Abatement District told trustees last week that a large crop of mosquitos is likely this summer.

Zettek also asked Village Mgr. Charles Willis to make arrangements with the abatement district for village employees to work with the district to clear ditches in the industrial park. Village Atty. Edward Hofert said that because of the village's broad health powers, he saw no

Trustees hint sewage plant delay suit

Elk Grove Village trustees hinted Tuesday a lawsuit may be forthcoming if progress on the proposed O'Hare sewage treatment plant is delayed by Des Plaines' plan to move the plant from a site in Des Plaines to unincorporated Elk Grove Township.

Last week Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel urged the Metropolitan Sanitary District to build its treatment plant at a site on the south side of Oakton Street west of Busse Road, instead of the southeast corner of Oakton Street and Elmhurst Road in Des Plaines.

Bart Lynam, district acting general superintendent, has said it would cost an additional $8,978,000 to move the plant to the new site, and Forrest Neil, MSD chief engineer, has said the move would add a minimum of two years to the plant completion date.

In a letter written by Village Pres. Charles Zettek and supported by the trustees, Zettek said the delay and increased cost that would result from the change in the site was unwarranted.

"ELK GROVE Village cannot afford this (Des Plaines') consideration being given any serious thought," the letter read. "The delay would cause to our residents an increase in taxes and bring about unnecessary delay in the resolution of sewage pollution and flooding in the eastern part of Elk Grove. We cannot and will not allow this to occur."

"In between the lines it (the letter) says we're prepared to go into litigation," Zettek said. He failed to say who would be the object of a possible lawsuit.

In the letter Zettek said the village has cooperated with the MSD in the past and would continue to cooperate in the future. He said the Upper Salt Creek sewer age treatment plant, located adjacent to Elk Grove Village's western boundary, has received full support of the village.

The trustees asked the MSD to proceed in the construction of the O'Hare treatment plant at the southeast intersection of Oakton and Elmhurst roads in Des Plaines.

"To explore other sites would require further unwarranted delay in time, increase the burden to the taxpayer and fail to meet forthrightly the responsibility for the maintenance of the public health," Zettek wrote.

Arrests expected in cigaret theft

Cartons of cigarets worth $170 were reported stolen Sunday night or early Monday from the 7-Eleven Food Store, 565 Landmeter Rd., Elk Grove Village. Police said a number of cartons were recovered, and arrests are expected.

Mike would like to add the can to his collection

Does anybody out there drink Bullfrog?

by KURT BAER

Collecting beer cans isn't just a passing fad for 22-year-old Mike Madden. "In fact, you could say it's in my blood," says Mike, whose collection of steel and aluminum containers now numbers about 550 and is still growing.

The cans represent a wide range of breweries and an even bigger assortment of labels. From ABC beer to Schlitz, Mike has them all. Well, at least he has a lot of them.

Some more veteran collectors have amassed displays of 2,000 to 3,000 cans and can trace the history of a beer through decades of label changes. Most truly serious collectors, like Mike, belong to a brotherhood — the Beer Can Collectors of America — whose members swap cans with all sophistication and enthusiasm of stamp and coin collectors.

IN JUST four years of searching and saving, Mike already has lined one wall in his bedroom at 1501 W. Euclid Ave.,

Arlington Heights, with emptied cans and is fast using up wallpaper on a second.

"I'd like to say I drank them all," he says, explaining that for many of the lesser-known labels he has had to visit little "out-of-the-way" places.

"Old railroad stations are an excellent spot. I've found lots of cans searching along walls and between the rafters. I guess guys used to like to 'sit and have one' while waiting for their train."

Cans Mike can't find, he can hope to trade for. Older cans and foreign labels usually command two or even three newer cans in the barter market. One of Mike's goals right now is to find a can of Bullfrog beer, brewed in Chicago 10 or 15 years ago.

It is a brew that, if remembered at all, is usually recalled with words like: "O'yeah, Bullfrog, three cans and you croaked."

ON THE SURFACE, starting and keeping a collection of empty beer cans sounds pretty straightforward. But can collecting, like any other hobby, has its own set of secrets that separate the connoisseur from the dilettante.

"You can pop out dents with a fire-cracker," Mike says. And a little oxalic acid will remove rust from old steel cans without corroding the metal.

The can curator will also know the Canadian cans are generally half an inch shorter than their American cousins and that the two nationalities cannot be stacked together with any degree of stability.

It probably will come as no surprise that beer cans, like just about everything else, aren't being made the way they used to be.

"They're going to thinner and thinner metal and cheaper paints," says Mike, pulling out one of the early Schlitz Malt Liquor cans that had textured engravings around the base.

THE DEER CAN also has its enemies. "Oregon has put a 5-cent deposit on cans and many people aren't buying them because they're not used to having to return empty cans," Mike says.

"They're also talking about putting a warning on the side of the can, something like: 'Caution: beer drinking may be hazardous to your driving.'"

Mike has already met several other beer can collectors in the area and says he hopes to meet more. He's even thinking about attending a national "convention" in Cincinnati that's expected to draw 600 to 800 collectors.

It would be a chance to make friends, establish new trading contacts and to discuss regional brands and breweries, he says.

It would also be a time to sit back, "pop a top," and brag just a little about that 1836 Budweiser can back home on the shelf.

Preliminary approval waived

Dunbar complex final plans OKd

Final approval was given Tuesday by Schaumburg officials to Dunbar Homes Inc. for its 1,716-unit condominium development at Plum Grove and Schaumburg roads.

Acting on a request from Gilbert Hennessey, Dunbar's attorney, the board waived preliminary approval of the project and granted final acceptance to permit the firm to take advantage of options it holds on the 92-acre parcel. If only preliminary approval had been granted, Dunbar would have been forced to wait until the next board meeting, Feb. 26, to receive official rezoning permitting exercise of the options.

In granting the zoning, the board discussed again the level of financial and land contributions which have aroused controversy among residents of Schaumburg and surrounding communities. Much of the discussion has focused on $171,600 Dunbar is giving to help finance Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center North, a hospital proposed for construction on Sch.umburg Road. No donations are planned for Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54.

TRUSTEE HERBERT Aigner, who had said at the board's last meeting that Dunbar was a "little shy" in donations as compared to other developers, Tuesday night withdrew his statement. Aigner said he had looked again at figures, and calculating on a donation-per-child basis, found Dunbar was giving $587.

Miller Builders, developers of Nantucket Cove and the firm Aigner referred to at the earlier meeting, is giving $582 per child, he said. Aigner also noted the contributions are to the community, and while Miller gave to the elementary school district, Dunbar is also giving to the community through the hospital.

The funds are not actually designated for the hospital. They are to go to what Mayor Robert O. Aicher has termed a "limbo" account pending approval of the hospital's request for an operating permit by the state licensing board. Should the permit be denied, the funds still might go to the school district, although village officials have indicated they could be used only within village lines.

AIGNER SAID the school district "benefits other villages as well" as Schaumburg, and is a taxing body with other sources of funds.

"If we are going to get that hospital, and other communities are opposing it, we are going to have to lead the way and I would like to see us lead the way with this project" in raising village shares of the hospital financing costs, said Aigner.

Mayor Aicher also commented on meetings the village is having with school district officials to rewrite the district's existing guidelines for builder assistance to schools.

He said he presumes other villages within the district's borders will comply with the guidelines to be developed through meetings of Schaumburg Village and school district committees, and appointed three village committee members. Trustee Raymond Kessell is to chair the village delegation to the talks, while Russell Parker, zoning board chairman, and Laurel Delaney a plan commission member, are to complete the team.

One trustee dissented in the vote favoring Dunbar's request. Peter Jensen said he voted "no" because the project includes two 16-story buildings.

Families to be queried for survey

More than 300 families in Elk Grove Village and Schaumburg will be interviewed soon as part of a nationwide survey.

The information will eventually be used to formulate federal policy on development of planned communities in the United States.

The study, funded by a $1.1 million grant from the National Science Foundation, is being conducted by the University of North Carolina's Center for Urban and Regional Studies.

Park Forest South is the only other Illinois community included in the 34 towns in the study group.

Residents will be asked their opinions on the quality of life in the various communities, according to directors of the study.

Prof. Shirley F. Weiss, principal investigator on the project, said, "The critical question for new community policy in the 1970s is not whether new communities will be built, but how well they will perform in improving the quality of life for new community residents."

THE STUDY also will attempt to examine what steps can be taken to improve new communities in terms of employment opportunities, health services, education and commercial development.

The survey teams in this area will be part of the Research Triangle Institute, also working on the project.

The results of the study will be incorporated in guidelines, used to implement the Urban Growth and New Community Development Act which call for the creation of 110 new cities in the United States by the year 2000. The cities, 10 of which will be designed to accommodate more than 1 million persons, are aimed at correcting many of the urban problems found in already existing communities.

The criteria developed in the study will be used by U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development guidelines for the new cities project.

The study will take more than a year to complete. Results are expected to be released by December, 1974.

Unit school study backed

Replies from 220 Schaumburg residents indicate they favor a Schaumburg United Party-financed unit school district study.

The study, as proposed by the Village of Schaumburg, would weigh the educational and tax advantages to Schaumburg residents if the village were to form a unit school district within the Schaumburg boundaries.

Now, parts of Schaumburg are in elementary school districts 54, 15, and 12 and high school districts 211 and 214. A unit district is a unified elementary-high school combination.

Seek abolition of government

Local independents adopt platform

Abolishment of the township government is part of the platform adopted by the independent slate of candidates for the Elk Grove Township elections.

The platform states:

- Immediate steps shall be taken to eliminate all township functions now duplicated by other local governments.
- Any township functions not duplicated would be transferred to an appropriate local government.
- A nonpartisan citizens' committee shall be formed to consider a referendum to abolish township government.

Businessmen warned

by STEVE BROWN

Businessmen throughout the Northwest suburbs have been warned to be on the lookout for a new batch of counterfeit currency that may be passed in this area.

Schaumburg police reported that more than $100 in bogus $10 bills were passed at Woodfield Mall last weekend.

They have speculated that more counterfeit notes may have been passed at the shopping center.

John Hanley, chief of the Chicago office of the Secret Service, said that while some reports have been received from this area, it does not appear the Northwest suburbs are the focal point of the counterfeit currency passers efforts.

"We have seen these bills turn up in all sections of the city, around large shopping centers and other highly commercial areas," he said.

He said businessmen have been warned by local police to examine all currency used in business transactions.

Hanley said the notes apparently came from a counterfeiting operation in Chicago that was broken up in January.

REPORTEDLY, THE agents seized the counterfeiters, but the plates used in the operation were not confiscated.

Hanley said the incident was not connected to another counterfeiting ring in which a Schaumburg man was arrested last November.

There may be as much as $50,000 in counterfeit currency involved in this incident, according to police, but Hanley said it is impossible to determine how many of the $10 notes may be circulating in the area.

"We thought we had it all when we made the arrests, but the possibility exists there may be more in the area that has not been passed."

Hanley said Secret Service agents are investigating the incident to determine how widespread the situation may be and if there is a pattern to the method in which the counterfeit bills have been passed.

New race date session set

The Illinois Racing Board is scheduled to convene Tuesday to reconsider the 1973 racing schedule, specifically the dates awarded to racing associations controlled by William S. Miller.

Anthony Scarlano, board chairman, said he will ask Miller to show cause why dates assigned to Balmoral Jockey Club Inc. should not be revoked or reassigned to other associations.

Scarlano and Gov. Daniel Walker's racing board are seeking to revoke dates awarded last December by a lame duck racing board because of Miller's testimony before the state Legislative Investigating Commission and in the trial of former Gov. Otto Kerner.

During the trial, Miller admitted misrepresenting his interest in Balmoral to the old racing board.

ARLINGTON PARK Race Track could pick up all or some of the 27 racing days now assigned to the Balmoral association if the board is successful in its bid to overturn the existing schedule.

Arlington operators are hoping that the board will set an entirely new racing schedule and assign the more lucrative summer dates to the track here.

Right now, Arlington Park is scheduled to open April 19 and close July 24.

On a separate front, the Illinois Supreme Court has agreed to hear an emergency appeal on the racing schedule from Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott.

Scott too is seeking to revoke dates awarded to Miller's associations but last month a Circuit Court ruling upheld the 1973 dates schedule, including the 27 days for the Balmoral Jockey Club.

SUPREME COURT Justice Thomas E. Kluczynski set March 15 for a hearing in the attorney general's case. Scott said he is fighting the present schedule because it involves at least $48 million in state revenue.

The racing board also has assigned six charity racing dates to the Metropolitan Crusade of Mercy. The dates Feb. 22-28, will be run at Sportsman's Park and are expected to bring $150,000 to $200,000 to the charity.

Six other charity dates remain unassigned.

The charity dates became available when Chicago Tribune and Chicago Today charities relinquished their dates because of alleged impropriety in the old board's announcement of the 1973 dates.

THE PLATFORM also calls for:

- The elimination of the patronage system for hiring at the township. All positions will be filled strictly on the basis of qualification for the job.
 - Spending should be reduced by the elimination of the thistle commissioner, township collector's staff, and assessor's staff. Excessive spending in the township road and bridge fund and general assistance shall be eliminated.
 - Full disclosure of all income, assets and liabilities shall be made by all independent candidates. Following the election, no township funds shall be deposited in a bank in which a township official has a proprietary interest.
- The independent "slate" is running the following candidates: Paul Rettberg, auditor; Julie Sass, auditor; Steven Maddock, auditor; and Larry Pahl, township highway commissioner.
- The group calls themselves a slate because they are pooling resources and supporting one another. Technically, they are not a slate since there is not a candidate for every office.
- Rettberg and Pahl live in Elk Grove Village. Mrs. Sass and Maddock live in unincorporated Elk Grove Township.
- THE GROUP is opposing the full slate of candidates filed by the Regular Republican Organization of Elk Grove Township. The Republicans running are: Bernard Lee, Wayne Hult, Water Bartley and Larry Hintze for auditors and Alfred Stiel for highway commissioner. Also, the Republicans are running Richard Hall, now a township auditor, for supervisor.
- Hall, after reading the independent platform, charged the independents did not understand the function of township government. He said he did not know why the group was running for offices they wanted to abolish.
- Hall said the township has already planned to make some of the expense reductions called for in the independent platform, such as the elimination of the thistle commissioner and the reduction of the collector's staff.
- Hall said, "there is no patronage in township jobs."
- In regard to income disclosure, Hall said all township officials have filed the statement of economic interests as required by the state.
- "I favor income disclosure," said Hall, "In fact, I was involved in the first Illinois suit to force income disclosure."

Unit school study backed

approximately 4,000 questionnaires mailed to residents have been returned to SUP headquarters.

STRESSING THAT the report is incomplete, Mrs. Parsons noted that residents are cooperating with SUP's attempt to poll Schaumburg residents opinions.

She said most of the replies came in from non-SUP members. The questionnaire prepared by the SUP party was sent to residents last week. It told of benefits of a separate unit school district for Schaumburg but found no disadvantages to such an action.

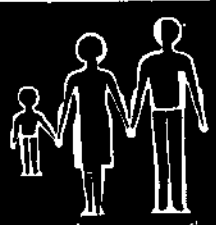

SUP, according to the newsletter "Is a non-partisan group consisting of Republicans, Democrats, and independents pledged to be concerned and actively involved in the Village of Schaumburg only."

The executive committee of SUP termed the study a community service and voted to underwrite the estimated $5,000 cost.

Mrs. Parsons said the 230 replies came in within three days of the mailing and she expects to have full results and a complete report next week.

To the questions asked, "Are you in favor of a unit school district study?" 220 replied yes and seven no. "Two of the nos commented that the village should form its own district without a study," said Mrs. Parsons.

The second question asks if residents think SUP should pay for the study. 217 residents wanted SUP financing and 16 said no. Three returned the questionnaires with no answers or comments.

Federal flood insurance plan opens tomorrow

Flood insurance for all Palatine residents will be available starting tomorrow, when a broader range of insurance becomes effective through the federally sponsored National Flood Insurance Program.

Homes and small businesses outside the specific areas of Palatine designated as flood hazards can buy the flood insurance at the regular actuarial rate. In addition, new buildings which were started after Palatine became eligible for emergency flood relief can be covered with the federal flood insurance.

Until now, an emergency insurance policy was available only for two areas: a structure in a hazardous flood area that was under construction before the recent floods, or new construction outside the flood areas.

Any area with a one per cent annual chance of flooding is defined as a special flood hazard region by the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD). In recent months, Palatine has been scrutinized to determine specifically where these areas exist, and what the actuarial rate for flood insurance should be.

SUBSIDIZED INSURANCE on an emergency basis was limited to $17,500 maximum coverage for single-family homes and $30,000 for all other structures, including multiple-family and small business buildings. Coverage of contents had a maximum of $5,000 per unit.

The regular insurance policies available now allow twice that coverage, or a total of $35,000 for single-family home structures, $60,000 for small businesses and $10,000 for contents in either type of structure.

Insurance for both structural and content damage is available through local insurance agents. The entire Illinois program is being coordinated by State Farm Insurance Co., but any local agent should be able to provide the policies, according to Local Government Affairs spokesman Jim Reichardt.

The flood insurance program started in 1968, in an attempt to offer protection to residents of flood-susceptible areas and to encourage local governments to adopt land use control measures.

No flood insurance, no federal loans

Unwary Palatine residents may find themselves ineligible for low-interest federal loans if their house is flooded a year from now and they haven't taken out flood insurance.

Under the provisions of the 1968 National Flood Insurance Act, residents without the flood insurance will still qualify for federal disaster assistance for one year after the flood insurance program starts in the community. Such insurance policies will be available to Palatine residents starting tomorrow.

After the year is past, the law states that no assistance will be available to reimburse losses "to the extent that the owner could have obtained flood insurance and failed to do so."

The loan restriction could be changed by the federal government at any time, according to Housing and Urban Development spokesman Dan Day. But unless it is changed, people without flood insurance won't qualify for federal disaster loans if their house floods after Feb. 18, 1974.

After 21 years in district

Jordan School principal takes early retirement

The resignation of Wilma Watkins as principal of Marion Jordan School in Palatine was accepted by the Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 Board of Education last night.

Mrs. Watkins is taking an early retirement from the district and her resignation is effective at the end of the current school year.

Mrs. Watkins has worked in the district for 21 years, nine years as a teacher and 12 years as an administrator. She has been principal of Marion Jordan School since it opened in 1963.

Prior to assuming her present position, she was the principal of Cardinal Drive School in Rolling Meadows for two years.

MRS. WATKINS' career in Dist. 15 started in 1952 when she was hired as a second grade teacher to teach in one of five classrooms the district was renting in Palatine High School. The following year she was transferred to Joel Wood School in Palatine where she taught third grade for two years.

When Stuart Paddock School in Palatine opened in 1955, Mrs. Watkins was again transferred. She spent the next six years teaching third and fourth grade at Paddock School.

In her letter of resignation to the board, Mrs. Watkins said she had "mixed emotions" and her 21 years in Dist. 15 had been a "wonderful experience."

The board appointed Dale Kuester to replace Mrs. Watkins as principal of Marion Jordan School. Kuester is currently an elementary principal intern in the district and rotates regularly among all schools in the district learning all aspects of administration.

Kuester joined the Dist. 15 staff in 1966 as a sixth grade teacher at Virginia Lake School in Palatine. After teaching two years he was appointed assistant principal of Winston Park School in Palatine. He was assistant principal for three years.

KUESTER HOLDS a master's degree in education administration from Northern Illinois University.

The board also appointed Earle Leaf as principal of Stuart Paddock School. Mrs. Leaf has been principal of Joel Wood School since she joined the district in 1965. She had previously been a teacher and administrator in the Lake County schools.

Mrs. Leaf holds a master's degree and certificate of advanced study in education administration from Northern Illinois University.

She replaces George McKown as principal of Paddock School. The board previously had named McKown as principal of Winston Park School to replace Donald Slupe who has been named principal of the new Palatine Hills Junior High School, which will open this spring.

A new principal has not yet been named for Wood School. The board is considering setting up a special structure at the school whereby it would not have its own individual principal.

New 7% fare hike? Commuters don't like it

by KAREN BLECHIA

They might not like it, but commuters who use the Chicago & North Western Ry. for daily trips to the Loop already are prepared for a possible 7 per cent rate increase being sought by the railroad.

And even though they complain, most of them say that daily service is more important than the cost because if the trains ever stop, thousands of suburbanites will not just be inconvenienced, they will be stranded without jobs in the empty suburbs.

"Yech" is the way Kathleen Peters of Arlington Heights feels about the 7 per cent fare increase proposed by the Chicago and North Western. But, like most commuters, she said she "would rather have the fare increase than a decrease in service."

After all, what can you do if you depend on the train to take you downtown five days a week? "You don't like the hike, but you have to accept it," said Daniel Mulcahy, who has been a C&NW passenger for the past 15 years.

The way Bud Daskel of Mount Prospect explains it, the C&NW "has sort of a captive audience with the commuters who don't have a choice because it's the only way for them to get downtown."

"I'd still ride the train. There's no way my nerves could take driving downtown," said Fred Booth of Wheeling, adding that he just started riding the train last August when the C&NW raised rates by 5 1/2 per cent.

A new fare increase won't stop Raymond Brod of Des Plaines from riding the train, either. "I'm not in favor of the increase. I think the Chicago and North Western has had sufficient hikes in the past years and that those should be adequate," said the rider of 13 years. "But I think the North Western provides excellent service."

LARRY PROVO, president of the railway company, said the C&NW is finding it increasingly difficult to maintain present commuter service in the face of rising costs and increased competition. The C&NW first proposed the hike last November, with hopes it would go into effect by Jan. 1.

For commuters like Brod, the hike would mean an increase of between $2.20 and $2.70 on the price of a monthly ticket. For those who ride the train only a few times a week, like Michael Sprattin of Palatine, the hike would mean 20 cents more for a round-trip ticket to the Loop.

"It's terrible. They just raised the rates last August," said Sprattin, who said he is a student and "always going broke." But Sprattin, who often stops in Arlington Heights to give music lessons, likes the C&NW service. "The people are very friendly and they help me board the train with my instruments."

Vicki Selman, from Prospect Heights, said she rides the train about once a month and feels "terrible" about the proposed increase. She said she'd probably take a car instead if the hike is approved.

FOUR DAYS of hearings by the Illinois Commerce Commission on the proposed hike ended last week. According to Tom Judge of C&NW, the ICC will make a decision on the increase in April. He said an increase, if approved, would probably go into effect May 1, although it's up to the commission to decide.

Until then commuters will have time to prepare for an increase. If they're thinking like R. Roch of Mount Prospect, they'll start looking for alternatives to riding the train.

"A group of friends and I are talking about forming a car pool if there's a hike," said Mrs. Roch who rides the train downtown six days a week. "I think an increase is ridiculous. If you consider driving downtown and even parking, the train almost costs as much now. It's terribly expensive."

One Mount Prospect commuter, who wouldn't give his name, doesn't think the C&NW deserves the hike. "Raising rates — it's all they've been doing in the past couple of years. I think they could get by with what they have now. They're like the CTA, they only lose more customers with every rate increase," he said.

"I'd just like to look at their books," was all one Arlington Heights commuter would say.

Fire damages motorcycle shop

Fire damaged a motorcycle sale and repair shop yesterday morning south of Quentin Road on Rand Road in unincorporated Palatine Township.

No estimates of damage or cause of the blaze at Sondag Motorcycle Supply, 20335 Rand Rd., were available from the Lake Zurich Fire Department, which responded to the fire.

It took Lake Zurich firemen about an hour to extinguish the flame. Wauconda firemen were called in for mutual assistance to provide more water, but Lake Zurich assistant chief John Schweda said the Wauconda fire truck had an accident en route and a fireman was injured. The Wauconda department was unable to get to the fire scene because of the accident.

Palatine Rural Fire Department then sent men and equipment to the scene with more water.

The Sondag shop was one of three businesses in the same building. Concrete block walls prevented the fire from spreading to the adjacent businesses, Schweda said.

Nominating petitions for the two three-year terms on the board are available at the E. S. Castor Administration Building, 505 S. Quentin Rd., Palatine.

The first day for filing nominating petitions is Feb. 28 and the last filing day is March 23.

Counterfeit money passed in suburbs

by STEVE BROWN

Businessmen throughout the Northwest suburbs have been warned to be on the lookout for a new batch of counterfeit currency that may be passed in this area.

Schaumburg police reported that more than $100 in bogus $10 bills were passed at Woodfield Mall last weekend.

They have speculated that more counterfeit notes may have been passed at the shopping center.

John Hanley, chief of the Chicago office of the Secret Service, said that while some reports have been received from this area, it does not appear the Northwest suburbs are the focal point of the counterfeit currency passers efforts.

"We have seen these bills turn up in all sections of the city, around large shopping centers and other highly commercial areas," he said.

He said businessmen have been warned by local police to examine all currency used in business transactions.

Hanley said the notes apparently came from a counterfeiting operation in Chicago that was broken up in January.

REPORTEDLY, THE agents seized the counterfeiters, but the plates used in the operation were not confiscated.

Hanley said the incident was not connected to another counterfeiting ring in which a Schaumburg man was arrested last November.

There may be as much as $50,000 in counterfeit currency involved in this incident, according to police, but Hanley said it is impossible to determine how many of the $10 notes may be circulating in the area.

"We thought we had it all when we made the arrests, but the possibility exists there may be more in the area that has not been passed."

Hanley said Secret Service agents are investigating the incident to determine how widespread the situation may be and if there is a pattern to the method in which the counterfeit bills have been passed.

Unsportsmanlike weather pushes hockey indoors

Hockey playing for 568 Palatine boys has been largely restricted to the indoor rink at the Arlington Ice Spectrum due to the warm weather and lack of ice.

This year's registration marks the largest since the program since it started two years ago with 210 youths. Boys are divided by age into six divisions and into two leagues; the house league and traveling teams.

A banquet in April will officially end the season with awarding of trophies to the winners of each division and their sponsor. The last games will be played March 25.

The hockey program is run by the Palatine Amateur Hockey Association and the Palatine Park District.

Woman cited for role in mobile care unit

Janet Schwetman of Inverness has received the Palatine Chamber of Commerce and Industry community service award.

The presentation of a plaque was made this week by chamber officials citing Mrs. Schwetman for her volunteer work which helped form the mobile emergency care unit at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights. Mrs. Schwetman, a hospital volunteer, conceived the idea of bringing the program to the Northwest suburbs a year ago.

Under the program, specially trained paramedic teams give on the scene treatment to emergency victims with instructions by radio from a doctor at the hospital. The system already has been credited with saving several lives.

WITH SEVERAL HUNDRED cans of beer already on the wall, Mike Madden, 22, is still hunting for more. The collection represents more than 500 different brands and labels from Chippewa Pride to Hull's Export, and a lot of everything else in between.

New race date session set

The Illinois Racing Board is scheduled to convene Tuesday to reconsider the 1973 racing schedule, specifically the dates awarded to racing associations controlled by William S. Miller.

Anthony Scarlano, board chairman, said he will ask Miller to show cause why dates assigned to Balmoral Jockey Club Inc. should not be revoked or reassigned to other associations.

Scarlano and Gov. Daniel Walker's racing board are seeking to revoke dates awarded last December by a lame duck racing board because of Miller's testimony before the state Legislative Investigating Commission and in the trial of former Gov. Otto Kerner.

During the trial, Miller admitted misrepresenting his interest in Balmoral to the old racing board.

ARLINGTON PARK Race Track could pick up all or some of the 27 racing days now assigned to the Balmoral association if the board is successful in its bid to overturn the existing schedule.

Arlington operators are hoping that the board will set an entirely new racing schedule and assign the more lucrative summer dates to the track here.

Right now, Arlington Park is scheduled to open April 19 and close July 24.

On a separate front, the Illinois Supreme Court has agreed to hear an emergency appeal on the racing schedule from Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott.

Scott too is seeking to revoke dates awarded to Miller's associations but last month a Circuit Court ruling upheld the 1973 dates schedule, including the 27 days for the Balmoral Jockey Club.

SUPREME COURT Justice Thomas E. Kluczynski set March 15 for a hearing in the attorney general's case. Scott said he is fighting the present schedule because it involves at least $48 million in state revenue.

The racing board also has assigned six charity dates to the Metropolitan Crusade of Mercy. The dates Feb. 22-28, will be run at Sportsman's Park and are expected to bring $150,000 to $200,000 to the charity.

Six other charity dates remain unassigned.

The charity dates became available when Chicago Tribune and Chicago Today charities relinquished their dates because of alleged impropriety in the old board's announcement of the 1973 dates.

Mike would like to add the can to his collection

Anybody you know drink Bullfrog?

by KURT BAER

Collecting beer cans isn't just a passing fad for 22-year-old Mike Madden. "In fact, you could say it's in my blood," says Mike, whose collection of steel and aluminum containers now numbers about 550 and is still growing.

The cans represent a wide range of breweries and an even bigger assortment of labels. From ABC beer to Schlitz, Mike has them all. Well, at least he has a lot of them.

Some more veteran collectors have amassed displays of 2,000 to 3,000 cans and can trace the history of a beer through decades of label changes. Most truly serious collectors, like Mike, belong to a brotherhood — the Beer Can Collectors of America — whose members swap cans with all sophistication and enthusiasm of stamp and coin collectors.

IN JUST four years of searching and saving, Mike already has lined one wall in his bedroom at 1501 W. Euclid Ave., Arlington Heights, with emptied cans and is fast using up wallpaper on a second.

"I'd like to say I drank them all," he says, explaining that for many of the lesser-known labels he has had to visit little "out-of-the-way" places.

"Old railroad stations are an excellent spot. I've found lots of cans searching along walls and between the rafters. I guess guys used to like to 'sit and have one' while waiting for their train."

Cans Mike can't find, he can hope to trade for. Older cans and foreign labels usually command two or even three newer cans in the barter market. One of Mike's goals right now is to find a can of Bullfrog beer, brewed in Chicago 10 or 15 years ago.

It is a brew that, if remembered at all, is usually recalled with words like: "Ohyeah, Bullfrog, three cans and you croaked."

ON THE SURFACE, starting and keeping a collection of empty beer cans sounds pretty straightforward. But can collecting, like any other hobby, has its own set of secrets that separate the connoisseur from the dilettante.

"You can pop out dents with a fire-cracker," Mike says. And a little oxalic acid will remove rust from old steel cans without corroding the metal.

The can curator will also know the Canadian cans are generally half an inch shorter than their American cousins and that the two nationalities cannot be stacked together with any degree of stability.

It probably will come as no surprise that beer cans, like just about everything else, aren't being made the way they used to be.

"They're going to thinner and thinner metal and cheaper paints," says Mike, pulling out one of the early Schlitz Malt Liquor cans that had textured engravings around the base.

THE BEER CAN also has its enemies. "Oregon has put a 5-cent deposit on cans and many people aren't buying them because they're not used to having to return empty cans," Mike says.

"They're also talking about putting a warning on the side of the can, something like: 'Caution: beer drinking may be hazardous to your driving.'"

Mike has already met several other beer can collectors in the area and says he hopes to meet more. He's even thinking about attending a national "convention" in Cincinnati that's expected to draw 600 to 800 collectors.

It would be a chance to make friends, establish new trading contacts and to discuss regional brands and breweries, he says.

It would also be a time to sit back, "pop a top," and brag just a little about that 1936 Budweiser can back home on the shelf.

Homeowners may be eligible for flood insurance

Passage of a resolution authorizing the city to adopt land use control measures in order to qualify for the federal insurance plan came at a city council meeting Tuesday.

Warren L. Veeder, 939 E. Carpenter, Palatine, has taken over the Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 School Board election April 14.

Veeder said yesterday he is undecided as to whether or not he will actually seek election to the board.

A four-year resident of Palatine, Veeder is a sales manager for Permatex Central.

Veeder is the third person to take out a nominating petition. Walter Sundling and Leland Gibbs, the two incumbents whose terms are expiring this year, have also taken out petitions and announced their intention to seek reelection.

The first day for filing nominating petitions is Feb. 25 and the last filing day is March 2.

ance plan came at a city council meeting Tuesday.

The resolution calls for the city to prepare a map outlining problem flood areas, land elevation, and designated flood plain land. These land use control measures must then be reviewed by the Department of Housing and Urban Development to determine whether the city can qualify for the insurance coverage.

City Atty. Don Rose said since private insurance companies will not provide flood insurance because of the high risk involved, the federal government is underwriting the insurance under this plan.

Most local municipalities including Arlington Heights and Palatine qualified for the program several months ago. The insurance is available to homeowners and businesses in a community, with the government paying up to 90 per cent of the premiums.

Single-family homes can be insured up to $17,500 and up to $5,000 for belongings in the home. Apartment units and small businesses can apply for up to $30,000 coverage.

Interest in the federal program grew following severe rains and flood conditions in the summer.

Girl Scout cookie sales will begin March 2 in Rolling Meadows. Five varieties of cookies will be available at a cost of $1 per box.

The varieties will include chocolate covered mints, peanut butter cookies, vanilla flavored butter cookies, vanilla and chocolate filled sandwiches, and a new cookie called a fudge patty.

Money collected from the sales are divided between local Scout troops, the local Girl Scout council, and a portion is used to defray the purchase of the cookies.

The annual cookie sale is one of three fundraising efforts which provide money for Girl Scouts. The others are the sustaining membership drive and money allotted to Scouting from the Community Chest drive.

the Knox Lumber Co. to annex property to operate a lumber yard in the city.

The company is proposing to build the yard in the northwest portion of the city's industrial park near Rohlfing Road and Ill. Rte. 53. The property is presently zoned M-1, which permits the lumber yard as a building supplies facility, City Atty. Don Rose said Tuesday.

Members of the special zoning commission will be Robert Byrnes, chairman; Kenneth White, Richard Schar, Richard Kornatz, Daniel Stieber, Pat Jacobsen, and Richard Blane. An alternate delegate will be Walter Jacobsen.

All but Kornatz are members of the plan commission. Kornatz is a member of the zoning board of appeals.

March 2 and will run through March 11. Five varieties of cookies will be on sale for $1 per box.

School reorganization study OK'd

The High School Dist. 214 Board of Education has approved plans for a study on school district organization to be completed by Feb. 1, 1974.

The board has agreed to ask the state school superintendent's office to provide $23,169 for the study, which would examine organization of Dist. 214 and all its feeder elementary districts.

The study is being planned in response to a feasibility study on unit school districts now under way in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59. A unit district would place the high schools and elementary schools under a single board of education and administration.

Dist. 214 and its underlying elementary districts are now organized as dual districts, with separate boards and administrations dealing with elementary and high schools.

SUPT. EDWARD GILBERT explained the Dist. 214 study will be made by 10 committees which will investigate such things as enrollment projections, facilities, staffing needs and curriculum. Each committee will study a specific area and report to a steering committee made up of members of the Dist. 214 and elementary district boards.

The state money will be used to hire expert consultants to work with the committees doing the study, Gilbert said.

"The results of the study will be made available to the school boards without recommendation," Gilbert said. He added, "We haven't thought of this as a preparation for a feasibility study to form a unit district and you won't find the term unit district used anywhere in our proposal."

The study now underway in Dist. 59 is studying three specific sets of boundaries for what could become a unit district. The committee working on the boundaries expects to make a report this spring recommending whether a petition to form a unit district should be filed for one of the proposed units.

THE UNIT districts being studied in Dist. 59 could result in anywhere from one to four high schools being removed from the jurisdiction of Dist. 214.

If a petition is filed to form a unit district in the Elk Grove area, hearings will be held by the county superintendent and the petition will be reviewed by the state superintendent. If both those officials approve the petition, residents of the proposed unit will vote in a referendum whether they want a unit district.

Dist. 214 board members have said they hope their study of district organization will stall any consideration of unit district petitions from the Dist. 59 area.

The board adopted the plan for the proposed study with board member Jack Costello passing.

Survey to determine need for bookmobile

A survey to determine the need for bookmobile services in Rolling Meadows will be conducted by members of Project Bookmobile from Feb. 16 through Feb. 24.

Project Bookmobile representatives will be surveying residents at the Rolling Meadows Shopping Center and by telephone to see if they would like to have bookmobile service in the community. The service would be aimed at senior citizens, children and persons unable to get to the Rolling Meadows Public Library, 3110 Martin Ln.

The group has scheduled its next meeting for Feb. 25 and hopes to have the results of the survey compiled by that time.

Project Bookmobile was organized more than a year ago. The group has been looking for a government surplus vehicle it could use as a bookmobile and share with the Rolling Meadows Civil Defense Department, which would use it for emergency transportation.

This fall a voluntary book service for shut-ins was started by the group as a temporary measure until a bookmobile could be obtained.

The Herald erroneously reported yesterday Mrs. Wanderssee was the first woman to run for alderman in the city.

Special Valentine for Kimberly Ann...

For 13-year-old Kimberly Ann Zimmermann, 3708 Oriole Ln., Rolling Meadows, yesterday was special in a lot of ways.

Kimberly had sent away for a POW bracelet to wear, one of those metal bands to wear as remembrance for the men who never have nice days.

The bracelet arrived yesterday in the mail, bearing the name of Capt. Jeremiah Denton, Jr., shot down and captured on July 13, 1968.

And then, on the news, came another message about Denton. He was released from imprisonment and was coming home.

It might be the shortest, and happiest, day a POW bracelet was ever worn.

And on Valentine's Day, too.

Revenue-sharing funds tied up in Washington

A bureaucratic snarl in Washington, D.C., has prevented Elk Grove Township from getting any federal revenue sharing funds.

Richard Hall, township auditor, said the township was mistakenly considered a non-taxing unit when its application was submitted. A non-taxing unit is ineligible for revenue sharing.

According to Hall, the necessary information to correct the error has been submitted, but none of the township officials have any idea when the first federal check will be received.

Hall said the township has been assured of receiving all back revenue funds when the error is corrected. He had no estimate of how much money the township was to receive.

THE DELAY in getting revenue sharing will force the township to hold a second set of budget meetings. The township is now holding budget meetings for the 1973-74 fiscal year expenditures of its tax monies. Once the amount of revenue sharing is known, the township will hold additional meetings to budget the funds.

During budget meetings, expenditures for the coming fiscal year are estimated. The figures are subject to change until the board of auditors have developed a proposed official budget. This budget must be on public display for at least 30 days. After that the auditors have to adopt it as the official township budget for the new fiscal year.

At the first of the meetings, held Tuesday, the auditors suggested a Town Fund budget of $185,912, a total only $200 higher than last year's budget of $185,712.

The Town Fund covers all operations expenses of the township except those for sewers, road and bridge and general assistance funds.

THE BIGGEST increase in line items on the budget was a more than doubling of the township youth committee expenditures. Last year's youth committee had a $12,000 budget. For 1973-74, a total of $27,000 was suggested.

Major reductions in budgeted expenses were made for the township collector's office. This office is no longer a functioning agency at the township level of government. Nominal amounts were suggested for the collector's office in the event that it does become active again.

No amount was suggested for payment of bond and interest since the township paid off the last of its bonds during the current fiscal year.

The overall township Road and Bridge Fund was decreased by almost $3,000 in the suggested budget with a total expenditure of $173,100, down from this year's $176,000.

THE OVER-ALL township general assistance budget for 1973-74 was reduced by over $2,000 compared to this year. The 1973-74 figure is $78,400 compared to this year's $80,450.

At the meeting, representatives from Elk Grove Village Community Service requested that the township allocate $28,600 for the agency. The amount is based on the number of people from Elk Grove Township who received counseling and therapy from Community Service in the past year. Officials said that township tax money could not be appropriated for mental health agencies.

The auditors said there is a possibility that federal revenue sharing funds could be used to support some form of mental health treatment. The auditors asked that Community Service representatives return to the township when federal revenue sharing funds are obtained, and a budget is drawn up.

The next budget meeting is scheduled for 8 p.m., Tuesday, at the town offices, 2400 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

After 21 years in district

Jordan School principal takes early retirement

The resignation of Wilma Watkins as principal of Marion Jordan School in Palatine was accepted by the Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 Board of Education last night.

Mrs. Watkins is taking an early retirement from the district and her resignation is effective at the end of the current school year.

Mrs. Watkins has worked in the district for 21 years, nine years as a teacher and 12 years as an administrator. She has been principal of Marion Jordan School since it opened in 1963.

Prior to assuming her present position, she was the principal of Cardinal Drive School in Rolling Meadows for two years.

MRS. WATKINS' career in Dist. 15 started in 1952 when she was hired as a second grade teacher to teach in one of five classrooms the district was renting in Palatine High School. The following year she was transferred to Joel Wood School in Palatine where she taught third grade for two years.

When Stuart Paddock School in Palatine opened in 1955, Mrs. Watkins was again transferred. She spent the next six years teaching third and fourth grade at Paddock School.

In her letter of resignation to the board, Mrs. Watkins said she had "mixed emotions" and her 21 years in Dist. 15 had been a "wonderful experience."

The board appointed Dale Kuester to replace Mrs. Watkins as principal of Marion Jordan School. Kuester is currently an elementary principal intern in the district and rotates regularly among all schools in the district learning all aspects of administration.

Kuester joined the Dist. 15 staff in 1966 as a sixth grade teacher at Virginia Lake School in Palatine. After teaching two years he was appointed assistant principal of Winston Park School in Palatine. He was assistant principal for three years.

KUESTER HOLDS a master's degree in education administration from Northern Illinois University.

The board also appointed Earle Leaf as principal of Stuart Paddock School. Mrs. Leaf has been principal of Joel Wood School since she joined the district in 1965. She had previously been a teacher and administrator in the Lake County schools.

Mrs. Leaf holds a master's degree and certificate of advanced study in education administration from Northern Illinois University.

She replaces George McKown as principal of Paddock School. The board previously had named McKown as principal of Winston Park School to replace Donald Stipe who has been named principal of the new Palatine Hills Junior High School, which will open this spring.

A new principal has not yet been named for Wood School. The board is considering setting up a special structure at the school whereby it would not have its own individual principal.

Independents seek to abolish township government

Abolishment of the township government is part of the platform adopted by the independent slate of candidates for the Elk Grove Township elections.

The platform states:

• Immediate steps shall be taken to eliminate all township functions now duplicated by other local governments.

• Any township functions not duplicated would be transferred to an appropriate local government.

• A nonpartisan citizens' committee shall be formed to consider a referendum to abolish township government.

THE PLATFORM also calls for:

• The elimination of the patronage system for hiring at the township. All positions will be filled strictly on the basis of qualification for the job.

• Spending should be reduced by the elimination of the township commissioner, township collector's staff, and assessor's staff. Excessive spending in the township road and bridge fund and general assistance shall be eliminated.

• Full disclosure of all income, assets and liabilities shall be made by all independent candidates. Following the election, no township funds shall be deposited in a bank in which a township official has a proprietary interest.

The independent "slate" is running the following candidates: Paul Rettberg, auditor; Julie Sass, auditor; Steven Maddock, auditor; and Larry Pahl, township highway commissioner.

The group calls themselves a slate because they are pooling resources and supporting one another. Technically, they are not a slate since there is not a candidate for every office.

Rettberg and Pahl live in Elk Grove Village. Mrs. Sass and Maddock live in unincorporated Elk Grove Township.

THE GROUP is opposing the full slate of candidates filed by the Regular Republican Organization of Elk Grove Township. The Republicans running are: Bernard Lee, Wayne Hult, Water Bartley and Larry Hintze for auditors and Alfred Stief for highway commissioner. Also, the Republicans are running Richard Hall, now a township auditor, for supervisor.

Hall, after reading the independent platform, charged the independents did not understand the function of township government. He said he did not know why the group was running for offices they wanted to abolish.

New 7% fare hike? Commuters don't like it

by KAREN BLECHIA

They might not like it, but commuters who use the Chicago & North Western Ry. for daily trips to the Loop already are prepared for a possible 7 per cent rate increase being sought by the railroad.

And even though they complain, most of them say that daily service is more important than the cost because if the trains ever stop, thousands of suburbanites will not just be inconvenienced, they will be stranded without jobs in the empty suburbs.

"Yech" is the way Kathleen Peters of Arlington Heights feels about the 7 per cent fare increase proposed by the Chicago and North Western. But, like most commuters, she said she "would rather have the fare increase than a decrease in service."

After all, what can you do if you depend on the train to take you downtown five days a week? "You don't like the hike, but you have to accept it," said Daniel Mulcahy, who has been a C&NW passenger for the past 15 years.

The way Bud Daskel of Mount Prospect explains it, the C&NW "has sort of a captive audience with the commuters who don't have a choice because it's the only way for them to get downtown."

"I'd still ride the train. There's no way my nerves could take driving downtown," said Fred Booth of Wheeling, adding that he just started riding the train last August when the C&NW raised rates by 5 1/4 per cent.

A new fare increase won't stop Raymond Brodi of Des Plaines from riding the train, either. "I'm not in favor of the increase. I think the Chicago and North Western has had sufficient hikes in the past years and that those should be adequate," said the rider of 13 years. "But I think the North Western provides excellent service."

LARRY PROVO, president of the railway company, said the C&NW is finding it increasingly difficult to maintain present commuter service in the face of rising costs and increased competition. The C&NW first proposed the hike last November, with hopes it would go into effect by Jan. 1.

For commuters like Brodi, the hike would mean an increase of between $2.20 and $2.70 on the price of a monthly ticket. For those who ride the train only a few times a week, like Michael Sprattlin of Palatine, the hike would mean 20 cents more for a round-trip ticket to the Loop.

"It's terrible. They just raised the rates last August," said Sprattlin, who said he is a student and "always going broke." But Sprattlin, who often stops in Arlington Heights to give music lessons, likes the C&NW service. "The people are very friendly and they help me board the train with my instruments."

Vicki Selman, from Prospect Heights, said she rides the train about once a month and feels "terrible" about the proposed increase. She said she'd probably take a car instead if the hike is approved.

FOUR DAYS of hearings by the Illinois Commerce Commission on the proposed hike ended last week. According to Tom Judge of C&NW, the ICC will make a decision on the increase in April. He said an increase, if approved, would probably go into effect May 1, although it's up to the commission to decide.

Until then commuters will have time to prepare for an increase. If they're thinking like R. Roch of Mount Prospect, they'll start looking for alternatives to riding the train.

"A group of friends and I are talking about forming a car pool if there's a hike," said Mrs. Roch, who rides the train downtown six days a week. "I think an increase is ridiculous. If you consider driving downtown and even parking, the train almost costs as much now. It's terribly expensive."

One Mount Prospect commuter, who wouldn't give his name, doesn't think the C&NW deserves the hike. "Raising rates — it's all they've been doing in the past couple of years. I think they could get by with what they have now. They're like the CTA, they only lose more customers with every rate increase," he said.

"I'd just like to look at their books," was all one Arlington Heights commuter would say.

Mike would like to add the can to his collection

Anybody you know drink Bullfrog?

by KURT BAER

Collecting beer cans isn't just a passing fad for 22-year-old Mike Madden. "In fact, you could say it's in my blood," says Mike, whose collection of steel and aluminum containers now numbers about 550 and is still growing.

The cans represent a wide range of breweries and an even bigger assortment of labels. From ABC beer to Schlitz, Mike has them all. Well, at least he has a lot of them.

Some more veteran collectors have amassed displays of 2,000 to 3,000 cans and can trace the history of a beer through decades of label changes. Most truly serious collectors, like Mike, belong to a brotherhood — the Beer Can Collectors of America — whose members swap cans with all sophistication and enthusiasm of stamp and coin collectors.

IN JUST four years of searching and saving, Mike already has lined one wall in his bedroom at 1501 W. Euclid Ave., Arlington Heights, with emptied cans and is fast using up wallpaper on a second.

"I'd like to say I drank them all," he says, explaining that for many of the lesser-known labels he has had to visit little "out-of-the-way" places.

"Old railroad stations are an excellent spot. I've found lots of cans searching along walls and between the rafters. I guess guys used to like to 'sit and have one' while waiting for their train."

Cans Mike can't find, he can hope to trade for. Older cans and foreign labels usually command two or even three newer cans in the barter market. One of Mike's goals right now is to find a can of Bullfrog beer, brewed in Chicago 10 or 15 years ago.

It is a brew that, if remembered at all, is usually recalled with words like: "Oh yeah, Bullfrog, three cans and you croaked."

ON THE SURFACE, starting and keeping a collection of empty beer cans sounds pretty straightforward. But can collecting, like any other hobby, has its own set of secrets that separate the connoisseur from the dilettante.

"You can pop out dents with a fire-cracker," Mike says. And a little oxalic acid will remove rust from old steel cans without corroding the metal.

The can curator will also know the Canadian cans are generally half an inch shorter than their American cousins and that the two nationalities cannot be stacked together with any degree of stability.

It probably will come as no surprise that beer cans, like just about everything else, aren't being made the way they used to be.

"They're going to thinner and thinner metal and cheaper paints," says Mike, pulling out one of the early Schlitz Malt Liquor cans that had textured engravings around the base.

THE BEER CAN also has its enemies.

"Oregon has put a 5-cent deposit on cans and many people aren't buying them because they're not used to having to return empty cans," Mike says.

"They're also talking about putting a warning on the side of the can, something like: 'Caution: beer drinking may be hazardous to your driving.'"

Mike has already met several other beer can collectors in the area and says he hopes to meet more. He's even thinking about attending a national "convention" in Cincinnati that's expected to draw 600 to 800 collectors.

It would be a chance to make friends, establish new trading contacts and to discuss regional brands and breweries, he says.

It would also be a time to sit back, "pop a top," and brag just a little about that 1936 Budweiser can back home on the shelf.

WITH SEVERAL HUNDRED cans of beer already on the wall, Mike Madden, 22, is still hunting for more. Mike began his collection of empty beer cans four years ago and is now a member in good standing of the Beer Can Collectors of America. The collection represents more than 500 different brands and labels from Chippewa Pride to Hull's Export, and a lot of everything else in between.

New race date session set

The Illinois Racing Board is scheduled to convene Tuesday to reconsider the 1973 racing schedule, specifically the dates awarded to racing associations controlled by William S. Miller.

Anthony Scarlano, board chairman, said he will ask Miller to show cause why dates assigned to Balmoral Jockey Club Inc. should not be revoked or re-assigned to other associations.

Scarlano and Gov. Daniel Walker's racing board are seeking to revoke dates awarded last December by a lame duck racing board because of Miller's testimony before the state Legislative Investigating Commission and in the trial of former Gov. Otto Kerner.

During the trial, Miller admitted misrepresenting his interest in Balmoral to the old racing board.

ARLINGTON PARK Race Track could pick up all or some of the 27 racing days now assigned to the Balmoral association if the board is successful in its bid to overturn the existing schedule.

Arlington operators are hoping that the board will set an entirely new racing schedule and assign the more lucrative summer dates to the track here.

Right now, Arlington Park is scheduled to open April 19 and close July 24.

On a separate front, the Illinois Supreme Court has agreed to hear an emergency appeal on the racing schedule from Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott.

Scott too is seeking to revoke dates awarded to Miller's associations but last month a Circuit Court ruling upheld the 1973 dates schedule, including the 27 days for the Balmoral Jockey Club.

SUPREME COURT Justice Thomas E. Kluczynski set March 15 for a hearing in the attorney general's case. Scott said he is fighting the present schedule because it involves at least $48 million in state revenue.

The racing board also has assigned six charity racing dates to the Metropolitan Crusade of Mercy. The dates Feb. 22-28, will be run at Sportsman's Park and are expected to bring $150,000 to $200,000 to the charity.

Six other charity dates remain unsigned.

The charity dates became available when Chicago Tribune and Chicago Today charities relinquished their dates because of alleged impropriety in the old board's announcement of the 1973 dates.

Bad checks passed at Woodfield

Businessmen warned about counterfeit money in area

by STEVE BROWN

Businessmen throughout the Northwest suburbs have been warned to be on the lookout for a new batch of counterfeit currency that may be passed in this area.

Schaumburg police reported that more than $100 in bogus $10 bills were passed at Woodfield Mall last weekend.

They have speculated that more counterfeit notes may have been passed at the shopping center.

John Hanley, chief of the Chicago office of the Secret Service, said that while some reports have been received from this area, it does not appear the Northwest suburbs are the focal point of the counterfeit currency passers efforts.

"We have seen these bills turn up in all sections of the city, around large shopping centers and other highly commercial areas," he said.

He said businessmen have been warned by local police to examine all currency used in business transactions.

Hanley said the notes apparently came from a counterfeiting operation in Chicago that was broken up in January.

REPORTEDLY, THE agents seized the counterfeiters, but the plates used in the operation were not confiscated.

Hanley said the incident was not connected to another counterfeiting ring in which a Schaumburg man was arrested last November.

There may be as much as $50,000 in counterfeit currency involved in this incident, according to police, but Hanley said it is impossible to determine how many of the $10 notes may be circulating in the area.

"We thought we had it all when we made the arrests, but the possibility exists there may be more in the area that has not been passed."

Hanley said Secret Service agents are investigating the incident to determine how widespread the situation may be and if there is a pattern to the method in which the counterfeit bills have been passed.

Families to be queried for survey

More than 300 families in Elk Grove Village and Schaumburg will be interviewed soon as part of a nationwide survey.

The information will eventually be used to formulate federal policy on development of planned communities in the United States.

The study, funded by a $1.1 million grant from the National Science Foundation, is being conducted by the University of North Carolina's Center for Urban and Regional Studies.

Park Forest South is the only other Illinois community included in the 34 towns in the study group.

Residents will be asked their opinions on the quality of life in the various communities, according to directors of the study.

Prof. Shirley F. Weiss, principal investigator on the project, said, "The critical question for new community policy in the 1970s is not whether new communities will be built, but how well they will perform in improving the quality of life for new community residents."

THE STUDY also will attempt to examine what steps can be taken to improve new communities in terms of employment opportunities, health services, education and commercial development.

The survey teams in this area will be part of the Research Triangle Institute, also working on the project.

The results of the study will be incorporated in guidelines, used to implement the Urban Growth and New Community Development Act which call for the creation of 110 new cities in the United States by the year 2000. The cities, 10 of which will be designed to accommodate more than 1 million persons, are aimed at correcting many of the urban problems found in already existing communities.

The criteria developed in the study will be used by U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development guidelines for the new cities project.

The study will take more than a year to complete. Results are expected to be released by December, 1974.

Survey shows residents favor unit school study

Replies from 220 Schaumburg residents indicate they favor a Schaumburg United Party-financed unit school district study.

The study, as proposed by the Village of Schaumburg, would weigh the educational and tax advantages to Schaumburg residents if the village were to form a unit school district within the Schaumburg boundaries.

Now, parts of Schaumburg are in elementary school districts 54, 15, and 12 and high school districts 211 and 214. A unit district is a unified elementary-high school combination.

SUP secretary Sylvia Parsons, commenting on a preliminary report submitted to SUP officers, said 220 of the approximately 6,000 questionnaires mailed to residents have been returned to SUP headquarters.

STRESSING THAT the report is incomplete, Mrs. Parsons noted that residents are cooperating with SUP's attempt to poll Schaumburg residents opinions.

She said most of the replies came in from non-SUP members. The questionnaires prepared by the SUP party was sent to residents last week. It told of benefits of a separate unit school district for Schaumburg but found no disadvantages to such an action.

SUP, according to the newsletter "Is a non-partisan group consisting of Republicans, Democrats, and Independents pledged to be concerned and actively involved in the Village of Schaumburg only."

The executive committee of SUP termed the study a community service and voted to underwrite the estimated $5,000 cost.

Mrs. Parsons said the 220 replies came in within three days of the mailing and she expects to have full results and a complete report next week.

To the questions asked, "Are you in favor of a unit school district study?" 220 replied yes and seven no. "Two of the nos commented that the village should form its own district without a study," said Mrs. Parsons.

The second question asks if residents think SUP should pay for the study. 217 residents wanted SUP financing and 16 said no. Three returned the questionnaires with no answers or comments.

4th year as campaign worker

Twinbrook 'quota buster' at it again

by JERRY THOMAS

Meet Bill Terrinoni of Hoffman Estates.

He's a quiet guy who believes in the YMCA and will back it this year with his fourth effort as a campaign worker on the Twinbrook Y's Family Sustaining Membership Campaign which starts today.

Terrinoni is one of more than 300 men and women in Schaumburg Township who will raise funds, doing their part to insure financial stability for Twinbrook YMCA.

This year's goal is $34,850 with $22,650 sought from the family drive and $12,000 from the business community.

TERRINONI has earned the nickname "quota buster," from his fellow workers.

THE BEST WAY to "sell" the YMCA is by face-to-face meetings, said veteran campaign worker Bill Terrinoni of Hoffman Estates. Terrinoni, dubbed "quota-buster" by fellow workers, starts the 1973 Twinbrook YMCA Sustaining Membership Drive today with a $22,650 goal.

Last year he was a division chairman responsible for four teams totaling 21 workers. His goal was $2,200. The "Terrinoni Tigers," went over the top with $2,358. Bill Terrinoni personally secured $180 becoming both a division and worker quota-buster.

Why does he do it? "It's a job that has to be done . . . just a necessary task," Terrinoni said. "I think back about what the Y did for me as a youth and I know it is needed for others; I'd like to repay for the benefits I received."

"I never feel hesitant about the Y, because we have such a good program. Besides most people have a good impression of the Y," said the 39-year-old salesman.

Terrinoni grew up with the Y and once held the position of County Chief for the Y-Indian Guide program at the Cleveland YMCA.

SINCE MOVING to Hoffman Estates, Bill has been vice president of the Gray-Y Council.

When the workers kicked off their rally last night for the family drive, Terrinoni's wife, Sally, was with him. Before coming to Hoffman Estates, Terrinoni's son, Ken, was an active member of the Rebels Gray-Y Club and attended YMCA summer camps.

Now the Terrinoni boys, Ken and brother Dave, are active in Boy Scouting; but Terrinoni and his wife still believe in the YMCA.

Because of good support and preparation by campaign leadership and the YMCA staff, fund-raising is a pleasant experience, said Terrinoni.

"IT'S NOT A chore. The training makes the job easy and the mechanics of the campaign are flawless."

The hardest part about campaigning is "just getting started, but once I get going, look out! I like to explain how we are a family YMCA and our purpose is leadership building. I stress that our program is decentralized to serve the entire area and we must do things right because the program is growing unbelievably huge," said Terrinoni.

His motivation is simple enough. "Every time someone tells me about something going on with the Twinbrook YMCA, I get a good feeling inside knowing I've helped out during the campaign," Terrinoni said.

This Morning In Brief

The nation

President Nixon reports the nation is well on its way to winning the war against air and water pollution, but said he would ask Congress to pass 19 pieces of legislation to help make the victory complete.

Former Teamsters Pres. James Hoffa said he is trying to arrange an early return to union activities, but has no intention to seek the ouster of his successor, Frank Fitzsimmons.

The state

The Illinois House tabled a bill designed to liberalize the state's abortion laws after the bill's sponsor said it "may only add to the present confusion."

A spokesman for two unions representing the CTA, said the chance of averting a strike in the next week to 10 days was slim.

Dunbar condominium final plans approved by board

Final approval was given Tuesday by Schaumburg officials to Dunbar Homes Inc., for its 1,716-unit condominium development at Plum Grove and Schaumburg roads.

Acting on a request from Gilbert Hennessey, Dunbar's attorney, the board waived preliminary approval of the project and granted final acceptance to permit the firm to take advantage of options it holds on the 92-acre parcel. If only preliminary approval had been granted, Dunbar would have been forced to wait until the next board meeting, Feb. 26, to receive official rezoning permitting exercise of the options.

In granting the zoning, the board discussed again the level of financial and land contributions which have aroused controversy among residents of Schaumburg and surrounding communities. Much of the discussion has focused on $171,600 Dunbar is giving to help finance the $1.5-million St. Luke's Medical Center North, a hospital proposed for construction on Schaumburg Road. No donations are planned for Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54.

TRUSTEE HERBERT Aigner, who had said at the board's last meeting that Dunbar was a "little shy" in donations as compared to other developers, Tuesday said he had looked again at figures, and calculating on a donation-per-child basis, found Dunbar was giving $387. Miller Builders, developers of Mantucket Cove and the firm Aigner referred to at the earlier meeting, is giving $382 per child, he said. Aigner also noted the contributions are to the community, and while Miller gave to the elementary

Firm seeking development in Hoffman Estates

Home builders' group drops Realcoa for 'ethics'

by NANCY COWGER

A firm contemplating annexation to Hoffman Estates for a residential development has been dropped from membership in a home builder's professional organization for failure to comply with the group's ethics committee's recommendations.

Realty Co. of America (REALCOA) was dropped from membership in the Home Builders Association of Chicago-Land in May of 1971 after it refused to pay the $1,000 cost of construction a subdivision retention wall on recommendation by the association's ethics and arbitration committee.

A spokesman for the firm yesterday said the suspension stemmed from a personal matter, explaining that his company favors builder contributions for the communities in which they locate, and the association does not.

The suspension attracted national publicity after a homeowner in Hickory Hills, Ill., filed a complaint with HBAC against Realcoa seeking reimbursement for a retaining wall built to stop soil erosion around the foundation of a single-family home.

AT THE TIME, Robert K. Widdicombe

Jr., executive of the association, said HBAC inspectors "discovered that Realcoa was at fault, and recommended that Realcoa pay for the retaining wall." When Realcoa refused, the committee recommended suspension for a year, with the provision Realcoa could then reapply for membership if it paid for the wall by that time. Widdicombe said yesterday Realcoa never paid for the wall, and has never sought reinstatement with HBAC.

"They did not want to set a precedent which might lead to a substantial similar reaction of the other people in the subdivision," said Widdicombe. Commenting on the association's policies, Widdicombe said "I think that any firm that is willing to accept its responsibility when it goes into a community and builds housing would also at the same time be willing to take care of the problems that may arise irrespective of a possible widespread similar reaction."

Suspension is not a frequent action of HBAC, said Widdicombe, since most similar cases are resolved with the builder satisfying the ethics committee's recommendations. In Realcoa's case, the association's board voted unanimously for the suspension, and only a two-thirds vote is required, he said. "The builder did not perform his duty as judged by fellow builders," Widdicombe added.

HOWEVER, Harvey Rawson, Realcoa's board chairman, claimed the suspension was instead the result of resentment on the part of other builders.

"We've had a running battle with the association for a long time, and always will. We're in with open planning and signed contracts for contributions to school districts. We believe in contributions to school districts and communities," and HBAC does not, said Rawson. Realcoa "had no intention of staying with the association anyway, and have no intention of going back. We do not value their membership," he said.

Regarding the Hickory Hills case, Rawson said Realcoa maintained a natural contour of the land, and told each purchaser earth retention was the responsibility of the buyer. No other buyers in the development have sought reimbursement, he said.

OTHER DISPUTES have arisen regarding Realcoa developments. Purchasers of 54 homes in Kingsbridge, a section of what is now Heritage Park in Arlington Heights, formed a loose organization in 1969, hired an attorney and complained to the village of construction deficiencies. The development included 327 homes.

The group compiled a list of $35 complaints, 214 of which Realcoa challenged as either invalid or not the builder's responsibility. Inspections by village building department personnel revealed at least one code violation in each home, according to the spokesman for the homeowners group, Bob MacPhail. A village trustee questioned whether the village codes had been enforced.

MacPhail still lives in his Realcoa home. He said yesterday all his complaints had been corrected to his satisfaction, although others in the group still are dissatisfied.

"I'm very critical of Realcoa, and yet I have a lovely home. The quality of what they put in the home is excellent. Workmanship was the problem," MacPhail said. He added he realized difficulties builders face in obtaining competent help and controlling workmanship.

HOWEVER, MacPhail also commented of Realcoa, "their entire attitude was strictly to try to keep the Arlington Heights Village somewhat satisfied, and to do as little as possible."

Apparently the village was satisfied. L. A. Hansen, village manager said yesterday "all the complaints of the residents were resolved. All the people who had complaints were satisfied."

For Hoffman Estates, Realcoa is planning homes in the price range of "the middle to high 40s and overlapping into the 50s," said Rawson. There are to be about 150 homes on just under 60 acres. Half a dozen models are planned, each with two or three levels and with three or four bedrooms, he said. Some also will have double-sized master bedrooms which could be split or converted for other use.

The property is along Freeman Boulevard, west of Howie-in-the-Hills, and is referred to as the Cipri farm, said Rawson. Realcoa has a contract to purchase the land subject to annexation by Hoffman Estates and availability of sewer and water. Rawson characterized the firm's annexation interest as "very serious," and said "if they are satisfied with annexation we are ready to move in and start immediate construction." Village engineers now are reviewing Realcoa's proposal, said Rawson.

New 7% fare hike? Commuters don't like it

by KAREN BLECHIA

They might not like it, but commuters who use the Chicago & North Western Ry. for daily trips to the Loop already are prepared for a possible 7 per cent rate increase being sought by the railroad.

And even though they complain, most of them say that daily service is more important than the cost because if the trains ever stop, thousands of suburbanites will not just be inconvenienced, they will be stranded without jobs in the empty suburbs.

"Yeah" is the way Kathleen Peters of Arlington Heights feels about the 7 per cent fare increase proposed by the Chicago and North Western. But, like most commuters, she said she "would rather have the fare increase than a decrease in service."

After all, what can you do if you depend on the train to take you downtown five days a week? "You don't like the hike, but you have to accept it," said Daniel Mulcahy, who has been a C&NW passenger for the past 15 years.

The way Bud Daskal of Mount Prospect explains it, the C&NW "has sort of a captive audience with the commuters who don't have a choice because it's the only way for them to get downtown."

"I'd still ride the train. There's no way my nerves could take driving downtown," said Fred Booth of Wheeling, adding that he just started riding the train last August when the C&NW raised rates by 5 1/4 per cent.

A new fare increase won't stop Raymond Brodi of Des Plaines from riding the train, either. "I'm not in favor of the increase. I think the Chicago and North Western has had sufficient hikes in the past years and that those should be adequate," said the rider of 13 years. "But I think the North Western provides excellent service."

LARRY PROVO, president of the railway company, said the C&NW is finding it increasingly difficult to maintain present commuter service in the face of rising costs and increased competition. The C&NW first proposed the hike last November, with hopes it would go into effect by Jan. 1.

For commuters like Brodi, the hike would mean an increase of between $2.20 and $2.70 on the price of a monthly ticket. For those who ride the train only a few times a week, like Michael Spratlin of Palatine, the hike would mean 20 cents more for a round-trip ticket to the Loop.

"It's terrible. They just raised the rates last August," said Spratlin, who said he is a student and "always going broke." But Spratlin, who often stops in Arlington Heights to give music lessons, likes the C&NW service. "The people are very friendly and they help me board the train with my instruments."

Vicki Selman, from Prospect Heights, said she rides the train about once a month and feels "terrible" about the proposed increase. She said she'd probably take a car instead if the hike is approved.

FOUR DAYS of hearings by the Illinois Commerce Commission on the proposed hike ended last week. According to Tom Judge of C&NW, the ICC will make a decision on the increase in April. He said an increase, if approved, would probably go into effect May 1, although it's up to the commission to decide.

Until then commuters will have time to prepare for an increase. If they're thinking like R. Roch of Mount Prospect, they'll start looking for alternatives to riding the train.

"A group of friends and I are talking about forming a car pool if there's a hike," said Mrs. Roch who rides the train downtown six days a week. "I think an increase is ridiculous. If you consider driving downtown and even parking, the train almost costs as much now. It's terribly expensive."

One Mount Prospect commuter, who wouldn't give his name, doesn't think the C&NW deserves the hike. "Raising rates — it's all they've been doing in the past couple of years. I think they could get by with what they have now. They're like the CTA, they only lose more customers with every rate increase," he said.

"I'd just like to look at their books," was all one Arlington Heights commuter would say.

Mike would like to add the can to his collection

Anybody you know drink Bullfrog?

by KURT BAER

Collecting beer cans isn't just a passing fad for 22-year-old Mike Madden. "In fact, you could say it's in my blood," says Mike, whose collection of steel and aluminum containers now numbers about 550 and is still growing.

The cans represent a wide range of breweries and an even bigger assortment of labels. From ABC beer to Schlitz, Mike has them all. Well, at least he has a lot of them.

Some more veteran collectors have amassed displays of 2,000 to 3,000 cans and can trace the history of a beer through decades of label changes. Most truly serious collectors, like Mike, belong to a brotherhood — the Beer Can Collectors of America — whose members swap cans with all sophistication and enthusiasm of stamp and coin collectors.

IN JUST four years of searching and saving, Mike already has lined one wall in his bedroom at 1501 W. Euclid Ave., Arlington Heights, with emptied cans and is fast using up wallpaper on a second.

"I'd like to say I drank them all," he says, explaining that for many of the lesser-known labels he has had to visit little "out-of-the-way" places.

"Old railroad stations are an excellent spot. I've found lots of cans searching along walls and between the rafters. I guess guys used to like to 'sit and have one' while waiting for their train."

Cans Mike can't find, he can hope to trade for. Older cans and foreign labels usually command two or even three newer cans in the barter market. One of Mike's goals right now is to find a can of Bullfrog beer, brewed in Chicago 10 or 15 years ago.

It is a brew that, if remembered at all, is usually recalled with words like: "Ohyeah, Bullfrog, three cans and you croaked."

ON THE SURFACE, starting and keeping a collection of empty beer cans sounds pretty straightforward. But can collecting, like any other hobby, has its own set of secrets that separate the connoisseur from the dilettante.

"You can pop out dents with a firecracker," Mike says. And a little oxalic acid will remove rust from old steel cans without corroding the metal.

The can curator will also know the Canadian cans are generally half an inch shorter than their American cousins and that the two nationalities cannot be stacked together with any degree of stability.

It probably will come as no surprise that beer cans, like just about everything else, aren't being made the way they used to be.

"They're going to thinner and thinner metal and cheaper paints," says Mike, pulling out one of the early Schlitz Malt Liquor cans that had textured engravings around the base.

THE BEER CAN also has its enemies.

"Oregon has put a 5-cent deposit on cans and many people aren't buying them because they're not used to having to return empty cans," Mike says.

"They're also talking about putting a warning on the side of the can, something like: 'Caution: beer drinking may be hazardous to your driving.'"

Mike has already met several other beer can collectors in the area and says he hopes to meet more. He's even thinking about attending a national "convention" in Cincinnati that's expected to draw 600 to 800 collectors.

It would be a chance to make friends, establish new trading contacts and to discuss regional brands and breweries, he says.

It would also be a time to sit back, "pop a top," and brag just a little about that 1936 Budweiser can back home on the shelf.

WITH SEVERAL HUNDRED cans of beer already on the wall, Mike Madden, 22, is still hunting for more. Mike began his collection of empty beer cans four years ago and is now a member in good standing of the Beer Can Collectors of America. The collection represents more than 500 different brands and labels from Chippewa Pride to Hull's Export, and a lot of everything else in between.

Schaumburg Township budget still incomplete

Blank spaces in several spending areas of the proposed Schaumburg Township budget for 1973-1974 make it difficult to determine if projected allocations for town fund expenditures will be lower or higher than last year's budget of $310,235.

At the first of several work sessions to finalize the budget, several budget items were finalized. However, since the township is also considering disbursement of $10,000 in federal revenue sharing funds, some changes in budget requests are being considered.

Vern Laubenstein, township supervisor, said some committees such as the Committee on Youth and Mental Health Board are reworking preliminary budget requests. He said the township is taking the attitude that some projects may be funded from the revenue sharing money, while others will remain a budget item. Laubenstein said the budget will probably be finalized after the township determines revenue sharing disbursement.

A STATE LAW enacted in 1971 named township officials sole determiners of how to spend town funds.

"However, the budget will be available for review prior to a March 27 hearing and the board is happy to listen to citizen's views and welcome their opinion before we vote on a final draft of the budget," said Laubenstein.

Budget items that have been worked out include the following:

Township office salaries in contrast to last year's budgeted $25,160 have gone up to $33,440. Election expenses on the other hand, have dropped from an allocated $14,600 in the last budget to $3,800 allocated for this budget.

Rent expenses in this budget are estimated at $9,600; last year $7,600 was budgeted. Insurance costs are down from last year's $1,850 to an estimated $1,200 in this budget.

THE PROFESSIONAL improvements fund allotment is down $150 from last year's $1,950 allocation, and audit equipment and telephone costs are slightly higher.

Budget totals for the Committee on Youth and Mental Health funds are not established and allocations for weed control, bonding and collector's salary are also not set.

The general assistance fund allocation has been increased from the $25,450 budgeted last year to a $30,810 total budgeted for this fiscal year.

Laubenstein said the township board may work in committee Wednesday on several budget items following the special township meeting called to consider federal revenue sharing disbursement. The meeting is scheduled for 8 p.m. in the township offices at the Bulterry, 103 S. Roselle Rd., Schaumburg.

Fund lack sidelines creek projects 'at least a year'

Work on two local creek projects will be postponed for at least a year because of lack of state funds, the chief engineer for the Illinois Division of Waterways said yesterday.

Prospect and Prospect Heights, will be completed in 10 years. Most of the work left to be done is upstream of the creek, north of the Wolf Road and Euclid Avenue intersection in Prospect Heights.

MRS. LURIE said her campaign would have no set platform. "I don't really know to what extent issues will be important this year," she said.

Revenue-sharing funds tied up in Washington

A bureaucratic snarl in Washington, D.C., has prevented Elk Grove Township from getting any federal revenue sharing funds.

Richard Hall, township auditor, said the township was mistakenly considered a non-taxing unit when its application was submitted. A non-taxing unit is ineligible for revenue sharing.

According to Hall, the necessary information to correct the error has been submitted, but none of the township officials have any idea when the first federal check will be received.

Hall said the township has been assured of receiving all back revenue funds when the error is corrected. He had no estimate of how much money the township was to receive.

THE DELAY in getting revenue sharing will force the township to hold a second set of budget meetings. The township is now holding budget meetings for the 1973-74 fiscal year expenditures of its tax monies. Once the amount of revenue sharing is known, the township will hold additional meetings to budget the funds.

During budget meetings, expenditures for the coming fiscal year are estimated. The figures are subject to change until the board of auditors have developed a proposed official budget. This budget must be on public display for at least 30 days. After that the auditors have to adopt it as the official township budget for the new fiscal year.

At the first of the meetings, held Tuesday, the auditors suggested a Town Fund budget of $185,912, a total only $200 higher than last year's budget of $185,712.

The Town Fund covers all operations expenses of the township except those for sewers, road and bridge and general assistance funds.

THE BIGGEST increase in line items on the budget was a more than doubling of the township youth committee expenditures. Last year's youth committee had a $12,000 budget. For 1973-74, a total of $27,000 was suggested.

Major reductions in budgeted expenses were made for the township collector's office. This office is no longer a functioning agency at the township level of government. Nominal amounts were suggested for the collector's office in the event that it does become active again.

No amount was suggested for payment of bond and interest since the township paid off the last of its bonds during the current fiscal year.

The overall township Road and Bridge Fund was decreased by almost $3,000 in the suggested budget with a total expenditure of $173,100, down from this year's $176,000.

THE OVER-ALL township general assistance budget for 1973-74 was reduced by over $2,000 compared to this year. The 1973-74 figure is $78,400 compared to this year's $80,450.

At the meeting, representatives from Elk Grove Village Community Service requested that the township allocate $28,600 for the agency. The amount is based on the number of people from Elk Grove Township who received counseling and therapy from Community Service in the past year. Officials said that township tax money could not be appropriated for mental health agencies.

The auditors said there is a possibility that federal revenue sharing funds could be used to support some form of mental health treatment. The auditors asked that Community Service representatives return to the township when federal revenue sharing funds are obtained, and a budget is drawn up.

The next budget meeting is scheduled for 8 p.m., Tuesday, at the town offices, 2400 S. Arhagon Heights Rd.

Hendricks running unopposed, but working hard as ever

When Richard Hendricks votes for himself in the April 17 Mount Prospect village election, he could be putting himself into office as a village trustee.

Hendricks, 36, of 1537 E. Emerson Ln., is the only candidate on the ballot for the two-year trustee spot that became available last year with Richard H. Monroe's resignation. Filing for the election closed Tuesday.

But Hendricks said he will not be taking it easy. "I will be working as hard as ever," he said yesterday. "I cannot discount the possibility of a last-minute write-in campaign, such as there was in 1969. I'm still looking forward to an active campaign."

Hendricks did admit that there would not be as much pressure during this campaign. "It will be a little easier this time than it was two years ago."

In 1971, when Hendricks first ran for village trustee, he ran fourth with 1,969 votes in a five-man race. Only the top three vote-getters were elected.

ONE OTHER candidate in this April's election will be unopposed. He is Village Clerk Donald Goodman, who is seeking reelection to a four-year term. Both he and Hendricks are part of Mayor Robert D. Teichert's The Village Party slate.

Three other members of the slate face a fight in the upcoming election, however. They are incumbent trustees Donald B. Furst, Patrick J. Link and Bud Richardson. All three hope to keep their board posts but they have been challenged by Leo Floros, a former Mount Prospect School Dist. 57 board member.

In the race for mayor, Teichert is trying for a second term against challengers Michael Minton and Albert J. Motsch.

Rob Roy sale talks still deadlocked

Attorneys for both Kenroy Inc. and the River Trails Park District remain deadlocked in discussions over the sale of the southern 19 acres of the Rob Roy Driving Range in Prospect Heights.

Roger Bjorvik, attorney for the park district, said both sides are reviewing discussions that have been held before, hoping to come up with a solution. The park district would like to settle the land deal out of court rather than wait for condemnation hearings. As yet, no court date has been set on the condemnation.

Officials from Kenroy have hinted that they might go back to the Village of Mount Prospect with a revised plan for annexation and development of the northern half of the 38-acre driving range, Bjorvik said. However, Bill Dillon, real estate broker for Kenroy, would not confirm this. Dillon would only say that Kenroy was "waiting to see what the park district would do."

KENROY withdrew its agreement to sell the southern 19 acres after the village turned down a request by Kenroy for annexation and development of the entire 38 acres. Earlier, it had been agreed that Kenroy would sell the southern 19 acres to the park district for $680,000. It was also agreed that Kenroy would be allowed to build a retention lake on the southern to handle storm water from the development that had been slated on the north half.

Last year, the Department of Housing and Urban Development approved a grant for the site that will pay 50 percent of the purchase price of the land. The remainder of the price was to come from $750,000 approved by voters in a bond referendum. Money not used for the purchase of the site was to be used for the development of the 19 acres as well as other park sites.

According to Jean Keist, a community development representative for HUD, the present 18-month freeze on the spending of certain federal funds will have no effect on the HUD grant for the park district since the grant has already been approved.

Mike would like to add the can to his collection

Does anybody out there drink Bullfrog?

by KURT BAER

Collecting beer cans isn't just a passing fad for 22-year-old Mike Madden.

"In fact, you could say it's in my blood," says Mike, whose collection of steel and aluminum containers now numbers about 550 and is still growing.

The cans represent a wide range of breweries and an even bigger assortment of labels. From ABC beer to Schlitz, Mike has them all. Well, at least he has a lot of them.

Some more veteran collectors have amassed displays of 2,000 to 3,000 cans and can trace the history of a beer through decades of label changes. Most truly serious collectors, like Mike, belong to a brotherhood — the Beer Can Collectors of America — whose members swap cans with all sophistication and enthusiasm of stamp and coin collectors.

IN JUST four years of searching and saving, Mike already has lined one wall in his bedroom at 1501 W. Euclid Ave., Arlington Heights, with emptied cans and is fast using up wallpaper on a second.

"I'd like to say I drank them all," he says, explaining that for many of the lesser-known labels he has had to visit little "out-of-the-way" places.

"Old railroad stations are an excellent spot. I've found lots of cans searching along walls and between the rafters. I guess guys used to like to 'sit and have one' while waiting for their train."

Cans Mike can't find, he can hope to trade for. Older cans and foreign labels usually command two or even three newer cans in the barter market. One of Mike's goals right now is to find a can of Bullfrog beer, brewed in Chicago 10 or 15 years ago.

It is a brew that, if remembered at all, is usually recalled with words like: "Oyeh, Bullfrog, three cans and you croaked."

ON THE SURFACE, starting and keeping a collection of empty beer cans sounds pretty straightforward. But can collecting, like any other hobby, has its own set of secrets that separate the connoisseur from the dilettante.

"You can pop out dents with a firecracker," Mike says. And a little oxalic acid will remove rust from old steel cans without corroding the metal.

The can curator will also know the Canadian cans are generally half an inch shorter than their American cousins and that the two nationalities cannot be stacked together with any degree of stability.

It probably will come as no surprise that beer cans, like just about everything else, aren't being made the way they used to be.

"They're going to thinner and thinner metal and cheaper paints," says Mike, pulling out one of the early Schlitz Malt Liquor cans that had textured engravings around the base.

THE BEER CAN also has its enemies. "Oregon has put a 5-cent deposit on cans and many people aren't buying them because they're not used to having to return empty cans," Mike says.

"They're also talking about putting a warning on the side of the can, something like: 'Caution: beer drinking may be hazardous to your driving.'"

Mike has already met several other beer can collectors in the area and says he hopes to meet more. He's even thinking about attending a national "convention" in Cincinnati that's expected to draw 600 to 800 collectors.

It would be a chance to make friends, establish new trading contacts and to discuss regional brands and breweries, he says.

It would also be a time to sit back, "pop a top," and brag just a little about that 1936 Budweiser can back home on the shelf.

Dad-daughter feast for Brownies tonight

About 100 persons are expected to attend tonight's Brownie Father and Daughter Banquet. The event is being held by four Brownie troops, all of which are sponsored by Dist. 59 Robert Frost School. The annual affair will start at 7:15 p.m. at the Mount Prospect Country Club, 600 S. See-Gwan Ave., Mount Prospect. The four Brownie troops involved are 62, 592, 826 and 831.

Businessmen warned

by STEVE BROWN

Businessmen throughout the Northwest suburbs have been warned to be on the lookout for a new batch of counterfeit currency that may be passed in this area.

Schaumburg police reported that more than $100 in bogus $10 bills were passed at Woodfield Mall last weekend.

They have speculated that more counterfeit notes may have been passed at the shopping center.

John Hanley, chief of the Chicago office of the Secret Service, said that while some reports have been received from this area, it does not appear the Northwest suburbs are the focal point of the counterfeit currency passers efforts.

"We have seen these bills turn up in all sections of the city, around large shopping centers and other highly commercial areas," he said.

He said businessmen have been warned by local police to examine all currency used in business transactions.

Hanley said the notes apparently came from a counterfeiting operation in Chicago that was broken up in January.

REPORTEDLY, THE agents seized the counterfeiters, but the plates used in the operation were not confiscated.

Hanley said the incident was not connected to another counterfeiting ring in which a Schaumburg man was arrested last November.

There may be as much as $50,000 in counterfeit currency involved in this incident, according to police, but Hanley said it is impossible to determine how many of the $10 notes may be circulating in the area.

"We thought we had it all when we made the arrests, but the possibility exists there may be more in the area that has not been passed."

Hanley said Secret Service agents are investigating the incident to determine how widespread the situation may be and if there is a pattern to the method in which the counterfeit bills have been passed.

Independents seek to abolish township government

Abolishment of the township government is part of the platform adopted by the independent slate of candidates for the Elk Grove Township elections.

The platform states:

• Immediate steps shall be taken to eliminate all township functions now duplicated by other local governments.

• Any township functions not duplicated would be transferred to an appropriate local government.

• A nonpartisan citizens' committee shall be formed to consider a referendum to abolish township government.

THE PLATFORM also calls for:

• The elimination of the patronage system for hiring at the township. All positions will be filled strictly on the basis of qualification for the job.

• Spending should be reduced by the elimination of the thistle commissioner, township collector's staff, and assessor's staff. Excessive spending in the township road and bridge fund and general assistance shall be eliminated.

• Full disclosure of all income, assets and liabilities shall be made by all independent candidates. Following the election, no township funds shall be deposited in a bank in which a township official has a proprietary interest.

The independent "slate" is running the following candidates: Paul Rettberg, auditor; Julie Sass, auditor; Steven Maddock, auditor; and Larry Pahl, township highway commissioner.

The group calls themselves a slate because they are pooling resources and supporting one another. Technically, they are not a slate since there is not a candidate for every office.

Rettberg and Pahl live in Elk Grove Village. Mrs. Sass and Maddock live in unincorporated Elk Grove Township.

THE GROUP is opposing the full slate of candidates filed by the Regular Republican Organization of Elk Grove Township. The Republicans running are: Bernard Lee, Wayne Hult, Water Bartley and Larry Hintze for auditors and Alfred Stell for highway commissioner. Also, the Republicans are running Richard Hall, now a township auditor, for supervisor.

Hall, after reading the independent platform, charged the independents did not understand the function of township government. He said he did not know why the group was running for offices they wanted to abolish.

Hall said the township has already planned to make some of the expense reductions called for in the independent platform, such as the elimination of the thistle commissioner and the reduction of the collector's staff.

Hall said, "there is no patronage in township jobs."

In regard to income disclosure, Hall said all township officials have filed the statement of economic interests as required by the state.

"I favor income disclosure," said Hall, "In fact, I was involved in the first Illinois suit to force income disclosure."

7% hike? Commuters don't like it

the commission to decide.

Until then commuters will have time to prepare for an increase. If they're thinking like R. Hoch of Mount Prospect, they'll start looking for alternatives to riding the train.

"A group of friends and I are talking about forming a car pool if there's a hike," said Mrs. Roch who rides the train downtown six days a week. "I think an increase is ridiculous. If you consider driving downtown and even parking, the train almost costs as much now. It's terribly expensive."

One Mount Prospect commuter, who wouldn't give his name, doesn't think the C&NW deserves the hike. "Raising rates — it's all they've been doing in the past couple of years. I think they could get by with what they have now. They're like the CTA, they only lose more customers with every rate increase," he said.

"I'd just like to look at their books," was all one Arlington Heights commuter would say.

Oswald and James Jacoby will help you hold a winning hand in "WIN AT BRIDGE", appearing daily in the HERALD.

by KAREN BLECHA
They might not like it, but commuters who use the Chicago & North Western Ry. for daily trips to the Loop already are prepared for a possible 7 per cent rate increase being sought by the railroad.

And even though they complain, most of them say that daily service is more important than the cost because if the trains ever stop, thousands of suburbanites will not just be inconvenienced, they will be stranded without jobs in the empty suburbs.

"Yech" is the way Kathleen Peters of Arlington Heights feels about the 7 per cent fare increase proposed by the Chicago and North Western. But, like most commuters, she said she "would rather have the fare increase than a decrease in service."

After all, what can you do if you depend on the train to take you downtown five days a week? "You don't like the hike, but you have to accept it," said Daniel Mulcahy, who has been a C&NW passenger for the past 15 years.

The way Bud Daskel of Mount Prospect explains it, the C&NW "has sort of a captive audience with the commuters who don't have a choice because it's the only way for them to get downtown."

"I'd still ride the train. There's no way my nerves could take driving downtown," said Fred Booth of Wheeling, adding that he just started riding the train last August when the C&NW raised rates by 5 1/2 per cent.

A new fare increase won't stop Raymond Brodl of Des Plaines from riding the train, either. "I'm not in favor of the increase. I think the Chicago and North Western has had sufficient hikes in the past years and that those should be adequate," yaid the rider of 13 years "But I think the North Western provides excellent service."

LARRY PROVO, president of the railway company, said the C&NW is finding it increasingly difficult to maintain present commuter service in the face of rising costs and increased competition. The C&NW first proposed the hike last November, with hopes it would go into effect by Jan. 1.

For commuters like Brodl, the hike would mean an increase of between $2.20 and $2.70 on the price of a monthly ticket. For those who ride the train only a few times a week, like Michael Sprattlin of Palatine, the hike would mean 20 cents more for a round-trip ticket to the Loop.

"It's terrible. They just raised the rates last August," said Sprattlin, who said he is a student and "always going broke." But Sprattlin, who often stops in Arlington Heights to give music lessons, likes the C&NW service. "The people are very friendly and they help me board the train with my instruments."

Vicki Selman, from Prospect Heights, said she rides the train about once a month and feels "terrible" about the proposed increase. She said she'd probably take a car instead if the hike is approved.

FOUR DAYS of hearings by the Illinois Commerce Commission on the proposed hike ended last week. According to Tom Judge of C&NW, the ICC will make a decision on the increase in April. He said an increase, if approved, would probably go into effect May 1, although it's up to Urge elimination of Hasbrook project

Park officials protest village plans for park lands use as flood control

The Arlington Heights Park District board made it perfectly clear to the village board last night that park land would not be used arbitrarily for flood control or any other village projects.

Park board members asked that engineers take a look at alternative sites for retention basins at Volz and Pioneer Parks and seriously consider eliminating the $99,000 Hasbrook Park project altogether. The other major proposals in the recently released village flood control report received general approval from the park board.

Thomas Thornton, director of parks and recreation, said the Hasbrook Park project, which would include an increase in the size of the present retention basin was unnecessary. He said the elevations shown in the flood control report were wrong according to his topography map and that the basin does not overflow.

"In this project (the Hasbrook Park retention basin enlargement) you did not check topography maps and you seem to have based the need for it on hearsay — what a couple of people said on the night of a big flood," said Jack Edwards, a member of the park board. "This blows the whole thing in my mind."

PARK DISTRICT officials said that the basin couldn't have overflowed in the directions a few people allegedly told the village it did because of the topography.

When asked why alternate sites were not included in the flood report, Robert C. Gloppen, a member of the engineers consulting firm that prepared the flood control report, said use of public lands would be less expensive.

"Selection of the site also has to be in accord with the topography. And oddly enough the park district land, in some cases, was the only property available," said Gloppen.

Frank Palmatier, chairman of the village flood control committee, said he was in favor of using a portion of the village public works land instead of Volz Park for one of the projects. According to Thornton the entire area of Volz Park would be used for a basin if the engineering report were followed.

"The village could still use some of the public works land and since the property would not be for public use the slopes of the basin could be steeper," said Palmatier.

Alternatives were not easy to come by for the proposed Pioneer Park retention basin, which would take up about one quarter of the park area.

"THIS PROJECT would render a good part of this park useless," said Kay Muller. "Also, a facility like a retention basin which is unsightly would make the entire park unappealing."

The basin, like the one proposed for Volz Park, would be about 15 feet deep and have a downward slope of one foot vertically to six feet horizontally.

According to Gloppen the only solution in the case of Pioneer Park would be to move the park facilities elsewhere.

"We could knock down some homes or build an underground drainage system but I don't know if it would be worth the money to save that park when you could just find another site for it," said Gloppen. Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson concurred with park district officials, however, in citing the fact that there was no land available anywhere in that area for a park.

Gloppen also said the retention basin doesn't have to be unsightly and suggested that it be seeded and used as a play field since it would be dry most of the year.

"IF THE PLAN goes through we will be losing one of the two major baseball fields in the town," said Loyd Meyer.

During the discussion Palmatier, one of two trustees present, stressed that the current proposal is primarily for flood control, not for a recreational program. And all five park board commissioners present stressed that when park land is being considered for village use, they should be in on the planning from the beginning.

Palmatier said he hopes that a $10 million referendum for flood control measures will be presented to the voters on April 3.

In other matters of mutual concern presented in an agenda by the park board, the village officials said they would study proposed street and sidewalk paving as well as making the village and park boundaries more coterminous.

Hanson also said he would see to it that the police were assured that they have the authority to enforce park district ordinances.

New tennis club planned

Plans are being made for a luxurious indoor-outdoor tennis club in the Arlington Heights industrial park.

The facility, known as the Arlington-Dundee Tennis Club, is proposed for the College Drive cul de sac, west of Arlington Heights Road. The proposed site is bordered on the south and the west by the Berkeley Square subdivision.

As presented, the club would include eight indoor tennis courts, three outdoor courts, a swimming pool, as well as whirlpool, sauna and exercise rooms for both men and women.

A separate indoor tennis facility, being financed by the Arlington Heights Park District, is scheduled to open in June next to Forest View High School.

"I think the boom in tennis will bring more indoor centers," said Ronald H.

Dodd, director of recreation for the park district.

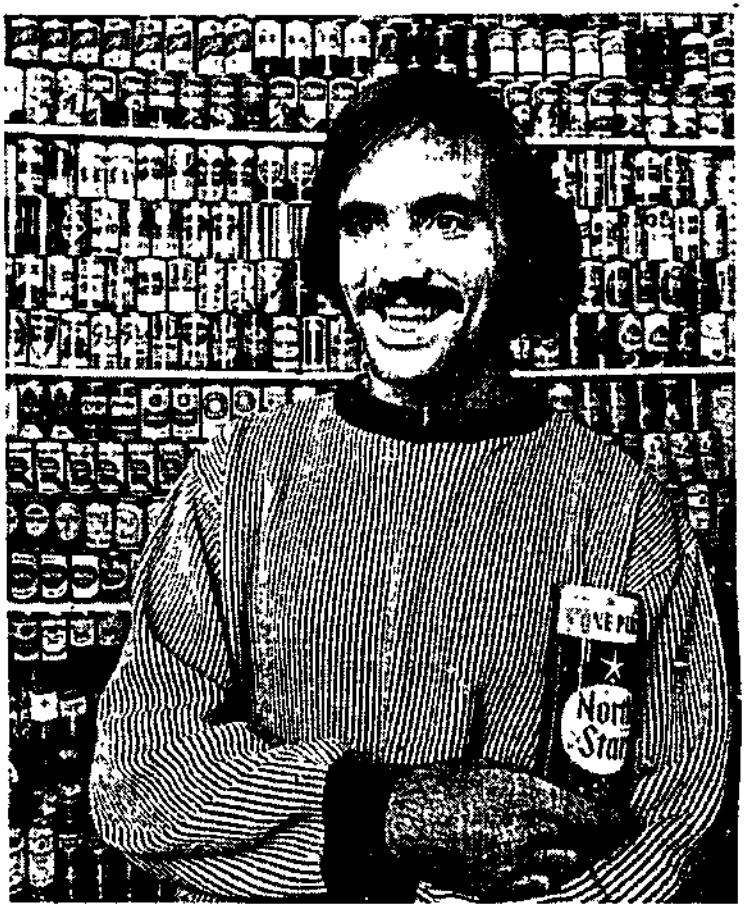

DODD said he did not think the two clubs would be in competition because of the higher rates that usually prevail at private clubs.

"There will be a saturation point someday but not soon. Another club in town won't make that much difference," he said.

The park district club will include six indoor courts and saunas and whirlpool rooms.

Before an indoor club can be built in the industrial park, the developer will have to get a special use permit from the village.

A public hearing before the Arlington Heights Plan Commission has been set for 8 p.m. on March 7.

The market

The widely followed Dow Jones industrial average took its worst loss in 20 months as prices on the New York Stock Exchange plunged in an atmosphere of investor uncertainty surrounding devaluation of the dollar. Activity, however, was only moderate. The Dow closed at 979.91, off 16.85, worst loss for the average since June 18, 1971 when it fell 17.09. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index declined 1.63 to 115.10, and the price of an average NYSE common share lost 61 cents.

Police cracking down on sticker violations

Arlington Heights police officers will intensify the checking of vehicles parked in parking lots throughout the village after the Feb. 15 sticker and license deadline.

The stepped-up program will go in effect to help curtail automobile theft and vandalism. Re-registration of the vehicles will give police a current and accurate record of automobiles.

The program also will provide for a more uniform enforcement of village vehicle stickers. Violation of this ordinance may result to a fine up to $200 and the $11 purchase price of the sticker.

George Washington a latter-day Viking?

George Washington a latter-day Viking? That's the opinion of a local group of Viking boosters who are planning to celebrate the first President's birthday Friday.

"Washington's mother traced her ancestry, via William the Conqueror, to Rolf, the Viking chieftain who was given the Normandy area by Charles III of France in the year 912," says W. R. Anderson, president of the Lelf Ericson Society and a member of the Norseman Lodge in Arlington Heights.

Anderson will be the featured speaker when members of the Norseman Lodge, Sons of Norway, meet at 8 p.m. Friday at the Arlington Heights Savings and Loan building.

Anderson will discuss the recent findings of Norse relics in four midwestern states, including Illinois. Plans for further Viking celebrations, including the birthdays of 12 other Presidents and 11 signers of the Declaration of Independence who had Norwegian blood will also be discussed.

Wills, estates topic of talk by lawyers

The social ministry committee of Our Saviour's Evangelical Lutheran Church, 1234 N. Arlington Heights Rd., will present its third program in the "Life and Free Time" series at 2:30 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 25.

The discussion panel will include attorneys Russell Larson, Joseph Oppenheimer and William Stueber. The program will focus on wills and estate planning.

Family seeks poodle that bit boy, 13

Authorities are seeking to locate a black, unclipped poodle that bit 13-year-old Billy Gibbons several days ago near the 1200 block of North Chicago Avenue in Arlington Heights.

Unless the dog can be located and checked for rabies, Billy will have to undergo a series of painful anti-rabies shots.

The dog was reported wearing three dog tags.

Anyone with information is asked to call Mrs. William Gibbons at 392-0641.

No race for township, so taxpayers save

Wheeling Township officials hope to save taxpayers approximately $13,500 by consolidating the number of precinct polling places for the April 3 election.

The board of auditors, which has the authority to determine the number and location of the polling places, will vote on the matter today at 8 p.m. in the town hall, 1818 E. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights.

Wheeling Township has 100 precincts. Officials hope to determine approximately 23 polling places since the Republican slate remains unopposed in the election.

Fender decision postponed again

A decision yesterday on the reinstatement of former Arlington Heights Dist. 23 teacher John Fender was postponed until March 21.

Fender, a former language arts teacher at Miller Junior High School, was fired last June for alleged cruelty in his relations with students. The decision is now being appealed in circuit court.

According to Edward Jackson, Fender's attorney, the judicial review of the case was continued because of a sickness in the judge's family.

FRANK J. DEMPSEY

Frank Dempsey new executive librarian

Changes in store for village library

by CINDY TEW

In three days, Frank Dempsey completely rearranged his new office and Arlington Heights Memorial Library patrons can probably look forward to more changes.

Dempsey, 47, took over the duties of executive librarian of the Arlington Heights library a week ago. He replaces Harold Ard who left in October to head up the library system in Jackson, Miss.

Director of the Berkeley Public Library, Berkeley, Calif., for 10 years, Dempsey's claims to fame are an after hours reference service, a psychedelic bookmobile and a strong "Friends of the Library" group.

Dempsey's not sure whether any of his pet projects from Berkeley will carry over to Arlington Heights.

"I'M VERY impressed with the friendly people and the beautiful library," said Dempsey. "But I don't know enough about the community at this time to know what programs can work here."

Dempsey was chosen from over 50 applications received by the library board of which about a dozen people were interviewed.

"His qualifications were far and away better than anyone else we talked to," said Library Board Pres. Natalie Wallace. Dempsey's annual salary will be $20,000.

Dempsey gained national fame with his psychedelic bookmobile that he called the Media Machine. Not only was the machine featured in a small story in Newsweek but a TV special on Education in America included a short clip on it.

"ACTUALLY THE idea for a media machine came from an inventive librarian I knew — the early hippy type who wore blue jeans all the time and had a beard," said Dempsey. The van was painted orange and blue and rolled down the street blaring loud music.

The idea was to get people in the poverty areas, especially the children, into the machine to read the books. It worked like a pried piper.

"We showed instant movies at street corners which included Charlie Chaplin and the Keystone Kops," said Dempsey. "The kids loved it and actually started using the books."

Dempsey said the library had a very permissive attitude about loaning the Media Machine's paperback stock of books.

"We didn't worry about due dates and justified the loss of some books to the fact that we were reaching people who would never go into a library," said Dempsey.

DEMPSEY SAID about 70 per cent of the books were returned, a much higher percentage than the librarians had hoped for. The machine was eventually used at convalescent homes, hospitals, birthday parties and in parades.

Funds for the paperback bookmobile collection came largely from Dempsey's Friends of the Library group.

"Friends groups are very important because they can sometimes accomplish things that the library administration can't do," said Dempsey. Besides working for library legislation and on book sales the Friends were instrumental in passing a referendum when many other referendums in the community were going down to defeat.

One of Dempsey's first priorities will be to meet the head of the local Friends of the Library organization.

THOUGH DEMPSEY hasn't checked out the feasibility of an after hours telephone reference service in Arlington Heights, he says that the one in Berkeley was very well used.

"We had from 50 to 100 calls per night and we kept the system open until midnight seven days a week," said Dempsey. "The word must have spread about our service because we got one call from Washington, D.C."

The Berkeley Public Library participated in a reciprocal borrowing program with the Oakland libraries, and Dempsey said the plan worked well.

He is not for reciprocal borrowing in every case, however, and plans to study the Arlington Heights reciprocal borrowing system further. The village library has been a member of the 31-library North Suburban Library System (NSLS) reciprocal borrowing program for over six months.

"I'm all for the greatest amount of service for the greatest number of people and in some cases that includes reciprocal borrowing," said Dempsey.

Ecology Corps considered by village, park district

Maintenance jobs for 13 through 15-year-olds will be provided by the village and park district this summer, if a plan under consideration by both municipal units becomes a reality.

The idea for the crew, to be called the Ecology Corps — EC for short — was initiated by the park district.

"We hope to budget $5,000 for the program," said Thomas Thornton, director of parks and recreation. The park district figures about 20 kids could be hired in their program.

The workers would be paid $15 per week for five half-days of work weekly. Though much of the work would be in the maintenance field, park district officials hope that some recreation work can be included.

AT A RECENT Youth Council meeting, the plan was unanimously endorsed and a letter will soon be sent to Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson asking that the plan be adopted so that the village could provide $5,000 for the project, too.

"At the village level, maintenance work could include weeding and planting," said Rodney Kath, a member of the youth council. "We hope the village will put up $5,000 so the program can be double what the park district planned. It sounds like a good program."

Kath said the 13 through 15-year-olds include many kids who don't like organized activities in the park district and the Ecology Corps could provide an alternative. "Besides, they'd get paid for it," said Kath.

KAY MULLER, who introduced the program to the park district, says the 13 to 15-year-old age group doesn't want to play childish games but aren't interested in adult activities either.

"They are very difficult to program activities for," said Mrs. Muller who learned about the concept of an Ecology Corps from an Illinois Association of Park Districts State conference. She said Naperville has a very successful program.

Mrs. Muller also hopes the EC will be a learning experience for the youth. Besides learning to identify plants and prune trees, they will learn about vandalism damage.

"Kids don't realize how much it takes to repair things like broken windows and doors," said Mrs. Muller.

According to Mrs. Muller, the program won't be all work and no play. She hopes to include free swim passes and parties for the junior workers.

New racing date session slated Tuesday

The Illinois Racing Board is scheduled to convene Tuesday to reconsider the 1973 racing schedule, specifically the dates awarded to racing associations controlled by William S. Miller.

Anthony Scarlano, board chairman, said he will ask Miller to show cause why dates assigned to Balmoral Jockey Club Inc. should not be revoked or reassigned to other associations.

Scarlano and Gov. Daniel Walker's racing board are seeking to revoke dates awarded last December by a lame duck racing board because of Miller's testimony before the state Legislative Investigating Commission and in the trial of former Gov. Otto Kerner.

During the trial, Miller admitted misrepresenting his interest in Balmoral to the old racing board.

ARLINGTON PARK Race Track could pick up all or some of the 27 racing days now assigned to the Balmoral association if the board is successful in its bid to overturn the existing schedule.

Arlington operators are hoping that the board will set an entirely new racing schedule and assign the more lucrative summer dates to the track here.

Right now, Arlington Park is scheduled to open April 19 and close July 24.

On a separate front, the Illinois Supreme Court has agreed to hear an emergency appeal on the racing schedule from Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott.

Scott too is seeking to revoke dates awarded to Miller's associations but last month a Circuit Court ruling upheld the 1973 dates schedule, including the 27 days for the Balmoral Jockey Club.

Revenue funds tied up in Washington

A bureaucratic snarl in Washington, D.C., has prevented Elk Grove Township from getting any federal revenue sharing funds.

Richard Hall, township auditor, said the township was mistakenly considered a non-taxing unit when its application was submitted. A non-taxing unit is ineligible for revenue sharing.

According to Hall, the necessary information to correct the error has been submitted, but none of the township officials have any idea when the first federal check will be received.

Hall said the township has been assured of receiving all back revenue funds when the error is corrected. He had no estimate of how much money the township was to receive.

THE DELAY in getting revenue sharing will force the township to hold a second set of budget meetings. The township is now holding budget meetings for the 1973-74 fiscal year expenditures of its tax monies. Once the amount of revenue sharing is known, the township will hold additional meetings to budget the funds.

During budget meetings, expenditures for the coming fiscal year are estimated. The figures are subject to change until the board of auditors have developed a proposed official budget. This budget must be on public display for at least 30 days. After that the auditors have to adopt it as the official township budget for the new fiscal year.

At the first of the meetings, held Tuesday, the auditors suggested a Town Fund budget of $185,912, a total only $200 higher than last year's budget of $185,712.

The Town Fund covers all operations expenses of the township except those for sewers, road and bridge and general assistance funds.

THE BIGGEST increase in line items on the budget was a more than doubling of the township youth committee expenditures. Last year's youth committee had a $12,000 budget. For 1973-74, a total of $27,000 was suggested.

Major reductions in budgeted expenses were made for the township collector's office. This office is no longer a functioning agency at the township level of government. Nominal amounts were suggested for the collector's office in the event that it does become active again.

No amount was suggested for payment of bond and interest since the township paid off the last of its bonds during the current fiscal year.

The overall township Road and Bridge Fund was decreased by almost $3,000 in the suggested budget with a total expenditure of $173,100, down from this year's $178,000.

THE OVER-ALL township general assistance budget for 1973-74 was reduced by over $2,000 compared to this year. The 1973-74 figure is $78,400 compared to this year's $80,450.

At the meeting, representatives from Elk Grove Village Community Service requested that the township allocate $28,500 for the agency. The amount is based on the number of people from Elk Grove Township who received counseling and therapy from Community Service in the past year. Officials said that township tax money could not be appropriated for mental health agencies.

The auditors said there is a possibility that federal revenue sharing funds could be used to support some form of mental health treatment. The auditors asked that Community Service representatives return to the township when federal revenue sharing funds are obtained, and a budget is drawn up.

The next budget meeting is scheduled for 8 p.m., Tuesday, at the town offices, 2400 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

7% hike? Commuters don't like it

the commission to decide.

Until then commuters will have time to prepare for an increase. If they're thinking like R. Roch of Mount Prospect, they'll start looking for alternatives to riding the train.

"A group of friends and I are talking about forming a car pool if there's a hike," said Mrs. Roch who rides the train downtown six days a week. "I think an increase is ridiculous. If you consider driving downtown and even parking, the

Local independents adopt platform

Abolishment of the township government is part of the platform adopted by the independent slate of candidates for the Elk Grove Township elections.

The platform states:

- Immediate steps shall be taken to eliminate all township functions now duplicated by other local governments.
- Any township functions not duplicated would be transferred to an appropriate local government.
- A nonpartisan citizens' committee shall be formed to consider a referendum to abolish township government.
- The elimination of the patronage system for hiring at the township. All positions will be filled strictly on the basis of qualification for the job.
- Spending should be reduced by the elimination of the thistle commissioner, township collector's staff, and assessor's staff. Excessive spending in the township road and bridge fund and general assistance shall be eliminated.
- Full disclosure of all income, assets and liabilities shall be made by all independent candidates. Following the election, no township funds shall be deposited in a bank in which a township official has a proprietary interest.

The independent "slate" is running the following candidates: Paul Rettberg, auditor; Julie Sass, auditor; Steven Maddock, auditor; and Larry Pahl, township highway commissioner.

The group calls themselves a slate because they are pooling resources and supporting one another. Technically, they are not a slate since there is not a candidate for every office.

Rettberg and Pahl live in Elk Grove Village. Mrs. Sass and Maddock live in unincorporated Elk Grove Township.

THE GROUP is opposing the full slate of candidates filed by the Regular Republican Organization of Elk Grove Township. The Republicans running are: Bernard Lee, Wayne Hult, Water Bartley and Larry Hintze for auditors and Alfred Stett for highway commissioner. Also, the Republicans are running Richard Hall, now a township auditor, for supervisor.

Hall, after reading the independent platform, charged the independents did not understand the function of township government. He said he did not know why the group was running for offices they wanted to abolish.

Hall said the township has already planned to make some of the expense reductions called for in the independent platform, such as the elimination of the thistle commissioner and the reduction of the collector's staff.

Hall said, "there is no patronage in township jobs."

In regard to income disclosure, Hall said all township officials have filed the statement of economic interests as required by the state.
